THE PHILATELIC MINSTRELS

By CHARLES E. ROE.

(From the Eastboro (Mass.) "Bugle-Gazette.")

The one performance of the International Philatelic Minstrels was held last Thursday evening at the Town Hall. After the opening song, "The Precancel Glues," by the entire company, the following dialogue took place between the late Messrs. I M. Purfreight, the interlocutor, Ham Bones and Julius Tambo.

Bones: "I say, Mr. Johnsing, do yo' know why a Seebeck is like a gold brick?"

Int.: "Because both have been used to swindle people?"

Bones: "No, kase dey bofe comes f'm a stamp-mill."

Int.: "Quite so. Have you a question, Mr. Tambo?"

Tambo: "Yessah, Ah has. Kin yo' tell me, Mr. Johnsing, why a '69 three-cent is like de bones o' St. Laurence?"

Int.: "No, Mr. Tambo, I cannot tell you why a '69 locomotive is like the bones of St. Laurence. Why?"

Tambo: "Kase dey's grilled."

Int.: "Very poor taste, Mr. Tambo. Mr. Bones, did I understand that you and your fiancée have disagreed?"

Bones: "Nossah, mah gal done gone back on me, thassall."

Int.: "My mistake. And how did that happen?"

Bones: "Like dis, Mr. Johnsing. Yo' member dat rainy, icy night las' Chuesday?"

Int.: "I do. But what has that unpleasant night to do with your antematrimonial troubles, Mr. Bones?"

Bones: "Nossah, dey wa'n't dat, dey was ge'ographical. Yo' see, we'd been to de movies, an' dere wuz a fillum what showed de coons over in Afriky an' when we come out ma gal, she says, 'Oh Ham, le's you an' me go 'n' see dat Afriky,' 'n' Ah says, 'Any time yo' says de word, honey,' 'n' jus' den ma foot slips 'n' Ah falls down 'n' slides 'bout fo'teen feet on ma head. An' when Ah gits up dat wo'thless gal says, 'Ham, yo's sho' de nicest man what dey is. Jus' as quick as Ah asks yo', yo' shows me de Ivory Coast!'"

Int.: "Very sad, Mr. Bones. What is your brother doing, Mr. Tambo?"

Tambo: "He's wo'kin' in de Asiatic Baseball League."

Int.: "That must be interesting. And what is he doing?"

Tambo: "Cochin China."

Bones: "Mr. Johnsing, kin yo' tell me why dem billion German stamps is like de Uncle Tom's Cabin show?"

Int.: "I haven't the least idea, Mr. Bones. Do you know why the German stamps of the billions are like the Uncle Tom's Cabin show?"

Int.: "Exactly, Mr. Bones. Now can you tell me what kind of stamps are used at the North Pole?"

Bones: "Chile ones."

Int.: "How did you acquire those black eyes I saw on you last week, Mr. Tambo?"

Tambo: "Misunderstandin', Mr. Johnsing."

Int.: "Misunderstanding?"

Tambo: "Yessah. Like dis. Yo' see, me an' ma wife we jus' moved to Boston, an' she sent me down to de sto' one night to git some stuff, an' Ah didn't know w're de sto' wuz, an' Ah wuz a-

NASSAU STAMP CO.

Nassau Street, New York, N. Y.

NATAL—"Half Penny" on 6d 1895

By P. L. PEMBERTON.

The issue of this provisional on March 12, 1895, created quite a stir in the philatelic world, the re-appearance of the beautiful old Perkins Bacon design, even with the disfigurement of a surcharge, giving the stamp a popularity such as few other issues of the period could claim.

The stamps were remainders of the 1864 issue, printed by De la Rue and Co. from Perkins Bacon plates, on paper watermarked Crown and CC and perforated 12½. Of this stamp there were originally two distinct shades—lilac and violet, and it was of the latter that there were sufficient remainders to make this provisional possible.

The stamps were printed in sheets of 240, in twenty horizontal rows of twelve. The surcharges were set up in a forme of sixty, which was sufficient to surcharge five horizontal rows at a time, and four operations were necessary to complete each sheet. This was done by P. Davis and Sons, proprietors of The Times of Natal, at Pietermaritzburg.

Before being issued, the sheets were divided horizontally into two half-sheets, presumably so that they would be easier to handle. The total number printed was 216,000, or 1,800 half-sheets of 120 each.

My publishers have recently purchased two half sheets, an upper and a lower, and through the surcharge being slightly misplaced it is easy to see that these two halves were originally one, since the missing parts of the surcharge of the bottom row on the top half are found on the top row of the lower half. This proves that the sheets were not divided until after they were printed.

The stamps were first chronicled in our issue for April, 1895, when a sheet of 120 was described. The error EALF, the minor varieties, and the eight types of the word POSTAGE are all set forth. It may be noted that the order in which these types were then given is the same as that afterwards adopted in Gibbons' Catalogue, though it is apparently quite haphazard, being determined neither by the relative rarity of the types nor by their positions on the sheet.

The chronicler of those days did not give a chart showing the position of the types and varieties on the block, but he gives a table showing how many of each type he found in the setting of sixty. This account does not quite agree with what I find to be the case from an examination of the half sheets which lie before me. Whereas I find seven of type B and only six type G, the old number of the P. J. G. B. has these reversed. I cannot think that there were two settings (in such a case the error EALF would surely have been corrected?) so am forced to the conclusion that the chronicler was wrong in these particulars.

The following is a list of the eight types of the word POSTAGE:—

A all letters of POSTAGE normal.
B POSTAGE with long P.
C " " " T.
D " " " A.
E " " " PT.
F " " " PA.
G " " " TA.
H " " " PTA.

In addition to these there are the following varieties:—

EALF on type A, No. 58 in setting.
V for Y on type B, No. 38 in setting.
V for Y on type G, No. 41 in setting.
No stop after POSTAGE, on type H, No. 25 in setting.

Collect Your State

A number of far sighted philatelists have decided to collect the early postal markings and CANCELLATIONS used in their own State or section. Some want only those prior to the Civil War, others go much further. The growing HISTORIC VALUE of such a collection is self evident. Museums will want it.

We now have clients desiring all New England, Vermont, R. I., Conn., N. Y., W. Va., Ga., Tex., Kas., and California.

We are handling many lots of ORIGINAL FINDS, every week now, such as 1851-89 3c, etc. Some fine ones came from the South. Who will take up Va. or Ala. or any other State? Let us hear from you.

From this it will be seen that types C and H are priced too high as compared with the others.

This provisional is not known with inverted or double surcharge, and the only other varieties which may be found are caused by the surcharges being badly centred. In this connection, Mr. Percy Williams, President of the Philatelic Society of Natal, recently sent me a photograph of a sheet of 120 stamps in which the surcharge on the upper five rows is too low down, with the result that the stamps in the top row miss the bar through the value, those in the next four rows have the bar at top, while those in the sixth row have bar at top and bottom.

Though varieties of this nature have no particular philatelic significance, there can be no harm in placing on record the fact that they exist. There is, in fact, one instance where a variety of a similar kind is catalogued, namely the Orange Free State 1/2d on 3d of 1896 without bar (S.G. 80). This was put in the catalogue many years ago, before philatelic opinion was so well formed as it is now. It is safe to say that if the catalogues were re-written this variety would be omitted. —Philatelic Journal of Great Britain.

FUTURE DEL.-STOCK TRANSFER

There is some question as to whether the recent ruling of the Department regarding the sale of future delivery and stock transfer stamps is applicable to both unused and used stamps. Some are contending that the ruling applies only to unused specimens. We shall try and secure information covering the point at issue and we hope to settle the matter in the very near future.

Don't Be A Mourner

A year from now many collectors will be regretting that they failed to put away a few of the special Exhibition sheets of the White Plains stamps. This sheet of 25 stamps, with its "International Philatelic Exhibition" on the top margin, "New York, N. Y." on the bottom and plate numbers on four sides, is sure to enhance in value. Uncle Sam never before put out anything of the kind. No Government issue ever before was so closely attached to philately.

I offer a single sheet of any of the four plate numbers for only $1.00. Four sheets, one of each number, for $3.50. The four plate numbers are 18770, 18771, 18773, and 18774.

If you want to make a profitable investment, let me sell you ten sheets of each number, forty sheets in all, for $27.50.

BRITISH BRING HIGH PRICES

Sale of the Stockton Buzby Collection Brings a Total of $9,048.00

High prices were paid last week for fine unused copies of British Colonial stamps of the twentieth century issue at the sale of the Stockton Buzby collection of Cincinnati held by George B. Sloane at the Collectors Club, 51 West Forty-eighth Street. Walter S. Scott, the auctioneer, said that while the prices set the standard of value for many recently issued stamps, the sale was a striking object lesson of the increasing importance in philatelic circles of twentieth century collective interest.

Mr. Buzby was a discriminating collector and all the stamps were of the finest unused condition. In many cases individual copies brought considerably more than standard catalogue prices. The entire collection brought $9,048.

The highest price paid for a single stamp was $320 paid for the 1 rupee issue of Mesopotamia, 1922, surcharged on the Turkish 10 piastre stamp, lacking the Turkish word "Reshad." The next highest was $161 for the £2 stamp of Rhodesia, red-brown on bluish paper. The £10 stamp of the same country, 1901 issue, sold for $75, and $92 was paid for the £1, issue of 1924. While this stamp is listed in the catalogue, it was never issued for postal use in Rhodesia.

A pair of £1 stamps of South West Africa, known as the second setting of that issue, sold for $113. A pair of the same value, first setting, sold for $31.50, while $30 was paid for a pair of the 10 shilling issue of the same setting. For a pair of the 5 penny postage die, 1923 issue, $47 was paid.

What is termed the rarest stamp in the issue of the Island of Malta, the 10 shilling of 1919, sold for $131. An error stamp of the Island of Niue, being the 1 shilling, 1903, with the surcharge "Tahae," meaning "thief" in the Maori language, by which the stamp is popularly known as the thief shilling, sold for $61.—New York Times.

A BENNINGTON COMMEMORATIVE

By ARTHUR F. STONE.

As a member of the Vermont Sesqui-Centennial Commission that is arranging for the celebration of the 150th anniversary of Vermont statehood and the battle of Bennington, on Aug. 16, I take pleasure in giving you the official news about the proposed postage stamp. Mr. John Spargo of Bennington, chairman of the Commission, has informed the other members of the Sesqui-Centennial Commission that Postmaster General New has agreed to issue a Bennington commemorative stamp in recognition of the 150th anniversary of the battle of Bennington, which will be celebrated Aug. 16, next. This is the first time that Vermont has been honored by having a postage stamp made by the government though the postmaster at Brattleboro issued a five-cent stamp in 1846, which is catalogued at $1,200.

ANOTHER COMMEMORATIVE
We have received from Walter C. Burrus a clipping from the Albany press which indicates the issuing of a new stamp commemorating the 150th anniversary of the Burgoyne campaign. It will be celebrated from July to October this year at several historic points in New York, among them being Saratoga Springs. It is reported that the Department at Washington looks with favor upon the proposal. Developments are awaited.

Have You a Surplus of These?

We always want to buy for ready cash and at the top of the market anything fine in early U. S. stamps or covers. If you have a specialized collection of any stamps or series; a find of old correspondence; an accumulation of 3c '51s, '57s or '61s on or off cover; patriotic covers of the Civil War, either Confederate or Union, or of the Spanish American war; a few thousand Bank Note issues, even the common 2c and 3c stamps if there are enough to bother with.

Send them to us with your best cash price. Particularly if you have items you think are worth more than anyone else will pay, for that is just the kind we want. Our check or the stamps will come to you by return mail if you ask it.

Just now we are anxious to spend some real money for fine items, but don't want the culls at any price.

Written for MEKEEL'S.
LEEWARD ISLANDS, 11-2d
By HARRY E. HUBER.
Britain's penny postage with the Colonies, inaugurated on Christmas Day, 1898, was made reciprocal by the Leeward Islands Federation from the same date. The Federation was also among the first of the Colonies in the West Indies to accept the proposals of the United States Post Office for an exchange of letters at the domestic rates, and on March 1, 1915, penny postage came into operation between the Presidencies of the Federation, and the United States, and vice versa. The foreign letter rate was then 2½d and the registration fee 2d.
By an Order-in-Council of August 9, 1916, and made effective from September 1, 1916 (until 31st March 1917), the letter rate from Antigua, St. Kitts-Nevis, and Dominica to places in the British Empire outside of the Leeward Islands Colony, was increased by ½d (as a war tax), and by Order-in-Council of Dec. 29, 1916 (effective Feb. 1, 1917), this was made applicable to the United States, with no time limit set. By a third Order-in-Council of February 21, 1917, the regulations of the earlier Order-in-Council of August 9, 1916, were extended from April 1, 1917, "until rescinded."
Another Order-in-Council of August 9, 1916, effective September 1, 1916, and with no time limit, ruled that letters from the British Virgins to the British Empire, outside of the Leeward Islands Colony, should be taxed 1d, and parcels leaving the Presidency, and those arriving, containing dutiable matter, 3d. Only the letter tax of 1d was made applicable to the United States by an Order-in-Council of December 29, 1916, effective February 1, 1917.
The Order-in-Council affecting Montserrat was not made until May 9, 1917, on letters to the British Empire (outside of the Federal limits) and the United States, a ½d war tax, with effect from May 15, 1917, until rescinded.
With these war taxes in force the letter rate from Antigua, St. Kitts-Nevis, Dominica and Montserrat to the British Empire, and the United States, was 1½d, and from the British Virgins, 2d. At the time, none of the Presidential stamp series, included a 1½d denomination stamp. The ½d Postage & Revenue stamps of Antigua, Dominica, Montserrat and St. Kitts-Nevis were overprinted appropriately, and in the British Virgins, the 1d and 3d received the WAR STAMPS overprint.
Antigua.—The ½d green, Royal Arms and Presidential Seal design of 1903 of Antigua, overprinted "WAR STAMP" in black, was issued October 10, 1916. On October 1, 1917, appeared with the color of the overprint changed to red. In May, 1918, a 1½d stamp was issued for the combined letter rate of 1d and the war tax of ½d. This was printed in orange, and overprinted "WAR STAMP," in black, in the same type as used for the ½d war stamps, and it was legalized by an Order-in-Council of February 21, 1919. This 1½d stamp does not exist without the "WAR STAMP" overprint.
St. Kitts-Nevis.—In the United Presidency of St. Kitts-Nevis, the ½d green, Seal of St. Kitts design of 1903 (Columbus sighting land), received the "WAR TAX" overprint in black, and was issued in October 1916. A 1½d stamp, in the same design printed in orange made appearance July 24, 1918, with "WAR STAMP" overprint in small letters. This stamp, like the 1½d of Antigua, does not exist without the special overprint, and was legalized by the same Order-in-Council of February 21, 1919, relating to the 1½d stamp of Antigua.
Dominica.—In Dominica, the ½d green, View of Roseau type of 1903, was overprinted in red, in two lines "WAR TAX—ONE HALFPENNY," and placed on sale, September 1, 1916. On March 18, 1918, it was issued with the WAR TAX overprint applied locally in black. The original overprint plate was sent out from London, and the words "ONE HALFPENNY" partially scraped away, or uninked, and on many stamps these words appear in Albino. This was merely a temporary issue, as in July 1918, the ½d appeared with "WAR TAX" overprint, in black, in large block letters, applied in London. A 1½d stamp formed by making a special printing from the Roseau keyplate, and the 2½d duty plate, in orange, and then overprinting in red, in 2 lines, "WAR TAX—1½d" with two short horizontal bars on either side of the value, was issued February 1919. It was legalized by an Order-in-Council of January 25, 1919.

By an Order-in-Council of January 25, 1919, and effective January 27, 1919, a tax of 3d, was levied on all parcels leaving the Presidency for the British Empire, outside the Colony. A 3d stamp, violet on yellow, with "WAR TAX" overprint in red, was issued at the same time as the 1½d on 2½d in February 1919.

In the next year (June 10, 1920), another printing of the 2½d was made in orange, and overprinted in black "1½d," the same as before, but with the "WAR TAX" portion of the overprint omitted.

A definite 1½d stamp was provided, in 1921 by using the Roseau keyplate,

British Virgin Islands.—The 1d carmine, and 3d violet on yellow, King George, small head type, DLR-1888, received the "WAR STAMP" overprint in black, in small letters, and were issued at Road Town, Tortola, October 26, 1916. The 2d was not overprinted for use as the combined letter and war tax rate.

Montserrat.—Montserrat which was provided with a ½d green "WAR STAMP" printed in green, in the King's head and Seal type, and overprinted in red, this was issued October 8, 1917. With the overprint applied in black, it appeared in May, 1918. A temporary 1½d stamp was issued March 6, 1919 (legalized by an Order-in-Council of April 2nd, 1919), and made by printing in orange from the keyplate design, and overprinting "1½d" in the small value tablet at the top, and "WAR STAMP" across the center of the stamp—the two being in black and applied from the same overprint plate.

Penny postage in the United Kingdom was abandoned June 1, 1918, for a 1½d rate. Two years later (June 1, 1920) this gave way to a rate of 2d for the first ounce, and 1d for subsequent ounces, only to suffer a further change, on June 13, 1921, when the rate for "subsequent ounces" was made 1½d.

The United States entered the world war on April 7, 1917, and by Act of Congress approved October 3, 1917, the domestic letter rate was raised from 2 cents to 3 cents an ounce, effective November 2, 1917. This affected all foreign letters taking the domestic rate, including the Leeward Islands Federation. The 2c letter rate was restored July 1, 1919.

PRECANCELS OF CLAYTON, DEL.

By A. C. LEDUC.

In the central part of Delaware is a town of less than 1,000 people—Clayton—from which has come more different types of precancels than any other town in the state. There is a large volume of postal business for the size of the town, due largely to the great amount of printed matter sent out by a local Catholic colored industrial school. The Post Office at Clayton employs one clerk besides the Postmaster and in order to handle the business it has been necessary to make use of precancelled stamps for many years. All parcels received at the Clayton Post Office from the public are sent out franked with precancelled stamps, which are always kept on hand.

Clayton precancels can be divided into two classes: First, those made at the Post Office with the rubber stamps and, Second, those made at the local school. The precancels made at the Post Office are made by using a rubber hand-stamp provided by the P. O. Dept. This is used so that the cancellation words "CLAYTON DEL" read either up or down on the stamps. Owing to some careless work a few are done normal or inverted and a few doubles also occur. Style U-79 was the first rubber precancel hand-stamp used at this Post Office and appears on the 1c perf. 12 of the 1912 issue, some values of the perf. 10 issue and those of later issues. Since 1924 this type has given way to style U-75, which is now in use. Red ink was formerly used in precancelling with the rubber stamp, but since 1924 black ink has been used exclusively. Stamps cancelled in red ink with styles U-75 are extremely scarce. Likewise, the present issue precancelled in red with U-79 are very scarce.

There have been three types of printed precancels used here. The first one is

"CLAYTON DEL" in two lines of serif capitals without lines or bars, occurs only on stamps of the 1c perf. 10, perf. 11, perf. 12, and the 1c Pilgrim. There are errors, the scarcest one of which is one where the N of Clayton is misprinted between the Y and T. The inverted 1c Pilgrim of this issue are very common. The second printed type is the one similar to U-73. This occurs normally inverted and many other ways, but normals are by far the most plentiful. The 1c perf. 10, 1c perf. 11, 1c perf. 12, 1c and 1½c of the present issue have been precancelled with type. The third printed type is by the most interesting and the most plentiful. It came into use with the advent of the increase of postal rates in 1925. It was a hurried job there are many varieties of spacing and arrangement of words. This type consists of two lines of capitals and lower case letters with lines or bars, reminding one of W. H. Burry, Conn., type IV, except that there are no lines. On the 1½c perf. 11 find them cancelled normal, inverted, double normal. There are also placed type whereby Clayton is inverted and Del. Normal; Clayton normal at bottom and Del inverted at the top. precancels made at the local school always typeset. By being typeset are found many errors, especially arrangement of the two words of imprint.

The precancels made at this school placed on mail matter there. This mail is then ready to be sorted for its destination as soon as it reaches the Post Office, thereby saving a great deal of work for the Postmaster and assistant.

As Clayton is not an office of the class it gets its postal supplies from the Wilmington Post Office. For that reason Clayton has at times been the victim of many of the left-overs from the Wilmington office, particularly odd sized memoratives which were not liked by clerks in the latter office. They used them up as quickly as possible, usually via the precancel method.—Precancel Gazette.

NOTES ABOUT EXHIBITIONS

By JOHN N. LUFF.

The following article is taken from "Scott's Philatelic Journal," 1 W. 47 St., N. Y. City. It sets up a subject of vital interest and we hope to be pleased to hear from any interested collector. Not over three hundred words, and yet more than that number will make the article all the more acceptable.—Ed.)

Philatelic exhibitors promise to be numerous in the next two or three years. The following have been announced:

Montevideo, March, 1927.
Strasbourg, June, 1927.
Luxembourg, Sept., 1927.
Monte Carlo, Feb., 1928.
Barcelona, 1929.

At the time of the exhibition last October we heard it said several times: "Now that this has been such a success, suppose you will have an exhibition every year." Those who made such remarks were evidently without experience in the staging of exhibitions. Affairs of this scope cannot be undertaken annually because the labor and expense involved are too great. The work of organization, preparation and installation is much greater than would be conceived by anyone who has not gone through it. They call for a great expenditure of time and money, mostly by a few men. A big international exhibition can be successfully carried through about once in ten years.

If the number of large exhibitions is to be limited, there is nothing to prevent the holding of smaller ones in various cities. Only a very few people could be expected to journey from the Pacific Coast to New York, but a goodly number would go to San Francisco. In the same way, cities in various parts of the country might be expected to draw from their own and neighboring states excellent attendance at stamp exhibitions. Such exhibitions need not be regarded as shows. With good management and publicity, they might expect support from collectors all over the country. New York has the will to lend a hand to exhibitions in other cities and there is every reason to think they would be aided and encouraged by collectors generally. The philatelic press throughout the world has published flattering reports of the exhibition. The London Philatelist for October and November presented a very careful and scholarly review. It was quite apparent that it was the work of an advanced philatelist and student and one who has had much experience as a judge. The articles were credited to "Our Special Correspondent." We venture the guess that this correspondent had a dual personality and is known to the world by the names W. Dornier Beckton and Benjamin Goodfellow. With their work as Judges and the pressure of other exhibition matters, it is surprising that they were able to observe and record so many important things in the collections that were displayed.

Mr. A. J. Sefi has devoted a large part of two numbers of the Philatelic Journal of Great Britain to a well-considered review of the exhibition as a whole and of individual exhibits.

The exhibition received much praise and the little criticism was usually of a kindly nature. We have noticed only one statement that we feel calls for correction. Mr. F. J. Melville, in his article in the Stamp Collectors' Fortnightly, says: "Many of the principal awards went to the members of the jury, only the British judges insisting that their own exhibits should be classed hors concours." This is incorrect and casts an unmerited slur on a prominent philatelist and member of the Jury of Awards. At the time that Judge Robert S. Emerson accepted the invitation to act as a juror, he stated that his exhibits would be entered "not for competition" and he adhered to that decision.

It should also be remembered that Mr. Lichtenstein withdrew his unrivalled Swiss collection from competition.

Two questions of long standing in connection with exhibitions have been touched upon in some of the reviews and have been discussed by collectors. These are:

Should Judges be allowed to enter exhibits for competition?

Should collections that have won gold medals at previous exhibitions be barred from competing except in the Championship class or one of similar import?

We believe these questions have been considered by the organizers of all stamp exhibitions for at least twenty years past, have been the subject of endless discussions and lengthy articles in the philatelic press, but satisfactory decisions are yet to be reached. If anyone can present an acceptable answer to the first and a workable solution to the second, he will deserve more than a palm of honor. A halo, wings and a harp might be regarded as suitable rewards.

It is obvious that something should be done to separate the "super" collections from those not so extremely developed. Otherwise the former will always overwhelm the latter and result in discouragement to the owner. There was an illustration of this in the late exhibition. Two excellent collections of the stamps of a certain country were displayed. Each owner felt that his exhibit was fine enough to entitle it to a gold medal. But a third collection was entered that was overflowing with superlative things. As a matter of course, it received the gold medal. The other two exhibitors were so discouraged that they placed their collections on sale, then and there.

One point about competitions and awards seems to escape the understanding of some collectors. They hold that if gold, silver and bronze medals are offered in a certain class and section and only one exhibit is entered, it should receive the gold medal, because it is the best exhibit shown. The Jury held that an exhibit should receive only such an award as it merited and even that it might receive no award whatever. The mere fact that certain medals were offered in the prospectus did not make it mandatory that they must be awarded, unless deserving exhibits were shown.

It sometimes happens that a collection that has won a good award at one exhibition receives a medal of less importance when greater and stronger competition is encountered.

Here are a few other questions for consideration:

Shall future exhibitions be smaller than the recent one?

If so, shall this be brought about by restricting the number of classes and sections?

Shall exhibitors be limited as to the number of frames for each exhibit or shall they be allowed all the space they desire? In the past when the number of frames has not been restricted, it has almost invariably happened that they were oversubscribed and a general cut had to be made. Restriction worked well, on the whole, in 1926, but most of us would have enjoyed seeing larger displays from some of the great collections.

Shall there be a limit to the number of first awards an exhibitor may receive,

243 Varieties, almost Complete
$1050.00 Cat. Value for $165.00

This collection, with one or two exceptions, is complete. Exactly 243 stamps in all, in finest mint condition and all listed by Scott. Every stamp is signed and guaranteed.

The 1927 catalogue value is about $960.00, but twelve of the stamps were advanced, less than a month after appearance of the catalogue (see Scott's Monthly Journal for October, 1926), a total of almost $100.00. No. 85a, for instance, advanced from $5 to $25; No. 86a from $6 to $25; No. 89 from $2 to $10, and so on.

The actual catalogue value today is therefore in excess of $1,050.00.

Hejaz stamps usually bring from one-third to half catalogue at retail. Our price for the almost-complete collection, with many real rarities, averages considerably less than one-sixth!

Here is an opportunity for any progressive dealer to make a purchase on which unusually large profits can readily be realized.

For the collector, speculator or investor, the collection represents not only a good sound investment, but also one with remarkable future possibilities.

Interesting Facts about Hejaz

This remote country, formerly under Turkish rule, is situated near the north-east shore of the Red Sea. In the most barren and desolate part of Asia. It is more like a huge desert than anything else, about 100,000 square miles in area and supporting an estimated population of 300,000 Bedouins. Most of these people are typical nomads, moving from place to place in small groups and continually fighting among themselves.

The two chief cities of Mecca and Medina possess great historical merit as the birthplace and burial place of Mohammed. Constant pilgrimages to this Holy Land are being made by Mohammedans from all parts of the globe and until quite recent years the chief source of revenue of the country was the "blood money" extracted from these pilgrims in return for safe passage across the desert.

During the world war the Arab movement for complete independence from Turkey was encouraged and sponsored by Great Britain. The revolt was successful and Hejaz was recognized by Turkey as an independent state, over which the British promptly established a Protectorate.

Hussein Ibn Ali assumed the title "King of Hejaz" on June 5, 1916, and one of his first accomplishments was to reorganize the postal service, for which a series of three postage stamps was immediately issued.

The turbulent state of the country, plus the apparently mercenary and inefficient methods of the postal department, soon resulted in a deluge of provisional issues and commemoratives some of which, because of their short use and limited number, have already become relatively scarce.

Unexpected events soon brought this orgy to an end, and early in 1925 the last set of stamps appeared and Hejaz passed permanently out of existence as a stamp issuing country.

The stamps of Hejaz stand as symbols of the rise and fall of a bizarre government. The issues were very limited, but so little has been known of the country that the attention of collectors has never been focused very strongly on her stamps; consequently the comparatively small quantities which have recently appeared on the market are selling at prices considerably out of proportion to their actual scarcity.

Scott has already advanced some of the prices (see Monthly Journal for October, 1926). We do not know whether future catalogue quotations will be upward or downward. But regardless of the trend of the catalogue, which often does not reflect the true state of the market, we feel that the stamps of Hejaz will become increasingly popular as more is known about them, and that this condition will be reflected in higher market values in the near future. We believe that the collector or dealer who buys these stamps at today's prices will some day have cause to feel complimented on his perception in making the investment.

ROUGH the courtesy of Rudolph Dinnebie we have received a rather fine cover. It consists of the current stamp in an artistic frame in the center of the envelope. Upon the left is the date 1847 and upon the right 1927. The inscription "First U. S. Large Stamp Approved March 3rd." The postmark is from New York with date March 3, 1927.

A. STEINMETZ of Philadelphia being congratulated by his friends on the fact that he secured a special silver medal at the recent exhibition held under the auspices of the American Philatelic Society. Mr. Steinmetz exhibit consisted of bi-sections on covers of British West Indies. The WEEKLY joins in congratulations.

DREW R. PERRY of Providence, R. I., has recently removed to Room 16 Exchange Place, where he has a well-lighted room, increased office and a fine stock of stamps and philatelic supplies. We are glad to give Perry this complimentary mention for his return for the splendid support according the WEEKLY in securing new subscriptions.

37th anniversary of Garfield-Perry Stamp Club, Cleveland, Ohio, observed Saturday, March 19. An auction and an auction sale was held during the afternoon in Hotel Cleveland a dinner at 7 o'clock. A full account will no doubt appear soon.

CINNATI COLLECTORS CLUB held its regular bi-monthly meeting on 3 with 35 members and three visitors attending. S. W. Richey exhibited specialized collection of U. S. 1847-1851 on and off cover, in three volumes with strips, pairs, types and cancellations. Mr. Richey needs very few stamps to complete his very wonderful collection.—CLEM A. SCHMALZ.

C. BUNDLIE sends us a clipping from Grand Forks, N. D. Daily World, which states that Charles Laack Pack, president of the American Forestry Association, has presented Cornell University with a gift of $130,000.00, an endowment for a research professorship in forest soils.

MARCH 5 the Michigan Stamp Club of Detroit elected officers for the coming year. Pres. Charles Brisley declined a re-nomination after having held three years but was re-elected by a large majority. The other officers are as follows: Clarence Maher, president; Horace Hartwell, treasurer; Alex Livingston, recording secretary; and Dr. H. Prescott Hoskins chairman of the executive committee. The following appointed officers were selected: H. Jackson, auction manager; Herman W. Boers, publicity. The annual banquet was held March 19. Mr. Boers will no doubt send us an account of the event.

THE PRECANCELS OF NEWARK, DEL.

By A. C. LEDUC.

Newark is a small industrial town thirteen miles from Wilmington, having a population of about 2,200. It is also the seat of the University of Delaware, the largest educational institution in the state.

Previous to the Christmas seasonal rush of 1924 this town had not used precancels of any kind that are properly called such and come under the standard listing. They had used a box package cancel which covered two stamps. This outfit was used to cancel sheets of various denominations of stamps before being placed on sale at the parcel post window. In Dec., 1924, this Post Office received a 25 subject rubber hand-stamp which was used to precancel the existing stock on hand. This style is U-53. Most of the stamps so treated were used at the parcel post window to expedite the handling of Christmas mail. One large printing house in the town has used some of the lower values in quantities for the mailing of printed matter. Most of the precancelling work has been done quite carefully for hand work, and inverts or positions other than normal are purely accidental.

Of the old issues precancelled I have seen the following: Perf. 10x10, 1c; perf. 11—1, 6, 9, 11, 12, 13 normal and 9c down and 13c inverted. The 11, 12 and 13's are really scarce items, as only a few were on hand at the time precancelling was begun. Of the new series I have seen the following, all perf. 11—1½, 3, 4, 5, 7, 8, 9, 10, 11, 14, 15, 20, 25, 30, 50, all normal and the 8c invert. Of the perf. 10 rotary I have seen the 1½, and 3c normal and the 5c inverted. A small number of Huguenot Walloons were on hand at the time precancelling was begun and of these the 1c is found nor., inv., double nor. and down; the 2c is found nor. and inv. and the 5c normal only. The 2c and 5c are very scarce, as only a few were on hand. Of the due stamps I have seen the 1c nor., the 2c nor. and also double normal.

Up to the present precancels have been used at Newark only during the holiday period. They are used at that time on all packages handed in at the parcel window.—Precancel Gazette.

Superb United States !!

I have just purchased the entire collection of United States Stamps, the property of

MR. E. R. JACOBS of CHICAGO

This collection, from the standpoint of condition, was probably the finest in the country. I am now prepared to submit selections of any stamp or stamps to collectors who appreciate superb condition—and expect to pay for it.

The feature of this collection is of course the 1c, 1851 stamps which were Mr. Jacob's pets, for years, and I now have for sale a practically complete reconstructed Plate I, late; also the rare Plate II, about 70% completed, and duplicate copies of all Plate varieties listed in the Specialized U. S. Catalogue as well as many other positions and varieties. Want lists are solicited from those desiring any particular type or plate position or variety of the U. S. 1c 1851 stamp.

The 1851, 3c stamp—There is also a very fine lot of these 3c stamps including all varieties listed in the Specialized U. S. Catalogue, and many varieties which are not listed. Also a wonderful lot of cancellations on these stamps. Want lists are solicited for anything in the U. S. 3c 1851 issue.

While this purchase represents a large investment, I am still in the market to buy anything fine in United States Stamps, from a single stamp or cover to a large Collection and can use especially at present a Collection strong in unused 20th Cent. stamps, either singles or blocks. I am prepared to pay a good price and spot cash for the right kind of material.

If you have any fine United States stamps for Sale let me hear from you.

EDITORIAL

The recent announcements in the WEEKLY regarding the possession and sale of stock transfer and future delivery stamps that were based on a decision of the U. S. Commissioner of Internal Revenue have attracted much attention. Several correspondents have reported that they have been assured by officers of the Internal Revenue department that the holdings of collectors are exempt from the prohibition implied by the order, and that only the unused stamps are subject to the restriction. An officer of the department in Chicago said that the decision did not apply to used stamps, but to unused only, and that it was inspired by the irregularity in the handling of the unused stamps in one instance, or by a theft of the stamps. Definite information from headquarters will allow of a proper construction to be placed on the edict and the question will be settled, insofar as it affects collectors.

A collector whose good judgment has never been called to account, has written to say that he hopes that we shall not call for a public discussion on the propriety of further commemorative issues. He says that a former debate had no definite conclusion, and it is unlikely that there has been any change of sentiment since our poll was taken. He thinks that discussions of the kind do not conduce to good feeling and that it is just as well to accept things as they come. Our friend is entitled to his opinion, but the question now before the house is whether in view of the latest information about coming commemoratives, the point of view has been changed. When the commemorative issue becomes merely an incident rather than an event in our philatelic history, the effect of it is not a happy one. The philatelic newspaper is supposed to reflect the thoughts of collectors and indications are not wanting to show that some of those who heretofore have received the commemoratives with a graceful gesture are now disposed to say that they have worn out their welcome. In weighing the question of special issues, it is always borne in mind as a mitigating factor, that the hands of the authorities are clean, and that there is no disposition to exploit collectors financially. Nevertheless, the tolerance of the patient collector is near the breaking-point, and the "last straw" will do the damage.

A collector who is partial to the penny black of Great Britain writes as follows, and we are not averse to giving the stamp a boost: "Quite a number of collectors are now prefacing their collections, irrespective of the country in which they are interested, with a page of the Mother of All Stamps, the Penny Black of Great Britain. The popular way of procedure seems to be six copies, three with red cancellations and three with black cancellations. The first stamp from the early plates, intense black; the second, the ordinary variety; and the third, in grey-black or worn plates. These, when arranged in two rows of three, make an excellent introduction to any album. Of course, a Mulready or colored cancellation is an improvement."

As an example of conservative philatelic statement, the following observation that appeared in a newspaper whose name we are unable to preserve for posterity, is awarded the grand prix of a gilded nut-shell: "Collectors of stamps do not despise the stamps that have been obliterated and in some circles, the stamp devotees have special books in which to place the different issues which become more plentiful year by year."

Slowly, the influence of the old collector is waning and if he does not conform to the modern ideals, he soon will be a solitary figure standing alone in his unyielding devotion to past traditions. Once in a while, one of the old irconcilable collectors writes us to contrast to-day with the past, with disparagement to the present order. While we are not without sympathy for the view-point of these oldtimers, they are at fault in saying that philately is not now on par with collecting of decades ago. In fact, the progress that has been made in philately has benefited all collectors, even the old collector whose early stamps have become more valuable by reason of the augmented number of collectors. The veteran is prone to remember his collecting pleasures and forget the little disappointments that were a concomitant of collecting, when he was young, in greater number than they are met to-day. The outstanding fact is that collecting has never been so easy as it is in these later times. Attractive and interesting stamps are to be had for a song, without stirring from your seat, when forty or fifty years ago, the collector had to impress all sorts of near-stamps to make a showing in his album; and when the names of stamp dealers were sold among the boys for a few cents, at least. Then the buyer sought the seller and now, as is proper, the seller seeks his customers.

Mr. G. H. Crouch, Toronto, Canada, writes: "The long expected air mail service, Detroit-London-Toronto-Buffalo, is scheduled to begin on May 15th, with both eastern and western trips. According to available information, the first air fleet will consist of nine and eighteen passenger capacity planes of the twin-motor type. Everything will be provided to make traveling comfortable and there will be a baggage allowance of 100 pounds for each passenger. What will interest stamp collectors is the fact that planes for carrying mail will eventually be put in use, according to a news note in the Toronto Star. No definite details are available, as yet, but just as soon as possible, information for those desiring first flight covers will be given."

As that grand old philatelic savant, Prof. Larned C. Ranium would say, the recrudescence of interest in 20th century U. S. is little short of phenomenal. Dealers say that collectors will not be happy until they get them. We have received a leaflet from Mr. Richard Walton, Schenectady, N. Y., that tells in detail of the Pan-American issue of 1901, with special reference to the 2-cent. We quote: "The day the announcement was made that the government has decided to issue a series of postage stamps commemorative of the Pan-American Exposition, George H. Daniels, general passenger agent of the New York Central went to Washington and laid before the Postoffice Department, the suggestion that the Empire State Express be adopted as the design for the 2c stamp, arguing that the Empire State Express was the most famous train in the world; that more had been said and written about it than all other trains that had been placed in service, and that the advertising of this train had been one of the greatest factors in bringing before the other nations of the world, the superiority of American machinery and manufactures, generally, and that as the Pan-American Exposition was at Buffalo, and the New York Central was primarily a New York institution, it really deserved this recognition on the part of the government. The result of this conference was the adoption of the Empire State Express, according to seemingly well authenticated statements, as the subject for the 2c stamp, and the next step was that Mr. Daniels furnished the Department with several photographs of the famous train. The engraving was made from one taken when the train was running sixty-four miles an hour." It is said that Mr. Daniels arranged to have 100,000 stamps sent through the postmaster at New York, for delivery to the New York Central; and one of the stamps was sent, "wrapped in oil paper," in a tiny envelope with two circulars, enclosed in a larger envelope to a list of

COLONIAL NOTES
By "CALABAR."

Gold Coast.—New designs are becoming quite a vogue with a steadily increasing group of Colonies, thus proving a most welcome and refreshing departure from the old stereotyped formats of the Edwardian and early Georgian issues. Amongst those Colonies which have made an attempt to break away from the more or less conventional types during the last few years, may be mentioned Cyprus, Malta, Caymans, Virgins, Gambia, etc. Ere long, we may see this list belled by yet another Colony, viz., Gold Coast. Some time ago suggestions were invited from officials and local residents, and whilst none of the designs submitted were considered suitable for use, a new series is still under consideration. According to latest rumours, a pictorial scene will be incorporated in the design, in addition to the Sovereign's head—somewhat similar, perhaps, to the current series of Gambia.

So. Rhodesia.—A most interesting illustrated list of the various imperforate So. Rhodesian stamps has appeared in the December issue of the South African Philatelist. The range of varieties is truly surprising, such a new-comer to the ranks of stamp-issuing Colonies as So. Rhodesia is, the current series dating from July 1924. Gibbons lists only three varieties, viz., 1/2d, 1 1/2d and 6d, imperf. between (pair). There are many more, however, as the list given by our southern contemporary shows. A few of the more unusual types are as follows:—

Imperf. at bottom, from bottom row of top panes—1/2d, 1d, 1 1/2d; imperf. at top, from top row of bottom panes—1d, 1 1/2d; imperf. at right, from left row of left panes and imperf. at left, from first row of right panes—1d; imperf. at left between stamp and margin and imperf. between first and second rows—1/2d. Some of these "missing perforation" varieties are very scarce; others are much commoner, and may be picked up quite cheaply.

BOX 3, JACKSON HEIGHTS, NEW YORK
J. Avery Wells, Telephone, Havemeyer 8350 J. Van Kirk Wells

Readers who run across these items will do well to lay them aside until definite information as to their comparative values comes to hand.

Ascension.—The overprints are still on the upgrade, with London prices slowly rising and approaching New York quotations. Last summer, the set was obtainable for around £1 in England, although here the price was substantially the same then as now ($8). At present, the London market value is approximately £1 10s, and judging by the demand for this particular series as reflected by dealers' offers, prices there will ultimately correspond to the figures realized on the American market. The history of these provisionals shows quite clearly that, in spite of the many New Issue Services and other facilities for placing current stamps at the disposal of everyone, the day is not yet past when sets, which have been "on issue" for a considerable period, may double and treble in value within a few years' time.

Sources of Supply.—The following paragraph (from a recent issue of the Philatelic Magazine) is well worth "passing on," as it settles quite concisely a question which many people have raised from time to time.

"Ever and anon comes the query: Where can I buy British Colonial stamps in London at face value? The answer, in one word, is nowhere. The idea to the contrary evidently emanates from the fact that the Crown Agents in London accept orders from dealers for new issues at face value, plus a small commission, and keep back a sufficient quantity to meet these indents, but no stock is maintained, and none but English dealers are supplied."

"Speculative" stamps.—The recent "Port Fuad" commemoratives have raised once again in the philatelic press the usual condemnations which accompany the issue of speculative or semi-speculative stamps. Within the past few years, the matter has gained considerable prominence, owing to the rather large numbers of stamps of this nature amongst the post-war issues of the various Colonies. The St. Kitts Tercentenary series, the New Hebrides provisionals, the Malta "Postage" set, Barbuda, Kuwait, the Ascension overprints, and the numerous Egyptian commemoratives are all well known examples. In each instance, criticisms of varying intensities appeared in the more conservative journals, most of which purported to represent, more or less accurately, readers' opinions. Now, whilst certain issues, such as the "Port Fuad" overprints, are generally frowned upon, there are many others, I believe, which are regarded with little, if any, disfavour by collectors, as a whole. In fact, I suspect the situation is almost the reverse of what certain editors and writers would have us believe. Far from giving issues of this sort the "cold shoulder," collectors welcome them with feelings not unmixed with that peculiar pleasure, which only a new or an out-of-the-ordinary set of stamps can arouse. Speculative they may be; yet they come as a most welcome and refreshing variety. Not only this; they also serve to rouse new interest in the issues of the Colony from which they emanate,—a most important factor and one which may easily be underestimated. The Malta "Self-Government" and "Postage" overprints have accomplished this very thing—and are largely responsible for the popularity of modern Maltese stamps to-day. With St. Kitts it is much the same case. The Tercentenary series—branded in a footnote to the catalogue as "unnecessary and speculative"—has added to the issues of this charming West Indian Colony, a glamour which, in all likelihood, they would never have acquired had the now famous "Cricket set" failed to materialize (this, by the way, at one time, nearly happened!). The whole subject is, of course, a debatable one, and may be counted to bring forth in the future, a deal more of comment, both pro and con, than has yet appeared. One thing, however, is certain: most of the so-called speculative or semi-speculative stamps issued since 1920 have been readily absorbed. This fact, alone, shows plainly where collectors stand.

Portuguese Rulers

The stamps of Portugal, while it was still a monarchy, shows various pictures of its rulers. The first issues show a likeness of Queen Marie, who was the ruler from 1834 to 1853. Following her came two sets, with profile to right, showing pictures of King Pedro V who ruled from 1853 to 1861. Then the next sets show likenesses of King Luiz, who was ruler from 1861 to 1889. The full faced pictures on the sets of stamps of 1892 and 1895 are those of King Carlos, who was king from 1889 to 1908. The young man's picture on the issue of 1910, is that of King Manoel, the last king of Portugal. He was ruler from Feb. 1, 1908, to Oct., 1910, when the republic was proclaimed.—A. C. LeDuc.

Stamp News for the Juniors

Is there anything you want to know about stamps or stamp collecting? If so, write the editor. What would you like to see in this department? We have no way of knowing unless you tell us. Mr. Senior Collector, can't you give the boy collector about 50 words of encouragement along practical lines? Address your letter to the Beverly office.

Junior Gossip

—We have received a limerick from Allan Gilmour (12), Philadelphia, Pa. We are much obliged to Allan for his favor but it does not possess quite enough merit for us to print it this time.

—E. H. Irish wishes to know how to mount covers in an attractive manner. Our best suggestion is to make diagonal slits in the blank page about half an inch in length, and so placed that the corners of the envelope will fit into the openings.

—Louis Press sends us a new Canada cancellation, at least it looks new to us: —"The Postman is Your Salesman, Use Him."

—One of our Juniors, Willard Johnson, asks us two questions that may be of general interest. He wishes to know if any special significance can be attached to the fact that a stamp is not priced in the catalog. This may be attributed to lack of information upon the part of the publishers as to what the real value is. As regards the relative position of the ship on the 5c Norse stamp to the emblem at the right, this may be charged to poor registration in printing the stamp. This is found in many stamps printed in two colors.

—A little essay on Ireland comes to us from Edgar Welch, who writes:—"I am particularly interested in Irish stamps as I am mostly Irish myself." We are not printing Edgar's essay, but we think enough of his interest in this page to send him a stamp award.

Bank Note Papers

The Junior collector usually finds it difficult to classify the Bank Note issues which appeared from 1870 to 1882 inclusive. While the catalogue tells us that the issues of 1870 to 1875 printed by the National and Continental Bank Note Companies are on hard paper, and that the American prints are on soft paper, nevertheless the amateur cannot always tell one from the other. The easiest method by which these may be readily distinguished is to obtain certain stamps of the series of these issues that appear on the one paper only. By comparing and studying these two varieties, one will become familiar with the hard smooth surface of the earlier prints and the soft porous paper of the later issues. Two such stamps which may be purchased from any dealer are the 3c grill, Scott's No. 136 and the 1c re-engraved, No. 206. These two varieties may even be recognized by the amateur and they exist only on hard and soft paper respectively.

Stamp Nurses

Those who like to divide their collections into pictorial groups might do worse than devote a section to the nursing profession. There are many exponents in the stamp album.

Only recently we have had the Saar charity stamp with a nurse and her patient, and the similar Luxembourg charity issue of last year is also fresh in our memories. France, in her War Orphans series, gives us two war scenes the bombing of a hospital and the torpedoing of a hospital ship. Roumania's charity series of 1906 depicts the late Queen, "Carmen Sylva," nursing a wounded soldier, while the present Queen appears in nurse's garb in one of the designs of the Coronation issue.

In Lettland a nurse holds the shield of her tender protection between a wounded man and Death, who lurks in the background, and the recent Spanish Red Cross set gives us a view of Queen Ena in nursing uniform. Belgium and Estonia also provide items for our nursing collection. If stamps showing wounded soldiers are added, quite a considerable display can be made, to which can be annexed a section showing persons engaged in "works of charity and piety."—Stanley Gibbons Monthly Journal.

The Junior Dictionary

Ubique.—A Latin word meaning "everywhere" and found on certain values of a set of stamps issued by Newfoundland in 1918 known as the "Trail of the Caribou" series.

Udine.—The capital of the province of the same name in Venetia, Italy, which issued type-set stamps for local use in 1919.

U. G.—These letters, intended to indicate "Uganda Government," form the only inscription on the 1895 typewritten stamps for the Uganda Protectorate.

Uganda.—A British protectorate in Central Africa. Postage stamps were first issued in 1895 and in 1903 these were superseded by the combined issue for the East Africa and Uganda protectorates.

Unwatermarked.—Stamps printed on paper innocent of any sort of watermarked device.

A Well Fed Lion

The two King George stamps of Great Britain pictured in MEKEEL'S under date of Feb. 21 are not exactly alike. Picture No. 1 shows the stamp as it was first issued, but people soon noticed that the lion looked thin and hungry and it was called the "hungry lion" stamp.

Finally the British people felt so strongly in the matter that it was decided to show a well fed lion on their stamps. So the stamp was re-engraved and the heavy shading as is found in picture No. 2 was inserted on the new plate.

JACK BOGART (10 yrs.)

Our picture contest showing the two dies of the 1d English stamp was a marked success. The letter printed above is only one of the many received, and we wish that we had the room to print others. Jack Bogart in his letter has indicated the one great difference between these two dies, the body of the lion showing heavy lines in the re-engraved design.

We list the names of all those who sent in correct answers and thank them for their warm co-operation in this contest:—

2c White Plains, Plate Variety

One of our readers makes inquiry relative to the variety designated as dot over "S" to be found on one of the 2c White Plains stamps recently issued in panes of twenty-five at the International Philatelic Exhibition. It seems in the making of this plate that in some way a small defect causing a spot, which would be taken as a position dot if along the border of the stamp, appeared directly over the first "S" of "STATES" on the ninth stamp from the southwest pane of plate 1877. This dot is so clear that it may be readily seen with the naked eye. All stamps from this position on this pane from plate 1877 show the variety. As it is at times difficult to say which pane is which, due to the fact that all of them show for plate numbers, it is possible for a collector to become confused and think the variety is not present. If he has the plate number and it is from this pane, positively shows the oddity. If, however, he has one of the other three panes from this number, it does not show the variety.

Several have written to ask as whether this will be included in the new specialized catalogue. This, of course, a point for the Scott Company to decide but I doubt very much whether such variety is worthy of catalogue rank. They start to include items of this kind, will be necessary to materially increase the size of their present publication. PHILIP H. WARD, JR.

Rivers and Countries Names

A number of countries are named from rivers; sometimes from rivers that bound them; sometimes from rivers running through them.

A type of country named from bounding river is Uruguay. Perhaps you have noticed that most of the stamps bear the name of the country, as "República Oriental del Uruguay." This means "Republic East of the Uruguay." Your map will show you that this river separates Uruguay from the Argentine Republic.

Another boundary-named country is Orange River Colony. This began as the "Orange River Sovereignty," about 1838; became the Orange Free State in 1854; was forcibly christened Orange River Colony in 1900; and, in 1910, when it ceased to have separate stamps, it became part of the Union of South Africa with the name of Orange Free State restored. The Orange River, itself, was named by the early Dutch settlers of the Cape of Good Hope, in honor of the House of Orange, a line of rulers that won independence for Holland.

The name Transvaal means "across the Vaal." After the Orange Free State was settled, migrants from the Cape of Good Hope pushed further north, and settle beyond the Vaal River. The name "Vaal" means simply "yellowish and muddy," in South African Dutch.—STEPHEN G. RICH.

TWISTS AND TURNS

At the meeting of the Executive Board of the Society for Stamp Exhibitions, held March 7th, a graceful act was done in awarding Mr. Frank W. Crane of the New York Times, the sum of five hundred dollars for his work in a publicity sense, prior to the New York Exhibition and during its term. Mr. Crane is a philatelist whose news appreciation of his pursuit makes him a popular personage in our circle.

The Mason City, Iowa, Globe-Gazette, of February 28th, contained an obituary notice of L. R. Saunders, headed, "War Veteran Succumbs Here. Disease Contracted in Army Finally Wins Over Billy Saunders." From it we learn that Mr. Saunders was thirty years of age and that his invalidism dated from 1921. Reference is made to his stamp activities and he was a member of the Episcopal Church, the American Legion and the Elks. The tone of the notice is deeply sympathetic and is such as to impress us who knew Mr. Saunders only through correspondence with a sense of the patience and the courage of the young man.

The latest number of the United Stamp Company Herald deals with the German Colonies of which it provides a reference list and catalog that is thoroughly illustrated by stamp design and watermark. The prices quoted, add to the value of the compilation.

The meeting place of the Chicago Pre-cancel Club has been changed to the Sherman Hotel, where meetings are held on the second and fourth Friday of each month. The meetings of this newly-organized club are well attended and show that the interest in precanceled issues is keen among many collectors.

In the Stamp Hunter for March, Mr. MacLaren tells of experiences with "stuck down" collections that prove that many a stamp that looks physically fit when pasted down, becomes a wreck when it is removed from the page. This recital reminds us that a collector said that in an old collection that he got recently, some of the rare stamps were decalcomania pictures of them! Do our readers remember the decalcomania rage of years ago as having been applied to stamps? We don't.

In a letter from Brussels, Belgium, Mr. C. Bangs says that he has been in a hospital for five weeks, but that he expects to be about soon. It is his expectation to sail for home about April 4, 1927. Some time ago, we said that Mr. Bangs had intended to sail last January, but it is seen that his plans were disarranged. We rejoice to hear that he is almost out of the woods.

From several correspondents we have received green labels starring Eddie Cantor as a special delivery messenger boy, according to the central design. "Special Delivery" has place on the sticker and the mystic numbers "7" and "11" are in the lower corners.

We are pleased to learn that Mr. S. Newbury, Chicago, was elected to a position on the directory of the Association for Stamp Exhibitions at the recent meeting in New York. Mr. Newbury deserves this honor and is a worthy representative of Chicago on the board, where his selection meets with much favor.

The East London Philatelic Society Stamp Exhibition was held in London recently and one of its features was the distribution of envelopes bearing colonial issues, canceled by the postmark form in double triangle, "E.L.P.S., 5-1-27, Stamp Exhibition."

From Mr. P. Ehrenfeldt, Surrey, England, we have received a clipping from the London Telegraph, of February 21st, giving an interesting account of the Barbados Tercentenary and the "strange history" of the island.

UNITED STATES

Postage and Revenue

While I hold one of the finest, if not the best, stocks of the postage stamps of the United States in the hands of any professional and collector, nevertheless, right at the present time I much prefer to buy rather than to sell. While I want anything worth while and superb in the postal and revenue issues of the United States, I more especially desire:

- (1). Mint singles and mint blocks, 1847 to 1880.
- (2). Mint blocks, 1881 to 1900.
- (3). Bureau errors, including part perforates, inverts, etc.
- (4). Fine early covers.
- (5). Revenues—inverted centers.

The highest cash prices will be paid for such properties and these items are desired whether in small lots or in substantial collections. I do not ask for properties upon consignment but am pleased to purchase for prompt cash.

If you are thinking of selling your collection or duplicates, please communicate with me.

Bureau Plate Numbers

Through the courtesy of Mr. A. W. Hall, Director of the Bureau of Engraving & Printing, I am able to bring our list of plate numbers up to and including those issued to February 28, 1927. In this list we find the first of the 20c air mail plates, the first plate being number 18890. In view of the increased demand for air mail stamps, it will be noticed that four additional 10c plates have been made.

Plate No.	Denomination.	Class Ordinary.	Series.	Subjcts.
18882-18889	2c	"Cvd.	1922	400
18890-18894	20c Air Mail	"	1927	200

Air Mail Notes

In a recent chronicle, attention was called to special markings found on certain air mail covers posted on February 1st, the date on which the new 10c rate went into effect.

Mr. Raymond R. Freshwater has shown me further covers mailed on this date showing markings of interest. The following cities in addition to the regular postmark applied additional markings:

Des Moines applied a postmark which they placed on the front of the cover enclosed within a rectangle reading in four lines, "Des Moines, Iowa, Feb. 1, 1927, First Flight New Air Mail Rate 10 Cents Per Half Ounce." This was applied in magenta.

Portland, Ore., had a more portentous postmark illustrating an aeroplane stamped in black and reading, "First Flight U. S. Air Mail With Postage 10 Cents per Half Ounce."

LaCrosse, Wisconsin, stamped in magenta in three lines, "First Flight, Feb. 1, 1927, New Rate."

Iowa City used a violet rectangle reading, "Via Air Mail On First Trip" and put in manuscript, "At 10c Half Oz. Anywhere In U. S. A."

Omaha, Neb. showed the wing insignia of the Air Service together with "Via Aeroplane Mail, First Flight Air Mail Under New 10c Rate."

An identical marking was applied on a communication mailed from St. Joseph and as they are both in magenta, I am led to believe that both markings were applied at Omaha.

Bakersfield, Cal. used the special marking which they had on the occasion of the establishment of the airmail reading, "U. S. Air Mail, Seattle To Los Angeles."

Under date of March 7th the Postmaster General advertised for bids for covering the New York to Chicago section including the overnight service of the transcontinental air mail service. Bids are returnable at 12 Noon, March 24th next. He states that the contract for the western section of this route was recently awarded to the Boeing Air Plane Company of Seattle. The original bids on the eastern section were held unsatisfactory and thrown out.

The route is open to bidders regardless of residence. The schedule adopted will require an average flying speed of at least ninety miles per hour and bond in amount of $25,000 is to be furnished with the proposal. A contract bond of half a million dollars must be furnished by the successful bidder.

1920, 2c on 3c Provisional Envelopes

It will be recalled that a couple of years back, Mr. R. H. Mason published a list of all the 2c on 3c Provisional envelopes known at the time. This listed not only the dies but the sizes and watermarks as well. Mr. Mason has just furnished me with a list of additions which have been discovered since the booklet appeared.

BOOK REVIEW

The American Catalog of Airmail and First Day Covers is at hand from the Berkshire Exchange, Cumington, Mass. It lists all known flights of the United States, Canada, and Newfoundland and first day covers of the former. It is freely illustrated and is published by this firm in the interests of airmail and first day cover collecting. It is a very complete catalog and will prove a necessity to any collector of these stamps. The price of the book is $1.00 and we heartily commend it to our readers.

UNCLE SAM'S STEEL DIES AND STAMPING DEVICES

A UNIQUE INDUSTRY IN A TINY VILLAGE UPON THE POTOMAC OF FAR REACHING IMPORTANCE

(In a recent number of the Richmond, Va. Times-Dispatch appeared a story by a staff correspondent Rosser H. Griffin which is of more than ordinary interest to stamp collectors, and we reprint the same in its entirety. A picture of the old smithy at Lodge, where the steel dies and stamping devices are made, accompanied the article. Clipping from P. F. Sabine.—W. O. W.)

LODGE, VA., Feb. 15.—On the outskirts of this tiny village overlooking the placid Potomac at the end of an isolated lane is located one of the most amazing industries in the whole United States.

There is little wonder that this plant excites the curiosity. So peculiarly exclusive is the art practiced here, so modest the antiquated wooden architecture (if such it may be termed) of the building erected in 1874, so unbelievably quiet the surroundings, none on approaching would suspect that the postal system of the United States government—the greatest in the world—is absolutely dependent upon the products that are created in this plant.

For in this old building, resembling a huge blacksmithy, are manufactured all the steel dies and stamping devices that Uncle Sam uses in postmarking mail and canceling postage that goes on the millions of pieces of mail matter handled in all the postoffices the country over.

There are few people who know of the existence of this little plant within the boundaries of the Old Dominion. There are perhaps fewer who find their way to its doors. And still fewer would ever expect to find it where it is.

The grandfather of the present owner and manufacturer patented the dies September 23, 1851, and although patents have long ago expired, leaving others to enter the field and bid for the work, yet the United States government has never let the contract to any one else. And the reason is simple enough. A few companies attempted it, but failed, for much of the art embodied in the handiwork lay in the fact that this old Virginia plant possessed priceless original machinery, invented by the genius that invented the dies, that cannot be duplicated anywhere in the world. And the government felt satisfied that these postal necessities could not be made anywhere so well and at so low a figure.

Benjamin Chambers, Sr., a native of North Carolina, was the inventor and founder of the plant which has been handed down in the Chambers' family for three generations, from father to son. He was an engraver in the government bureau in Washington and during his residence there he conceived the idea of the dies and procured the patent rights. He it was also who invented the first successful breechloading cannon in 1849, recently discovered in dust in the loss of this same old plant, which is destined to have a place of honor in the halls of the Virginia Historical Society in Richmond.

But returning to the story—Benjamin Chambers, Jr., succeeded to the plant upon the death of his father and it was the son that decided to leave Washington and cast his future fortunes upon the shores of Virginia near this place that barely was a village then, only a few houses scattered about the countryside. It was in the year 1874 that he moved and founded this plant, which though added to as the necessity for increased work demanded, still retains the original building. On the death of Mr. Chambers, Jr., in 1908, the plant descended to still another son in the line, Henry M. Chambers, who ever since has been at the helm for Uncle Sam.

Mr. Chambers shrank from publicity, saying that he was unaccustomed to visitors. However, he responded amiably to questions put to him relative to the work being done in his plant.

There were about fifteen workmen, skilled artisans, engaged in making the dies, hand stamps and the seventy odd different items specified by the government postal authorities. There were a number of orders for these postmarking devices on the work benches, having just been sent down from Washington and some orders were being filled that had been given in 1926. Some foreign countries also had orders there, and these included the Philippines, Cuba and Argentine, South America.

Electric power has not yet found its way into the Northern Neck region and this plant depends on an oil-burning engine of the Fairbanks-Morse type and a dynamo generator for lights when skies are dark on cloudy days.

"What value do you place on your plant in terms of money?" Mr. Chambers was asked.

"Twenty-five thousand dollars," was the response.

"You have some priceless machinery here, has it ever been threatened by fire?" "We are fortunate," replied Mr. Chambers, "in never having had a fire here. There was one in the residence once and he pointed to the house where I live about 100 yards away."

Steel is brought in bulk from Baltimore for the manufacture of the dies and stamps, Mr. Chambers said, and the type used in them is also made in the plant. Even the wooden handles to the stamping devices are products of the unique industry.

Mr. Chambers does not object to visitors and they are welcome. But he seldom has any because there are few people that know of the plant and the wonderful part it is playing in the gigantic postal system of the United States.

BENNINGTON, VT., COMMEMORATIVE STAMPS

The New York State Senate has passed a resolution asking the Postmaster General to issue 100,000,000 two-cent postage stamps commemorative of the battle of Fort Stanwix, Aug. 3-6, 1777, at which time the Stars and Stripes first were flown in the face of an enemy. The resolution carries the request that the stamp bear a picture of the flag showing thirteen stars arranged in a circle bearing the words: "First displayed in battle at Fort Stanwix (Schuyler), Rom N. Y., Aug. 3-6, 1777."

AUSTRALIAN COMMONWEALTH.—Mr. R. Roberts sends us a copy of the 3p grey blue, on a new watermark. It is multiple small "A" and Crown close together.

BULGARIA.—Mr. R. Roberts sends the following interesting information, "An interesting stamp has just been issued at Sofia, viz.: 10st red and olive grey, in the type of the 1878, no watermark. The stamp is very similar in appearance to No. 9 or 10 in Gibbons catalog."

CEYLON.—We have received from the Economist Stamp Co. copies of the 3c grey, surcharged "2 Cents" in one line in black and the 6c violet overprinted "5 Cents" in like manner.

CHINA.—The Economist Stamp Co. have shown us the 4c bronze green, noted in issue No. 1872 as soon to appear.

DOMINICA.—We have received from Mr. R. Roberts the 3sh purple and black and the 5sh green and black, script watermark, on new yellow paper.

FRANCE.—The Economist Stamp Co. advise that they have received the SP3 design stamp with the value 2c + 1c in violet brown. Also the 50c + 10c brown in the type of SP6.

GWALIOR.—Mr. R. Roberts advises that the 1½ rose and 2½ orange De la Rue issues of India have been overprinted for use in this Native State. Both surcharges are in two lines in black.

HEJAZ.—Whitfield King & Co. have shown us two values of a new design for this country. They are the ½ pia brown red and 1½ pia grey blue.

IRAQ.—Mr. R. Roberts has shown us a line engraved stamp, the work of Messrs. Bradbury Wilkinson & Co. bearing the portrait of King Feisal. The color is brown and perforation is 12, script watermark. Mr. Roberts also includes a copy of the same stamp surcharged as usual "On State Service" in black.

KELANTAN.—Mr. R. Roberts and Whitfield King & Co. send copies of the 3c brown, on script watermarked paper. This is a change of color.

LEBANON.—Whitfield King & Co. furnish the information that the surcharged stamp 4 piastres on 25 centimes has been issued with a larger overprint than the one previously chronicled.

MONACO.—Mr. Newell True advises that there will be issued next March (1928) a 5fr stamp in commemoration of the International Philatelic Exhibition. The color will probably be green, and will picture likenesses of Charles III, Albert I and Louis II.

Whitfield King & Co. and Mr. R. Roberts inform us of the placing on sale of the 90c rose on straw, design as Scott's A13.

MOROCCO.—The Economist Stamp Co. send for chronicle a copy of the 2fr Air Post stamp in a somewhat darker shade than previously.

MARKET IN MODERN COLONIALS

Obliterations.—The interesting notes recently published in this magazine as to the fiscal obliterations used on certain high values of Bahamas and Bermuda, should put collectors on their guard not to pay postally used prices for stamps so cancelled. The cancelled copies are only worth about ¼ face value, whereas postally used copies are valued at about face value, an appreciable difference.

The writer of the recent notes on the Barbados 1sh Small Seal Script seems to be criticising certain remarks of these notes in an earlier number, but the only statement at all doubtful was whether any were sold by the Crown Agents in London; this was distinctly stated to be doubtful, however, not confirmed. There was undoubted speculation in this stamp, but local stocks appear now to be much reduced and the price is on the upgrade. There is no reason why it should not be as scarce as the 1sh Turks Is. Script (old type), as the numbers issued were similar, although we are still waiting for exact figures of the latter. Perhaps our friend can oblige. In the latter case the majority of the printing was sold by the Crown Agents and only, it is said, 1550 were sold on the island. This explains why it was once easy to get at usual rates over face value, which was never the case with the Barbados stamp. In the latter case it would be interesting to know what happened to the 2100 copies taken up by the astute stamp vendor.

S. Nigeria.—The high values of the Georgian series for S. Nigeria have been appreciating slightly in market value and are well worth picking up at any serious discount off catalogue. The 5sh is relatively the best of the series.

The 2½d Oranges.—Considerable interest has been manifested lately in the 2½d orange, etc., of the various colonies, many of which are now obsolete. What are these going to be worth, and which the best? The 2½d orange of St. Lucia and Leeward Is. are at present the best, numbers printed being stated to be about ten and twelve thousand respectively. Montserrat is following closely, but I suggest that the 2½d orange of Virgin Is. and 2½d brown of St. Kitts Nevis are also very well worth buying and are almost certain to show very big catalogue increases shortly. It would not be surprising to hear that the numbers printed are quite as limited as the Leeward Is. stamp, and they have both been out of stock in their respective islands for some little time, although at the moment of writing the new 2½d blue has not appeared. This will undoubtedly effect the values of the first blue scripts, as although the new printings are generally different in shade, the price differences will tend to largely die out. The only 2½d blue scripts that one can recommend with a future are where the design has been altered, such as Turks Is., Trinidad and Gambia.

Blocks of Four.—Blocks of four are now quite a vogue, and with some of the higher values and popular countries, are worth more than four separate copies. They certainly look very nice and enhance the appearance of a collection, but it is worth paying the extra demanded, and getting well centred copies.

The good items of all popular Colonies, especially those which have become obsolete during the last two or three years, are all advancing strongly.—Philatelic Magazine.

The Stamps of the Falkland Islands

By B. S. H. GRANT, F.R.P.S.L.

For any young collector looking out for a convenient small philatelic colony to collect and perchance to complete, the Falkland Islands offer many attractions. In this article Mr. Grant tells you much about these stamps which will help you to specialise in them.

FOR some time past there has been a growing tendency on the part of stamp collectors to pay more than ordinary attention to the postage stamps of the Falkland Islands, which form a most interesting study to anyone who cares to go a little further than the information which is to be found in the standard catalogues.

In the short time at my disposal, however, there is not time to do more than give a brief outline of the more interesting sections of the stamps, of these Islands, and my intention is more to indicate the principal features of the various issues than to give a detailed description of the adhesive labels of this interesting little Colony in the South Atlantic, which is, so to speak, one of the most distant outpost of our great British Empire.

One may quite safely say that the Falklands are steadily rising in popularity amongst collectors, and while there may be no great rarities to be found, as in such countries as Mauritius or the Cape, there are quite a number of varieties which are extremely difficult to secure. Whereas a few years ago the Falklands could almost be regarded as a neglected country, there are visible signs, as any stamp dealer will tell, that the demand for its stamps is beginning to exceed the supply. I should not be at all surprised if, before many years have passed, material alterations in prices are to be observed.

Watermarks are a constant source of trouble in the Victorian issues, for, in addition to the normal, we have the reversed type, the inverted, some stamps have none at all, others are lettered, and there are crosses and straight lines, and one really never quite knows what is going to turn up in this nature.

As a preliminary to the stamps, mailed matter was at first subjected to an impression by a metal hand-stamp at the post-office, the postal charges being paid at the same time. At first, the frank used was a small one, coming into use about 1858, and contained the words "Falkland—paid—Islands" in three lines. Later on, about mid-1877, a large circular one bearing the same words was introduced.

It is evident that at this time the postal matter dealt with must have been small, and consequently it was some time before these franks were generally known. The large circular one is somewhat scarce and was only in use for about a year, whereas the smaller one had a run of ten years.

These franks are not stamps, and stand in somewhat the same relation as the Mulready wrappers do to the postal issues of Great Britain. They do mark, however, the first important step in the postal progress of the islands, and form an interesting start to a collection of the postage stamps of the colony. Letters at this time took a good six weeks to reach Great Britain.

It should be borne in mind that reprints of these franks were made on ordinary paper about 1900 and they are by no means easy to distinguish. As entire or covers are extremely scarce, the ordinary collector is hardly likely to be in a position to secure them in this condition, and will have to be content to collect them cut square or to shape.

The first issue of stamps appeared in 1878, although by that time these were in general use throughout the world.

In January, 1879, the Falkland Islands entered the Postal Union.

The design of the Victorian stamps is of a particularly pleasing nature. It is simple and extremely effective. No part of the design can be said to be superfluous, and there are all the essentials of a good stamp to be found. Four values comprised the first issue, all on thin, smooth unwatermarked paper, the 1d and 6d appearing in 1878 and the 4d and

ANNOUNCEMENT

Mr. H. A. Robinette, who has been associated with me for a number of years, has taken over my stamp business in its entirety. In disposing of my stamp business to Mr. Robinette, I am sure my old customers will be treated fair and square. He had my entire confidence while in my employ, and I know of no one I could recommend higher.

I take this occasion to thank my many friends and customers for their patronage during my many years in the stamp business, and I am confident Mr. Robinette will not only give you equal service, but superior to what I have been able to give.

H. F. COLMAN,

1sh in the following year; and it is interesting to note that at the same time as the Falkland stamps appeared, Messrs. Bradbury, Wilkinson & Co. produced a set of stamps for the Transvaal, the centre medallion of which was taken from the original die engraved for the Falkland stamps. Copies of these Transvaal stamps are included in the display for comparison.

In 1884 fresh supplies of the 1d and 4d were called for, and these arrived early in that year but printed upon paper watermarked Crown CA. In 1886, further supplies were needed and the first varieties in the Falkland stamps appeared, the stamps being printed on paper watermarked sideways. The watermarked paper was fed into the printing presses sideways to ascertain whether the difficulty which had been experienced in adapting the paper could be overcome that way. This was not found a success, and all further supplies were printed with the watermark in its upright position. The sideways watermark, however, introduced the first of the important varieties, and is therefore of considerable interest.

We must now pass on to the most interesting portion of the Victorian era. In Jan. 1891, the postal rate, which at that time was 4d per ½ ounce, was reduced to 2½d, and as there were no ½d stamps, provision had to be made for the new rate, and the current 1d claret stamps were allowed to be bisected diagonally, each half doing duty as a ½d stamp. Although the stamps were supposed to be severed from the top right to the bottom left corner, they were often cut from top left to bottom right, and thus four copies are necessary in a collection to show the group.

It was not long, however, before the postal authorities conceived the idea of surcharging each half of these stamps with a metal hand-stamp, "½d.", in printers' type. This was done on the top left, and lower right portions of the stamps on entire sheets, and also on the single halves of stamps affixed to the envelopes. The reason for a surcharge does not seem very apparent, and, as was only natural, a number of varieties occurred. The stamping was often done in a very haphazard manner, with the result that a really good surcharge is not often met with. Most are crooked, some almost sideways, in many cases the type is indistinct, and the stop missing. In a few cases the surcharge is double or inverted, and examples are known with the surcharge partly upon the stamp and partly upon the envelope.

Unsevered pairs are exceedingly scarce, and dangerous forgeries exist of the overprint in this condition. In the course of two years, out of 19 which came my way, only six were genuine, and I got rather tired of having them examined. Whilst in many cases the forgery is apparent upon comparison with the real article, in some instances it requires the eye of an expert to detect the forgery. Too much care, therefore, cannot be taken, and I advise all those who possess this very desirable variety to have their copies examined. I have also seen the bisected stamps evidently penmarked ½d in black ink, but this method of surcharging was never authorized by the postal authorities at Port Stanley and was quite unofficial. Such a procedure may have been adopted by some enterprising senders and allowed to pass through the post in the inevitable rush while the mail boat was in port, but they possess no real value and at best can only be regarded as curios.

The Falkland provisionals possess the merit of being a perfectly legitimate issue for which there was a genuine excuse, and urgent need. As the bisected stamps were in use for a whole year, single copies are not scarce in their normal condition, but, postally used on original covers in conjunction with other values, are somewhat difficult to obtain.

Following the provisionals, we enter upon the final phase of the Victorian era, the period 1891-1900. Nine values appeared at different times, from ½d to 5sh, the two highest (the 2s6d and 5sh) appearing in May, 1898, which are adjudged to be amongst the finest examples of the stamp engraver's art. Of larger size than the lower values, watermarked Crown CG, and perforated 14, 14½, they were primarily used for parcels and cables, and were engraved and printed by Messrs. Bradbury, Wilkinson & Co. of London, who were responsible for all the Victorian stamps. It is safe to say that these two high values, scarce in used condition, are among the most beautiful of all the British Colonial stamps.

This issue is notable chiefly for its numerous shades, which will be apparent by a look at the display.

With the passing of the Victorian era came a change in the printers of the Falkland stamps, and work was now entrusted to another well-known firm of stamp printers, Messrs. De La Rue & Co., who ably carried on the excellence of the work undertaken by their predecessors, and who have printed all the stamps up to the present time from that date.

The Edwardian series did not begin to appear until the latter part of 1904. It had evidently been determined that existing supplies of the Victorian stamps should be used up first. The postal demands of the little colony were never very heavy, and consequently some time elapsed before stamps bearing the head

United States "Educators"

This is the name we give to a series of approval books designed especially for those who want to know more about the 19th Century issues of United States stamps and who are interested in filling as many as possible of those empty spaces with stamps that are presentable in appearance and correctly classified.

These "Educator" approval books have helped scores of collectors to find the missing varieties they were not so sure of identifying, and have further given them some idea of values as governed by condition. They are priced for what we think they are worth, perhaps twice catalogue, or perhaps 1/4 of catalogue according to the desirability of the particular specimen.

SENIOR "EDUCATORS"

Are similarly arranged, but designed for those who want only fine copies and who are willing to pay for superior quality.

Both series of "Educators" represent all 19th Century issues with considerable completeness. Ask for any particular issue that interests you, or start with the 1847-51 booklet and work through the lot.

SPECIALIZED SELECTIONS

Made up to suit individual want lists, and include varieties of cancellation, of paper, of printing, of shade. Pairs, strips, blocks, covers; whatever your speciality our stock is at your service and should be of some use to even the most advanced specialist.

By DR. WM. EVANS, 313 E. Freemason St., Norfolk, Va.

Who can tell us anything about the first picture? Rev. A. S. Rachal has sent it. It is not on a stamp, just a piece of paper which looks as if it had been part of an envelope. It was found among some stamps. Mr. Rachal thinks it may be a Confederate provisional, and it may be. Or it may have been used in the period preceding the use of stamps to designate the amount of postage on a letter. If anyone has one like it on a cover please let us know it. It is certainly an elaborate design used for some purpose.

The next is a postmark on a cover carried by a 2c 1887. The postmaster evidently had no "dater" and he must have had plenty of time for the whole thing has been done with a pen. Time was evidently not a very valuable commodity to this postmaster.

The next is the only postmark of this type which has come my way. It was sent by Mr. J. W. Fox and is from Reynolds P. O., Schuylkill Co., Pa., Aug. 18, 1891, J. P. Houser, P. M. Only enough of the lettering was traced to give you the idea as to the different types used. Too much work to do it all.

The other four are cancellations. The first of these is a pine tree. I've seen some others called pine tree cancellations, but here is the only one that looks as if it were meant for that species. It is on a cover from Norfolk, Va., used in 1863.

Then there is the University of Virginia initials. That, of course, was used at the University as the postmark proves. This, too, was in the 60's.

Next is a padlock. This was used at Petersburg, Va., and is on a 3c green. On cover, of course.

And the next is a curious monogram. It is on a 1c Continental stamp on a cover without postmark, or anything else, to tell where it originated. Who can tell where it was used, or the arrangement of the letters?

And who can tell us anything about the last one? Mr. Konwiser sent it. In fact he sent two, each on a 24c War, hard paper. The little design in the centre is the puzzle. Looks as if it might be about three letters, but the ink has blurred so that they are not exactly readable—if they really are letters. Can anyone send a specimen that shows what the design really is? An early impression, while the postmaster was still proud of his new canceller, and trying to make it plain to anyone who might see it that it was really an original idea, is eminently desirable.

Mr. L. A. Heilman has sent some more covers of interest. A 3c Continental with the figures "36" of the plate number plainly readable is one. There is another

BIG AUCTION SALES

A. H. Lamborn, Medal Winner, to Abandon 19th Century Foreign (Clipping from C. H. B. Hollers)

Arthur H. Lamborn, head of the sugar brokerage firm bearing his name, and a prominent exhibitor at the international stamp show in the Grand Central Palace last October, has decided to sell all of his nineteenth century foreign stamps at auction. He has been for several years a keen collector of stamps covering every country, and he won gold medals in the recent international contest for his twentieth century stamps of the world and also for his twentieth century United States stamps.

Mr. Lamborn has no intention of retiring from the ranks of philatelists. He believes that trying to collect every stamp issued since Great Britain brought out the first adhesive stamp in 1840 is too great a task, and he will hereafter endeavor to perfect his twentieth century collection. John A. Klemann, head of the Nassau Stamp Company of 70 Nassau Street, who announced yesterday that he had been commissioned to sell at auction the nineteenth century stamps together with Mr. Lamborn's United States duplicates, said Mr. Lamborn's twentieth century collection was the largest ever accumulated by a single collector. These stamps are contained in 150 volumes, and 100 volumes were shown at the exhibition last October.

The first part of the forthcoming sale will occupy six days, from March 29 to April 7. The second and final part will occupy four days, beginning April 18. The catalogue for the first part contains more than 3,000 lots, and with the exception of the remarkable collection of the late William Wolters of Honolulu, now being sold by J. C. Morgenthau, it is the largest collection of nineteenth clearly impressed postmark and cancellation in red, purple, green, blue, or even black they are really not unattractive, and a few of them scattered here and there through a collection certainly do not detract from its appearance. They are not so commonly found, either. Probably because most of them bore unimportant messages and were destroyed instead of being saved. You won't find many of them among grandma's love letters.

How many towns used red ink for cancelling letters during the '70's? I mean red not magenta or purplish. Red like that used in the earlier decades. There certainly were not so many, and I should be glad to have a list of them. Don't bother to include New York City. Foreign mail from there was not infrequently cancelled in red.

And how many of the towns that did use it had a year date in the postmark? Unadilla, N. Y., is the only one I remember having seen. That was in 1870. Can anyone give us the names of others?

BELGIUM'S QUEEN A COLLECTOR

LONDON, March 8.—During a recent week-end visit to Buckingham Palace, Queen Elizabeth of Belgium made a point of examining King George's stamp album.

The King has been an ardent stamp collector all his life and his collection contains many specimens bought with money "saved up" for the purpose during his boyhood.

Queen Elizabeth is a keen philatelist, as also is the Queen of Italy. Not long ago the Queen of the Belgians obtained as complete a set as possible of Belgian stamps and sent them to the other Queen-collector.—Clipping from several collectors.

A SUBTLE CHARM
By M. WILLIAMS.

It was the usual group in the smoky haze of the dealer's back office. On the table lay a perfect specimen of the Providence, Rhode Island, local.
"That," said the dealer, "is as safe to buy as a government bond."
"But is in more danger from fire—in one's collection," I replied.
"Perhaps, but it ought to be kept in your safe along with your bonds,—that is, if you have any, after you begin to select stamps!"
"My stamp books," said Thompson, who is a small man of a deceitful mildness, "are kept in a desk drawer on the first floor of my house, and I have instructed my wife in case of fire to get our child out first and to throw the stamps out after him. I believe," he hesitated, "I'd forgive her if she threw the stamps out first!"
As the laugh subsided, I asked, "What is the charm about it—why do these 'scraps of paper' get us so? As a business, it's a business, like any other, and I have known men and boys who cared for the money outside of it, and of course one takes a perfectly proper satisfaction in seeing one's collection go up in value, but after all, it isn't the financial part that holds most of us—is it?"
"It is the gambler's instinct," averred the doctor, "the ever present chance of getting something precious for nothing, of finding a treasure in the garret or in a 'thousand for twenty-five cents' mixture. Any dealer will tell you that men with big collections buy cheap packets just to satisfy the gambling appetite. It is a mild form of speculation that hasn't any 'morning after' effects. I confess since I became what the ads call 'a serious collector' I've missed the thrills of the mixtures a lot."
"It is something higher than that," declared young Parsons, who lives only for precancels, "it is the joy of seeking for completeness, of striving for perfect sets. Of course, completeness in any line is practically impossible, so one is always following after—that's the charm—"his voice trailed off for his eye had caught the glint of a precancel in the wastebasket.
"To me," said Adams, who collects nothing but used blocks, "it is acquiring something hard to get—something you must plan and scheme and save for. Now I was three years searching for my cover with the block of black queens—and I get up nights to gloat over it!"
"Consider the historical interest," cried Mason, "why, you can read all modern history in stamps—changes of dynasty, battles, heroes, statesmen. Now for example, take my war collection—" But the room was in an uproar, for since September, 1914, we have borne much from Mason. When he had been finally shut off, I asked, "How about the boys? Why does almost every boy collect stamps as naturally as he plays Indian?"
Their answers were various—"the collecting instinct, the fun of swapping, the fascination of the stamps themselves with their birds and beasts and ships, the touch of strangeness in the foreign stamps, an embryonic business sense, rivalry with friends."

"Rivalry!" cried the doctor. "The boys have no monopoly of that. Competition is two-thirds of the whole thing."
"No, no," begged Thompson, "call it appreciative sympathy. That sounds better and is truer. We're not such a base lot as you'd make out, doctor!"
"Base! We are the salt of the earth! But we are human and we like to be a little bit ahead of the other fellow. As a general thing the boys have the disease pretty normally but with adults it goes hard and we ought to be forgiven our peculiarities. My boy has a typical case and I began by helping him. Thought it would keep him home nights and teach him history and geography—and it did, but just see what I've become! The boy has the laugh on me now."
"It is partly because stamps are so common and so small," said Parsons, who had secured his precancel, stowed it in his vestpocket, and was ready to talk again, "everybody has a chance to get hold of some stamps and they take so little room. You can't carry old furniture or china or books around with you. Stamp collecting is the most convenient hobby in the world."
"I wonder more people are not interested in the beauty of many stamps, the fineness of the engraving and the real artistic worth of more than a few. Some day I am going to arrange a book of stamps that are merely lovely." This was the dealer's contribution to the discussion.
"And no one has spoken of 'the joy of the working,'" I added, "the endless pleasure of studying one's stamps, of learning watermarks and perforations and errors, and arranging and rearranging them. It doesn't take long to be a specialist in a small way, and I don't know of anything that is more fun. Of the joys of the true specialist I hesitate to speak—they are too sacred!"
"All this diversity of opinion," said Thompson, "answers of itself the original question. The charm of stamp collecting lies in its variety. A man can find just what appeals most to his own taste, be he old or young, rich or poor, clever or dull, and that is what makes it 'the king of hobbies and the hobby of kings'."
Parsons shook his head. "You can't explain the charm of it," he said. "As the highbrows say when they don't understand a thing—it is subtle."
The rising of the dealer closed the discussion. He had seen in the outer room the eager face of a small boy who was eyeing the fat envelopes of "500 U. S. for 10 cents with his hand already in his pocket.

The discriminating collector benefits in purchasing such stamps as quoted above, which increase in value year after year, while the overcatalogued junk either stands still, or drops in price. Stop the Press While I Talk

I have just received word from my printers, in France, that the first proofs of my check list of Twentieth Century British Colonials is on its way for correction. This check list has several hundred illustrations and is, I sincerely hope, a complete and accurate check list. I have omitted all such wanton acts of the Printer's Devil as inverts, doubles, and missing letters. We are collecting stamps, I take it, not typographical mistakes. I have omitted all varieties of perforations—We are collecting stamps, I take it, not the holes that run round them. I hear a lot of blue talk about British Colonials, too many issued, etc., etc. Charlie Phillips says they are imported in huge quantities and therefore can't be as rare as the older issues which were not so imported. Must be so if Charlie says it, but how about Malta 10sh issued eight years ago selling at $150.00, Malta 2sh issued one year ago selling at $10.00, Cyprus pound issued four years ago selling at $85.00. When a buyer asks a merchant for something he doesn't stock of course it's no good. Let me tell you collectors, present-day Colonials are as good as the old issues—a much better speculation—and don't bend your bank account double to make a decent showing. For every collector who pays good money for such great (?) rarities as the first issue of Holland with a little flaw on the King's head described as the "horned" variety—for every collector who is foolish enough to pay out good hard dough for some error, say "PENCF" for "PENCE" because some type or spot of engraving got mashed up—for every collector who goes crazy because a stamp has more holes at the top than it has on the side—for every one of these nuts we have hundreds of collectors who rejoice in a straightforward collection of Modern Colonials, who have no perforations to worry about and rarely have these problematically wonderful "varieties." Added to all of this how many of us fellows have the money to make collections of early Colonials and get anywhere?—and a few thousand will give us a good showing of Twentieth Century Colonials. I forgot to mention my check list of XX Century British Colonials will be here I hope at the end of April—will cost you 50 cents, and if you wish to send it back you can and you will get back your 50 cents and a call from the doctor, too

DEATH OF EINAR HOLBOLL

By A. E. PADE.

"The Father of the Christmas Seal." Postmaster Einar Holböll of Copenhagen, Denmark, died suddenly on February 23rd on his job in the Post Office at Charlottenlund, a suburb of Copenhagen.

When Postmaster Holböll got his idea of the Christmas Seal and the first ones were put on sale in Denmark in 1904 he little dreamed that his wonderful thought would, so to speak, conquer the world and be adopted as widely as it has been.
As the years went by, thousands upon thousands of children were cared for and cured of tuberculosis in hospitals built and maintained in Denmark and other countries.

It cannot have failed to make this man happy to see what a lot of good his work has done for humanity, and his memory will be cherished for years to come as "Father of the Christmas Seal," as he was always called in Denmark.

Postmaster Holböll visited this country about two years ago.

CONFISCATION IN CANADA

Writing under date of February 24, 1927, Mr. William Butler, secretary of the Canadian Philatelic Society, Incorporated, Toronto, said: "The Canadian Post Office Department has seen fit to prohibit the illustration of postage stamps. You can readily see what this means. If the Department is allowed to pursue its policy without protest, philatelists is doomed in Canada. At the time of writing, I have been unable to secure any definite information. The Department itself does not seem to know what's what and quotes the Criminal Code of Canada. A section of this prohibits the making and use of cuts and electros of stamps and possessing proofs of them under penalty of a heavy fine and imprisonment for life or not less than five years. This, of course, applies when they are used improperly and not legitimately. There is no law on the statute books dealing with the subject except that just quoted. The first blow was struck when cuts and electros belonging to Fred Jarrett, Frank S.
Thompson and the Year Book Publishing Company were confiscated. This has delayed the publication of our Pre-canceled Stamp Catalogue and the North American Philatelic Year Book, both of which are behind schedule. It will thus be seen that collectors must act and act quickly. Canadian readers should lodge protests with the Secretary of the Post Office Department and write to their local M.P.'s and senators without delay.
Secure the co-operation of public men who have influence, and, if necessary, boycott the Philatelic Agency at Ottawa." Further, Mr. Butler urges protest in the philatelic press as he says that "it is quite probable that the mails will be closed to matter containing illustrations of stamps."

It is evident that a crisis confronts philatelic Canada, in particular, as well as the U. S. and other countries in a philatelic sense. In view of the fact that Mr. Butler says that he has no definite information as to the basis for the stand taken by the Canadian authorities, we have sought information that might indicate why the drastic action was invoked, seemingly so suddenly. This has not been forthcoming, but when it is divulged, means may be adopted to combat what appears to be unjustified attack on philatelists in their peaceful pursuits.
We hope to have explanations that will clarify the issue.

THE INVERTED SWAN

By FRED J. MELVILLE.

One of the rarest stamps in the world is to make its appearance in a London sale room shortly. It is a specimen of the famous 4d blue stamp of Western Australia, 1854 issue, in which the swan in the centre is upside-down. It is scarcer than the "Post Office" Mauritius stamps, although it has never attained so high a price on the market as those popular rarities. There are nine or ten copies known, four of which are in collections which are never likely to be dispersed, and of the balance several are defective specimens. The copy now on the market, and which will be offered at Messrs. Plumridge and Co.'s sale rooms in March, is described as a fine one, and although the vendor's name is not disclosed, the stamp may be identified from the photograph as the co-lately in the collection of a well-known Liverpool collector, who disposed of other Western Australian stamps November.

The stamp is unusual among invercentres; most of these occur in stamps printed in two colours at two operatbut this is a monocolour stamp, litgraphed in one operation. In 1854 the need for a 4d stamp arose, it produced locally at the Surveyor-General's office in Perth. The printer an impression from the steel plates the 1d black stamp then in use, to obtain the swan centres of the stamp; sixty these centres were pasted up and transfers of a new frame were pas-around them, to form a group of six complete stamps on a lithographic stone.
In this finicking work of pasting the frames composed of thin trans-paper, a number of defective stamps were produced, and notably this famerror with the frame inverted. A group of 60 stamps was then transfer-four times to a large stone, to pro-sheets of 240 stamps in four panes 60. The inverted frame error was repeated in each of the groups of 60, it occurred four times in the sheet.
It was soon discovered, however, and corrected; it does not appear on any of sheets or part sheets of the 4d stamp known to philatelists, and indeed it unknown au pair with a normal stamp.

The error early attracted the attention of collectors. Dr. John Edw.
Gray, of the British Museum, had submitted to him in 1863, but could understand how such a reversal of swan could have occurred. The collectors were sceptical of the varie-
The copy shown to Dr. Gray is now the Leinster Collection at the Science and Art Museum in Dublin. The Duke of Leinster had the luck to buy for £2, and was on the point of swapping it with a reverend collector in Cork some other stamps of no great value when his death occurred and the deal was not completed.

The stamp has only made rare appearances at auction, most of the transactions being outside the public sale rooms.

1904 a slightly defective copy created sensation in fetching £400 at a London sale, and the same price was attained a rather poorer copy in 1906. Another specimen with a piece torn out of it fetched £120 in 1917. By 1920 a fine copy attained nearly £1,000 in private sale, and in 1923 the Ferrary copy, a fine one, brought £1,060 at auction in Paris.

It should be possible to trace out the pedigree, or rather the ownership succession of all known copies of a stamp so rare as this. But several have changed hands in recent years in a private way and dealers naturally do not always care to disclose the identity of clients, vendors or purchasers. Of the copies known, the approximate present location is as follows:—

1. H.M. the King.
2. Taping Collection, British Museum.
3. Leinster Collection, Dublin Science and Art Museum.
4. White Collection, Mitchell Library, Sydney, Australia.
5. E. H. Collins.
6. P. R. England (illustrated).
7. Dr. H. A. James.

DS AND ENDS:—

WE have received from M. P. Ganey a clipping from the Boston Herald dated Feb. 20, dealing with the "Great outbreak of postage stamps." The article is interesting but does not contain enough material for us to reprint it in the WEEKLY.

T. GOODWIN sends us a clipping from a San Francisco daily in which is an advertisement of a large department store giving information in regard to our first U. S. postage stamp announcing the fact that the firm has a postal sub-station at which nearly $10,000.00 worth of stamps are purchased annually.

PHILIP H. WARD JR., is in Florida, where he will visit Miami Beach, San Beach and Jacksonville. He will endeavor to call upon some of his philatelic friends. He will not return to Philadelphia until April 12, and correspondents will understand any delay that may be necessary in replying to letters addressed to him.

On March 4, the Atlanta, Ga., Collectors Club had an enthusiastic meeting, nearly forty being present. The special attraction was an address by J. McVey, formerly connected with the U. S. Bureau of Engraving, who spoke on the subject "Stamps in Their Making." Refreshments were served.—JOEL DU BOSE.

T. WILSON, 18 Livingstone Rd., Birmingham, Eng., has just issued a price-list of special offers and bargains which will be sent to any address on request. Anyone interested in novelties in old and recent issues will find it a very useful list. Canada and Hong Kong are especially represented in a fine showing of prices upon both used and unused.

THE Nashville (Tenn.) Philatelic Society has been organized with 12 charter members. Pres., F. Greve; Vice Pres., C. E. Swain; Sec., C. C. Fisher, 21st Ave.; Treas., E. J. Smythe. Regular meetings are held on the first Monday night in each month, at the home of Y. M. C. A. All nearby collectors are invited to join, and a cordial invitation is extended to any visiting philatelist to stop in.—C. C. FISHER.

THE 15th annual meeting of the Association for Stamp Exhibitions was held March 7, at the Collectors Club. The following officers were elected: Pres., J. C. Morgenthau; Vice Pres., A. Lichtenstein; Sec., John A. Klemann; Treas., Theodore E. Steinway. Board of Directors (three years):—H. M. Ams, Sidney Barrett, Fernald Atkins, Eugene Klein, J. J. Klemann, F. A. Kraft, John N. Luff, H. C. Edham, S. Newbury, C. J. Phillips, E. Radford, J. S. Rich, G. B. Sloane, Edward Stearn and A. H. Wilhelm. Director (two years), W. L. Babcock.

A RECENT issue of the Wall Street Journal contained an illustrated sketch of Montague Norman, governor of the Bank of England. Mr. Norman's hobby is the collection of rare wood but he knows enough about postage stamps to carry on a philatelic conversation with George. We are told that it is not an unusual thing to find him at a royal dinner party taking part in a fierce debate on "gardening, bee-keeping and design stamps, the latter in particular being waged over the royal table."

FEBRUARY SUBSCRIPTIONS

Busy as January was, the month of February surpassed it. It was indeed a very prosperous month. A large number sent in more than ten subscriptions and we take great pleasure in recording the co-operation extended. Paul Mole enters the list this month with twelve new subscriptions, while W. W. Betts adds twenty-eight to the sixteen secured during January. We are also pleased with the fact that the Johnson Stamp Co. sent in twenty-four, which is a splendid showing. The old stand-bys the Payn Stamp Co., Hawkeye Stamp Co., Anchor Stamp Co., and Eugene Klein hold their respective positions in the summary. With a favorable mention of thirteen sent in by the Auburn Stamp Co., and eleven from Norman Shepard, both of whom have done a good month's business, we list the firms who have sent in over ten subscriptions this month as follows:—

A prominent legislator writes to say: "My attention has been called to the proposal that the post office department could to advantage interest the public in matters of moment and that a history of the post office department and its workings could be circulated with good results. The suggestion is not without merit and the subject in a general sense has not been neglected as a scrutiny of the newspapers and other prints during the past few years will show. It may be that formal treatment of the subject in a consecutive way could be attempted on some occasion in the future when a fitting opportunity may arise in a celebratory sense. However, you know that the Information Service of the Post Office Department issues news bulletins, dealing with postal subjects in readable form that are sent to newspapers and the information is dated for release simultaneously. This enterprise on the part of the authorities gives wide publicity to the operations of the postal service which enters so intimately into the lives of all of us; and it should not be overlooked." The statement of our correspondent is welcome and we are glad to voice our commendation of the course of the department in circulating news as indicated, but what we are most impressed with is the possibility that at some propitious time in the future, a popular postal history may be attempted. If such a work would appeal only to philatelists, our idea could not be broached so confidently, but we feel that there is a wide-spread and growing interest in the government's postal division, on the part of the public which could well be recognized.

Here, for instance, is an example of the material distributed by the Information Service of the Post Office Department: Contract air mail service between Pittsburgh and Cleveland will start on April 21, according to an announcement made by Postmaster General New. Arthur J. Lynch, representing T. Clifford Ball, of McKeesport, Pa., who was awarded the contract for this service some time ago, was in conference today with Second Assistant Postmaster Glover, in charge of the Air Mail Service, at which final arrangements were made for the inauguration of the mail service between the two cities. It was also arranged that provisional stops will be made at Youngstown, Ohio, and McKeesport, Pa., and these cities will be given the benefit of air mail just as long as the business warrants. The schedule will be so arranged as to connect with the transcontinental route at Cleveland, giving direct dispatch of air mail from Pittsburgh to Chicago and the west. The contractor will be paid three dollars a pound for this service, and the postage will be ten cents a half-ounce or fraction thereof for letters transmitted over the route. The distance between the two cities is 123 miles."

In a recent number of the "Norwegian Trade Review," we are gratified to see two superb cuts of the Norway lion type, 1922, 25 ore and of the 1926 redrawn type, the differences between the types being noticeable throughout the design. The text, too, is of interest: "The current Norwegian stamps of the 'Lion' type were first issued in 1922, the series commencing with 20 ore purple, followed by 10 ore green, 25 ore scarlet and 45 ore blue. In 1926, the design was slightly altered, and from the redrawn dies, five values have so far been issued, viz., 10 ore, green, 15, olive, 20, purple, 25, scarlet and 40, pale blue. The other values required will follow from time to time as the existing stocks of stamps of the old 'Posthorn' type are exhausted. Of the original 'Lion' type, no more stamps will be issued. In consequence of the foreign letter rate being reduced from 40 ore to 30 ore, as from January 1, 1927, a blue 30 ore stamp of the 'Posthorn' type was issued in January for provisional use."

News has come of the death of Guy Semple, Lincoln, England, on February 15, 1927, at the age of fifty-seven years, a philatelist of broad experience who formerly was a factor in the business of Mr. Peckitt, before it was transferred to Messrs. Stanley Gibbons, London. Later, his services were secured by Mr. R. Roberts, if we understand our informant correctly. For a good many years, however, he has lived in the country, removed from scenes of philatelic activity. It is our recollection that Mr. Semple attended the first New York stamp exhibition, and we remember him as a corresponding member of the Chicago Philatelic Society in 1890; and we can attest to the kindly qualities of this gentleman as well as to his comprehensive knowledge of philately. Death has been taking its toll of philatelic loyalists in both Great Britain and our own country.

We have been asked to announce that preparations are being made to ensure the success of a philatelic exhibition in Strasbourg, June 4 to 12, 1927, under the patronage of the President of France and various ministers of his cabinet.

We have had further information to the effect that the treasury department is not intending to prohibit commerce in used stock transfer and future delivery

From Mr. R. W. Ireland, general traffic manager of the National Transport, Inc., operating the Chicago Dallas route, word has come that because of some unexpected difficulty in getting the field there ready for use, the flight from Ponca City, Oklahoma, will be postponed until about April 1st.

The following warning has been received from Mr. Haig Ouzounian, W. 187th St., New York: "Certain stamps of Nejd in Scott's 1927 catalogue, Nos. 21a, and 21b, which were lately circulated, are very scarce. There are only a few copies of No. 21, and 23 copies of No. 21a. As it is extremely difficult to get these stamps, they have been already counterfeited in Egypt and sent to a certain person in New York, who is alleged to have sold them to several philatelists for $150 each. The genuine No. 21 costs over $400; and therefore, I would advise innocent collectors who have no knowledge about these two stamps, not to buy without a guarantee." We assume that Mr. Ouzounian is willing to examine specimens of the kind for readers who make arrangements for him to do so. According to a correspondent of Stanley Gibbons' Monthly Journal, who is said to translate from an official gazette, "the stamps in the reign of Sultan Nejd, surcharged with the equivalent of 'Matbua' were not issued

"the Authority." Our contemporary prints out that if this information applies to the catalogued stamp in Stanley Gibbons, it is not in accord with the opinion of specialists who accept the stamp as having been issued by competent authority but it adds that perhaps the warning refers to other "Printed Matter" stamps that may be in existence.

Canada has cause for complaint as a consequence of the drastic action of the post office department there in prohibiting the illustrations of postage stamps in philatelic and other journals; and the actual confiscation of cuts and electros of Canadian stamps belonging to several philatelic publishers has taken place. We have been promised a review of the case which is a vital one, and concerns all collectors, who are asked to view the act as one detrimental to philatelic interests generally.

THE HOME OF THE POSTAGE STAMP

BOX 3, JACKSON HEIGHTS, NEW YORK
J. Avery Wells Telephone Havemeyer 3350 J. Van Kirk Wells

UP AND DOWN
Belated acknowledgment is made of the receipt of the Cuban special delivery stamp with star watermark, from Dr. Rafael Diaz Betancourt, Holguin, Cuba, which he sent under date of February 12, 1927.

We read that Mr. Arthur H. Lamborn, New York, whose wonderful general collection, said to be one of the very best ever gathered by an individual collector, was a feature of the New York Exhibition is to dispose of his 19th century issues through an auction sale conducted by the Nassau Stamp Company. Ten days will be needed for the sale of all the stamps, and catalogues are out listing the lots in the first part of the sale, March 29th to April 7th. The second part will be sold in four days, beginning with April 18th. Mr. Lamborn, hereafter, will devote himself to the twentieth century issues and by no means will retire from philately.

Mr. Victor recalls the past by sending in the first number of the Pennsylvania Stamp, November, 1896, in which the publishers announce: "Another stamp paper pounces upon you. We hope you will not resent it."

Mr. Hugh Shields, Brookland, D. C., sends an illustrated cartoon from the Manchester, England, Guardian, that was taken from the Notenkraker of Amsterdam, showing a monarchist licking the Frederick the Great stamp in the new German set and saying, "At last, there is a king to lick again!" with exclamation point and all.

We sympathize with the correspondent, Mr. Chas. McKercher, Camaguey, Cuba, who writes: "I have used a gallon of benzene and a bottle of Carbona in my watermark detector without avail. I have also made direct prints from the stamps on blue-print, Vandyke Maduro, Solio, Sepia, Velox and Cyco paper, but as yet have not seen the elusive U. S. P.

S. either in double or single line variety." He says that his collecting friends have the same trouble, and he wants to know what is to be done about it. There is no denying the fact that it is almost impossible to have the watermarks on some of our issues stand forth and periodically we refer the bothersome question to our readers in order that we may try at least to give relief by citing any of the later developments in watermark identification.

Some time ago, Mr. Clifton Chalfant, Warsaw, Indiana, asks, "What is the matter with Harry New? At a picture this week, the government had a film on helping the postal clerks and on how not to wrap parcels. One exhibit showed a parcel with United States stamps on it enlarged, even showing the precancel."

We are pleased to see that Mr. A. Hippchen believes in home industry. He uses a cut on some of his advertising matter that catches the eye, inasmuch as it is the picture of the officers of the A. Hippchen Company, consisting of Mr. Hippchen, president and treasurer; Marie G. Hippchen, vice president and Helen J. Hippchen, secretary. The two very young ladies are daughters of Mr. Hippchen, who cut their philatelic eye-teeth early. This company publishes a mimeographed stamp bulletin monthly, in which interesting philatelic notices are to be found; and those in the March number were devoted to philatelic newspaper clippings of 1897.

Mr. G. M. Mosler, Cincinnati, whose Austrian cancellations got a first at the New York Philatelic Exhibition, made his presence felt at the recent dog show in New York, where, according to our informant, he "paid one thousand dollars for the finest pair of beagles in the world."

A dealer says that a hopeful soul in an Iowa town wrote to say that he had a "marked" two-cent Columbian stamp, according to a painstaking, if somewhat unconventional description of the stamp given at length, for sale at the price of one thousand dollars. The dealer did not buy, but to show that there were no hard feelings, he sent the correspondent a copy of the stamp with his compliments.

Here is a choice bit of satire or what have you? in the Timbrophilist, 1870: "Gone Up. The entire stock in trade, fixtures, gasometer, and other property, belonging to Cornelius Van Rinsum, late a stamp dealer in Holland, but now bankrupt, and morally defunct, was sold in New York, about two months since, at public auction. The results of the sale were as follows: Auctioneer's fees, $5.00. Gross receipts, $2.14. Balance payable to the auctioneer, $2.86. It is thus to be seen that a just retribution is always certain to overtake the transgressor."

Junior Glossary

Plate.—The metal sheet or block from which the designs are transferred or printed on to the paper.

Plate Numbers.—The number of each plate of a particular value appearing on the margin, or sometimes on the stamp itself.

Postage Due Stamps.—Adhesives affixed by officials on letters, etc., to denote that same has been insufficiently prepaid.

Postmark.—Sometimes called cancellation or obliteration. The official method of defacing a stamp so that it cannot again be used for postal purposes.

Proof.—Trial impression before printing in black or color from a die, plate, or stone. A proof is usually on different paper, or differs in some detail from the stamp.

Provisional.—Stamps used to meet a temporary shortage; usually another denomination is surcharged with the value required.

Re-cut, Re-drawn, Re-engraved, Re-touched.—These terms imply slight repairs or alterations of the die, plate, or stone, generally necessitated by wear.

Remainders.—Stocks of stamps remaining on hand after that particular issue has been superseded or withdrawn.

Stamp News for the Juniors

Is there anything you want to know about stamps or stamp collecting? If so, write the editor. What would you like to see in this department? We have no way of knowing unless you tell us. Mr. Senior Collector, can't you give the boy collector about 50 words of encouragement along practical lines? Address your letter to the Beverly office.

Junior Gossip

—There is a letter at this office for John J. Fitzgibbons. It is from Robert E. Sharp, of Atlanta, Ga., who sends a set of precancelled stamps to be awarded Jack for his precancel limerick in our issue of Feb. 28. Mr. Sharp urges our juniors to study their stamps and join a good stamp society.

—O. F. Allen, Jr.—The variety mentioned by you is easily accounted for. It is due to imperfect registration when the stamps were printed. When stamps are printed in two colors it is easily possible for one printing to be merged into the other in such a manner as to produce the variety described.

—Parvin Riley (17), Bridgeton, N. J., writes us a very newsy letter and we thank him for his interest in our Junior Page. A stamp club has just been organized in Bridgeton with eighteen members between the ages of 12 and 18. We hope more of our boys will send us news of this kind.

—We have received from George Henhoeffen, Philadelphia, Pa., detailed information as to how to make a stamp album. We have previously published in the WEEKLY similar information to what George sends in, so we shall only take space to express our appreciation of the courtesy extended by this junior subscriber.

First Issue of United States

In the issue of February 28 you state "United States of America—Issued its first Governmental postage stamp on August 5, 1847 * * *"

There can be little doubt the actual date of issue was July 1st or within a few days succeeding. At least a dozen covers are known bearing 5c or 10c stamps used in July, 1847. Several of these bear dates from July 7th to July 14th, 1847.—ELLIOTT PERRY.

Rivers' and Countries' Names

Most prominent among the countries named from rivers flowing through them, is Paraguay. The name, on the stamps, is always "Republica del Paraguay": "Republic of the Paraguay." As the country originally extended, is included the larger and more habitable portion of the valley of this river. Wars robbed it of the bulk of its territory.

Belgian Congo, formerly Congo Free State, includes substantially the whole basin of the Congo River, and most of its tributaries.

Nigeria is the lower portion of the basin of the Niger River—the name Niger meaning "lack," and being reported by some geographers as given because of the dark color of the stream.

Gambia is a narrow strip, within the valley of the Gambia River.

Senegal, originally applied to all the French territory in the valley of the Senegal River, has been lately limited to the region on the south bank, and near the mouth. The remainder of the old colony of Senegal is now divided between Mauritania and "Upper Senegal and Niger."

Mesopotamia, though not named directly from a river, is good Greek for "the land between the rivers"—here the Tigris and the Euphrates.

Saar is the mandated portion of the valley of the Saar.—STEPHEN G. RICH.

The Junior Dictionary

Union of South Africa.—A confederation of the various British colonies in South Africa—Cape of Good Hope, Natal, Transvaal, and Orange River Colony—which since 1910 have been under one administration. During the three years following, the stamps of the various colonies were allowed to be used anywhere within the Union until they were replaced by a general set inscribed "Union of South Africa."

Unsevered.—Undivided or "unsevered" pairs of stamps are usually more valuable than two single copies, particularly if the stamps are imperforate.

Unsurfaced Paper.—Paper, without a glaze on its face—used only in cases where stamps exist on both surfaced and unsurfaced paper to distinguish one from the other.

U. P. U. (Universal Postal Union).—These letters appear on many of the stamps of certain Central and South American republics.

Upper Senegal and Niger.—The present name for the French colony on the west coast of Africa which was previously known as Senegambia and Niger. Postage stamps bearing the new designation were first issued in 1906.

Uruguay.—The smallest of the South American republics. Postage stamps were first issued on October 1, 1856.

Urundi.—Same data as under Ruanda. The stamps for the two districts were interchangeable and both sets were officially authorized.

Variety.—A variation from the normal design or other feature.

War Stamp.—(Fr., Timbre de guerre; Ger., Kriegsmarken; Sp., emisiones de guerra.)—A stamp whose issue has been necessitated or influenced by the circumstance of a state of war or blockade.

Watermark.—(Wmk.) A mark made in paper in the forms of letters, figures, words, or designs.

The Guy We Hate

This is not a limerick, but it is a bit of verse that we think worthy of inserting in our junior department. We give Sidney Brownstein (15) credit, and have sent him a stamp award. Of all the fellows that we hate Is the guy that takes your imperforate, And says of the stamp so new and mint, "That's nothing but a cheap reprint."

The Office Cat Gets Busy

In some way the Office Cat got hold of the four lines of poetry about the "reprint" and he said to himself "I'll show 'em how to write a limerick." And here it is:—

John is the guy the fellows hate,
He sees your nice imperforate
And says of the stamp:
"It's a little scamp,
A poor reprint, give it the gate."

The Corner Dots

Two weeks ago we asked for the difference between two British stamps. We now illustrate the difference "14 and 16 dots in the corners." We shall publish very soon a list of those who sent in correct answers.

A Limerick on Jane

There was a sweet girl named Jane,
Concerning her stamps quite vain;
In a book by night
She glued them down tight—
Which proved her to be quite insane.

STUCK DOWNS

By W. W. MACLAREN.

The stamp hunter has many collections offered him. Most of them are small and of recent make, but occasionally very old one comes along. Two of the collections I have purchased had not had a stamp added to them since the sixties. A large portion of the collections made prior to 1890 are what I term "stuck downs," that is to say, hinges were not used, but the stamps were pasted sometimes with home made flour paste occasionally pure gum arabic and, unfortunately, quite often with commercial mucilage. In the latter case many of the stamps are ruined, especially the green ones, having become badly stained. Since little attention was paid to condition in those days, the paper being often simply peeled off, the general condition of the stamps is poor. As they cannot be examined carefully on both sides, many that appear to be all right are found badly defective when soaked loose.

I have had many interesting experiences with these old collections, but the following is tinged with both tragedy and humor. A lady in Wisconsin wrote me that she had a very old collection made by her father when a boy, about six hundred stamps. I had her send to me, and, it was at least interesting, was mounted in the oldest printed album I have ever seen, with a wood cut picture of Sir Rowland Hill on the full page. The stamps were in frightful condition, with a few exceptions, and not only pasted in tight with mucilage, but beautifully lacquered with the same material.

There were two stamps that appeared to be in good shape that I could use. My collection, also what appeared to be a very fine copy of the 5c New Foundland brown seal. Having a friend who wanted this stamp, I offered the last $25.00 for the collection. She asked me to send it right back as she had an offer of twice as much from a Milwaukee collector. I shipped it back at once, wrote her a nice letter of thanks for sending it, and reimbursed her for the postage spent. I always do this.

Greatly to my surprise, a week later it arrived, never having been unpacked and a letter came saying she was pleased with my letter she had decided to let me have it.

As I wanted to preserve the album only cut out those stamps that were worth while. I had studied the 5c N. L. carefully, even with a glass, and could find nothing wrong with it. However when I soaked it, lo and behold, it was in two pieces. It had been so carefully matched up that the cut was not discernible. So I faced a nice loss on the buy.

Some months later I thought I would go through it carefully, and see if I had overlooked anything. In Mexico there were just five stamps, four damaged, one badly stained, the 12c 1868 green. Upon examining this latter stamp most carefully I discovered it was not stained at all, but was a beautiful used copy of the error on buff paper listed at $60.00. So I was to come out all right after all. Now for some more tragedy.

When returned by Mr. Eugene Klein was neatly marked "cft".—Stamp Hunter.

PLACES STAMP ON PAR WITH RUM

A Springfield, Mass., newspaper is responsible for the above headline. It is accompanied by the following sub-heading:—"Philatelists must become bootleggers to deal in issues against orders of Internal Revenue." This clipping from H. C. Hyde of that city will be read with interest.—Ed.)

It's a far cry from bootleg "hooch" to stamp transfer and future delivery stamps, but the gap has been bridged by a sweeping order recently issued by the United States commissioner of internal revenue, which brings some stamp collectors into the same category as bootleggers, in so far as the moral aspect of the law is concerned.

Yesterday the many enthusiastic stamp collectors of Springfield and other communities throughout the length and breadth of the land pursued their daily avocations and avocations, esteemed by their friends and neighbors; respected by their fellowmen generally. Today they were without the pale of the law if they have in their possession a single stamp or future delivery internal revenue stamp that they intend devoting to other purpose than that for which it was issued by the government.

There is no nonsense about this decision of the internal revenue department. No less an authority on such matters than MEKEEL'S WEEKLY STAMP NEWS of current issue solemnly warns readers that it will in future accept no more advertisements for stamps of this character. It points out also that the ruling "will result in considerable hardship in certain quarters," especially among dealers who have a supply on hand.

The ruling is to the effect that no person other than a collector of internal revenue or duly authorized deputy collector, or deputized United States depositor, shall sell or expose for sale, give away, traffic in, trade, barter, lend, borrow or exchange any such transfer or future delivery stamps issued pursuant to the regulations. This ruling, of course, exempts individuals or corporations which use the stamps in their business who buy them pursuant to regulations.

In a word, a new class of law breaker has been added to those now existing in the U. S. A. But they have this advantage over the bootleggers. They are known as philatelists. Those who traffic in rum can lay claim to no such honor-sounding title.

ARRANGING A JUNIOR EXHIBIT

By GEOFFREY R. KELLY.

The first page should bear no stamps at all. At the top will appear, for example, the heading, "The Stamps of Germany (1921-1926)," and this will be followed by any general facts worthy of mention, such as situation of the country, government, population, area, industries, and even, perhaps, mention may be made of the chief towns and rivers on which they stand. The value of this first page without a single stamp on it cannot be denied. It serves to arrest the attention of whoever is looking at the collection, and helps to rouse an inquisitive interest as to what the stamps of this particular country may be like.

On the second page the collection proper will start. Here, the first stamp or set issued will be shown, above it the date, and below, or at either side, will be the information referring to the particular stamp or stamps. As much information as possible should be appended, but it is doubtful whether the incessant repetition of numbers issued does much to enhance the value of a collection. Whenever possible, state the date of issue, description of the subject or design, engraver's name, name of printers, and method of printing, paper printed on, watermark (if any), perforation, and, a most important detail, though not always available, the reasons for issue. Taking Germany as an example:—

Germania type of 1902, surcharged in black (except the 5m), which is in green.
Needless to say, mint and used stamps should not be mixed, the best arrangement being to mount the issue in mint condition first, followed by the notes, and then, below the notes, to have the same issue in used condition.

Thus, for Germany, we shall now have:—

(Copies of Stanley Gibbons 199-202 mint.)

(Copies of Stanley Gibbons 199-202 used.)

One of the worst mistakes that collectors make is to overcrowd their stamps. If only juniors would try to imagine their stamps were young oak trees, and needed room to grow, many an album would be transformed from a scrap book into a possession of beauty and interest.

The eight surcharged stamps of Germany are quite sufficient to fill one page, and if properly spaced out, and symmetrically arranged, will present an effect that could not be equalled by twenty stamps in the same space.

Starting page three, the collection is proceeded with in the same manner, and so on, until the end of the country or period is reached.

Bear in mind the following golden rules, they cannot go far wrong:—

- 1.—Don't overcrowd your stamps.
- 2.—Never include a damaged specimen.
- 3.—Be as neat as you can.
- 4.—Mount your stamps on loose-leaf sheets if possible, taking care to see that the general effect pleases the eye. The most satisfactory method of arrangement is the symmetrical or "balanced" system. This is rendered a simple matter by the

Philippine Commemorative Stamps

The Commemorative series of Philippine stamps recently issued consisting of the 2c, 4c, 16c, 18c, 20c, 24c and 1 peso, of which only 10,000 of the latter were printed, are available at $1.50 per set. Pairs and blocks at proportionate rates. The plates for these stamps have been destroyed, so that there is no likelihood of a further printing.

This issue in the finest mint condition is available at this figure and while they have been offered at less, it seems that they are not being supplied to-day at the lower figure. I have the stock on hand and it will not be necessary to keep you waiting with the likelihood that more may be obtained in the Islands. My correspondent in Manila states that the entire lot of 1 peso was sold within two days, so that if the Island philatelists hold them for the high prices that they are asking for the air mail varieties, you will soon be paying several dollars a set for this issue.

The peso variety is not for sale separately for it is this item that the dealers are endeavoring to buy.

15c Brown Air Mail Stamp

I have seen published lists of the supposed numbers of 15c air mail stamps in existence but none that have come to my attention have been correct. I am officially informed that 10,500,000 of this stamp were printed and that 2,235,585 have been delivered to the Post Office Department. Under date of March 10th, there still remained on hand at the Bureau, subject to instructions from the Post Office, a quantity of 7,854,415 stamps. Under the circumstances there are ample to go around in spite of the fact that the Department has discontinued the printing of this variety. It has been announced that it is their intentions of distributing this stamp in order that two copies may be used to pay the triple air mail rate, and as a result, this quantity will no doubt last for a number of years to come. If we followed the procedure of some of the South American countries, we could make a very nice Provisional issue out of this quantity by overprinting them 10c.

The sale of this variety to collectors here of late has been quite extensive in view of the fact that they have assumed the supply was limited.

1917, 5c Red Error Imperforate

Back in the Spring of 1917, great commotion was caused in the philatelic world when the discovery of the 5c error was first made. At that time some of the presses at the Bureau were running out stamps perforated 10, and some perforated 11—hence, the variety in both perforations was soon found.

Some weeks elapsed before the stamp finally was located in an imperforate condition. Upward of twenty-five to thirty offices had received the 2c imperforate stamp during the time this error was being turned out by the Bureau, but an investigation showed that the imperforate error had been sent to but two offices, namely New York and Chicago.

In New York, one of the clerks found forty-three sheets, which were acquired by a syndicate and finally became the property of one of the larger dealers. Information as to the exact number of sheets so found has never been made public until recently, when a dealer made the announcement through his auction catalogue—hence, a few notes at this time are in order.

Those that were located in Chicago were returned in their entirety to Washington for destruction.

Two additional sheets, so I am told, were located by Mr. J. B. Leavy, making forty-five in all in the hands of the philatelic public. As each sheet showed three errors, this means that one hundred thirty-five of the stamps are in existence.

Right at the present time, there is little doubt but what a fair number of this lot are held in some strong source for judging by the numbers available, the variety is really more difficult to obtain than the 2c inverted center of 1901, of which less than sixty specimens are said to exist. It is because of this fact that we have reasons for assuming that the imperforate variety is held. At the present time the stamp is priced at $750.00 in the catalogue, but has brought as high as $830.00 at auction and has sold in excess of this figure at private sale.

It ranks as one of the rarities of the 20th century issues.

2c White Plains Variety

Mr. Stephen C. Potts writes that he has recently been examining the south east pane of the 2c White Plains stamp from plate 18769 and finds several oddities of interest. On the fifty-third and eighty-fourth stamps for instance, he notes two short lines appearing under the "P" of "Postage." This he finds on none of the other varieties on the sheet. The "E" in "States" is especially ill formed on the thirty-second stamp. I have not had an opportunity to personally inspect such a pane and am passing on the information just as Mr. Potts kindly writes.

Permit Mail Without Stamps

Those who are interested in the collection of metered mail and the like should secure a copy of the Postal Bulletin for March 15th, for a couple of pages of this bulletin are devoted to the conditions under which mailings of certain matter will be accepted under permit without stamps affixed. The same bulletin shows us four types of accepted designs, one of which is applied by a machine set by the postmaster and the other types being those used by the public and later paid for at the time of mailing at so much per piece.

CUBA.—We have William H. Avery, of Havana, Cuba, to thank for a specimen of the 10c current type on large star watermarked paper. This stamp was issued March 15 and we are probably the first philatelic paper to chronicle this novelty.

SEEN AND HEARD:—

WE are advised of the death of Frederick W. Bode, 3723 N. 8th St., Philadelphia, Pa. We regret to say that we are not acquainted with Mr. Bode's collecting activities.

IN a circular just at hand, we note that Wm. H. Avery, Progreso 11, Havana, Cuba, offers to supply any reader of our paper with current and new issue Cuban stamps at face value without any commission except postage. This is a very generous offer and will certainly be appreciated by those who desire Cuban stamps.

THROUGH the courtesy of Clement S. Ernst, we have received a clipping from the Tacoma (Wash.) News Tribune giving a full list of the awards made at the Puget Sound Philatelic Exhibition held in Tacoma on Saturday and Sunday, March 5 and 6. The exhibition was sponsored by Puget Sound Branch, No. 70, A.P.S., the Tacoma Philatelic Society and the Washington State Philatelic Society. Cecil F. Blogg was in charge of the event and an address of welcome was extended by Mayor M. G. Tennent. The judges were A. A. Johnson, Clyde Brill, Clement S. Ernst, Henry Hitt and R. Nairne. We regret that we cannot give the space to publish the long list of prize winners. There will be another exhibition in the Seattle Public Library, March 12-19, by the three societies.

NEW ISSUE NOTES

(The information contained in the paragraphs below is taken from the "Monthly Bulletin" issued by Whitfield King & Co., Ipswich, England. Any of our subscribers who would like to receive this "Bulletin" regularly each month may obtain it by remitting 36c.—Ed.)

Abyssinia.—Two more provisionals have arrived from this country, ½ guerdie on $1 and 1 guerdie on $3. In both values there is an error on each sheet showing the final "e" omitted in "guerdie." We have also one sheet of the ½ guerdie on $1 with the surcharge at the right-hand side of the stamps instead of the left, this sheet also contains the error with the final "e" omitted in "guerdie." The 4 guerdies on $3 noted in some papers has not been issued.

Belgium.—The 5 francs + 1 franc carmine issued for the benefit of the Anti-tuberculosis Fund was sold in restricted numbers, only a few copies being supplied to each applicant. In these circumstances it will be impossible for us to distribute it through our New Issue Service, but we have been offered a small number at rather a high premium and any subscriber who would like us to supply the stamp at 3s9d each should send us an application and if possible a copy will be sent with the next lot of new issues.

Belgian Congo.—The following new values and new colours have been received:—45c purple, 75c rose, Fr.1.25 blue, Fr.1.50 blue. These stamps have been overprinted "Ruanda Urundi" also, all of which we are distributing through our New Issue Service, with the exception of the Ruanda Urundi Fr.1.25 blue, which we have been unable to obtain up to the present and we think it very probable that this value has been withdrawn from use, as it is exactly the same type and colour as the Fr.1.50 blue. It is interesting to note that the 45c is overprinted in one line in red, similar to the 60c, whilst the 75c and Fr.1.50 are overprinted in two lines, the word "Ruanda" at the top of the stamp and "Urundi" at the base. The other values in the set have been overprinted in two lines close together in the centre of the stamp and it is just possible that these may be replaced in due course overprinted in a similar manner to the 75c and Fr.1.50.

Dominica.—We have received the new 3sh and 5sh stamps with script watermark and find that there are two shades of the yellow paper for each of these denominations, one being pale yellow or lemon and the other a very deep yellow.

French Colonies.—We have received the new provisional 10 and 20 francs stamps for French Somali Coast, Ivory Coast, Dahomey, Guinea and Reunion. All these provisionals have been surcharged on stamps of 5 francs, which have been printed in new colours for the purpose of surcharging. On each sheet of 75 of Dahomey 20 francs on 5 francs there occurs one stamp showing no stop after 20f. We are also informed that further new 10 francs and 20 francs provisionals are to be issued for Gaboon, Gaudeloupe, Madagascar and Senegal, also new 90c and Fr.1.50 stamps for twelve Colonies. A new set of Postage Due stamps for Niger Territory has also been issued and the previous issue has been withdrawn from use.

French Post Offices In Egypt.—In continuation of the note in our February Bulletin referring to the stamps of Alexandria and Port Said, we are now officially informed that a complete new set of stamps will soon be put on sale in Alexandria comprising the following denominations:—1, 2, 3, 4, 5, 10, 15, 20, 30, 50, 100, 250 millimes; Postage Due stamps, 1, 2, 4, 5, 10, 20, 30, 40 millimes. The values will not be surcharged as in the current set, but will be incorporated in the design. No further particulars are available and although we have no information as to whether these new stamps will be issued for Port Said as well, we have no doubt that the new set will be suitably inscribed for that purpose.

Greece.—A complete new issue of postage stamps is being prepared for this country and the stamps are expected to be put on sale before long. The denominations are 1, 5, 10, 20, 25, 40, 50, 100, 1, 2, 3, 5, 10, 15 and 25 drachmae. The following is a description of the various pictorial designs and views shown on these stamps, which are being printed by Messrs. Aspioti Brothers of Corfu: 1 lepton and 10 lepta, woman in costume of Dodecanese; 5, 50 and 80 lepta, 1st mus of Corinth; 20 lepta, woman in Macedonian costume; 25 lepta, Monastery of Simon Peter; 40 lepta, White Tower, Salonika; 1 and 10 drachmae, show the Thesmus; 2 and 25 drachmae, the Acropolis; 3 drachmae, Greek cruiser "Averof"; 5 and 15 drachmae, picture of the Academy.

Hejaz and Nejd.—We have been able to obtain a small quantity of the new 1/2 and 1/4 piastres stamps referred to in our February Bulletin and they are being distributed to our new issue subscribers this month. We understand other values will be issued later on. The Arabic inscription at the top of the stamps reads "Arab Government," in the centre is the King's touhira or monogram which is "Abdul Aziz Bin Abdul Rahm," the smaller monogram to the right of the touhira is that of the King's family and reads "Al Saoud"; below the touhira are the words "Nejd and Hejaz Postage" and at the base of the stamps the denomination is shown in each corner and words in the centre.

India.—We distributed last month 4 annas Nasik printing on paper water marked multiple stars and our correspondent, in sending our supply, informed us that no more of the 4 annas inscribed "Postage" only, are obtainable in Calcutta, in fact, he wrote to us asking whether we could supply a pair for his own private collection! This variety has been on sale only a very few weeks and is likely to be scarce. Moral:—Join our New Issue Service and get the scarce items at current issue rates.

Jamaica.—We are informed on very good authority that the current ½d stamp showing a view of the Exhibition was soon to be a thing of the past, as a new issue of this denomination is to be put on sale shortly and will be of the Nyasaland type showing a portrait of His Majesty King George.

Liberia.—The one-cent stamps of 1911 both ordinary and O.S. have been surcharged "Two Cents" with the old value obliterated by a bar. As usual they are varieties of setting showing the words "Two" and "Cents" close together at wide apart, whilst on two of the stamps instead of a bar cancelling the old value an ornamental design has been substituted. These two varieties occur on the bottom row of the sheet, the second and seventh stamps. The stamps are sheets of 50, the overprint being done in two operations of 25 at a time. On sheet of these stamps is known with the surcharge inverted.

Tripoli.—A new set of stamps has been put on sale in this Italian Colony for the benefit of the Tripoli Exhibition. We understand that these stamps are to be issued in limited quantities and they are sold at a small premium above the face value, this premium going towards the Exhibition funds. There are four designs as follows, centres are all in black:—20c + 5c mauve, 25c + 5c green view of the Port of Tripoli; 40c + 10c chocolate, 60c + 10c brown, Arc de Marco Aurelio; 75c + 20c red, Lire 1.25 + 20c blue, panoramic view of Tripoli; Express, Lire 1.25 + 30c violet, Lire 2.50 + lira yellow, Libyan scenery.

of King Edward were required. In the new issue, similarity of design was followed, but with the head facing to the left. The head was the same type as that adopted for the lower values of the then British stamps, being designed by Herr Fuchs, and the stamps were all printed upon paper watermarked with the multiple Cr. CA design.

Of the eight values there are a few interesting departures from the normal. The 1d exists in a dull or wine-red shade, which is somewhat scarce, as well as on both thick and thin paper, likewise the 1/2d value, whilst the 2 1/2d ultramarine is in two distinct shades. The 3sh (replacing the former 2s6d Victorian stamp) is clearly distinguishable in three shades of pale and deep green, and bronze-green, whilst a supply of the 1d, in June, 1907, arrived on paper with the watermark sideways.

The simplicity of design which had been such a pleasing feature of the previous issues, was somewhat modified in the new Georgian stamps, which began to appear in 1912. Whilst substantially similar, the addition of the Crown, and the words "Postage" "Revenue" gave a rather cramped appearance to the design, although, by way of compensation, the head was somewhat smaller than those of the previous two reigns.

The values were the same as those for the previous issue, but with the two high values added, a 10sh and £1, which, I believe, are used for combined postage, registration and insurance, as well as for cables and customs dues.

The 1912-21 series were all printed on paper watermarked mult. Cr. CA, being followed by the Script watermarked series, the three highest values yet to appear on this paper. These do not call for any particular comment.

The war stamps of 1918-20 form an interesting interlude to these series, it being possible to specialise the three values, 1/2d, 1d and 1sh.

Specimen stamps exist of all issues from about the year 1892, and copies also exist of the Victorian stamps overprinted "specimen" with a rubber stamp.

The inclusion of stamps postmarked and used in the Dependencies is a matter which must be left to the discretion of the collector. The opinion sometimes advanced is that such stamps are of no special value and savour more of collecting postmarks. I think, however, that there is an excuse in this case, for the Dependencies of the Falklands have an interest entirely of their own. These comprise South Georgia, the South Shetlands, the South Orkneys, the South Sandwich Islands, and Graham Land, but apparently at present stamps are only regularly used in South Georgia, which has a population of about 1200, and in the South Shetlands during the whaling season, Nov. to April.

These Dependencies are under the Governor of the Falklands. Letters Patent being granted in 1908, so that the South Georgia postmark is met with in both the Edwardian and Georgian stamps, and the inclusion of stamps bearing this postmark, as well as that of South Shetlands, gives an added interest in the stamps of the Colony. A few Victorian stamps were also used in South Georgia, but they are naturally extremely scarce.

Stamps postmarked "H.M.C.S. Afterglow" are interesting. The Afterglow is a coastal ship which patrols the outlying islands to protect the Seal Fishery, and the residents of such islands, who cannot be very numerous, have no regular postal facilities, so correspondence may be "posted on board" the Afterglow, which takes it, or tranships it, to another vessel on its way to Port Stanley to await the outgoing mail. The postmarking is done by means of an oval rubber hand-stamp and bears the words "H.M.C.S. Afterglow—date—posted on board".

There is practically no direct communication between South Georgia and the Falkland Islands, and vessels for this Dependency generally call at South American ports on their way out, and there is more or less regular communication between South Georgia and Buenos Aires. The South Shetlands whaling fleet calls at Port Stanley on the way south in November and again on the return about April.

There is a Post-Office at Fox Bay in the Falklands, where a distinctive cancellation is applied, and letters are sent from there to Port Stanley. New Island at one time had a postmark of its own when a special Post-Office was open from August 10, 1909, when it was made a port of entry, until Oct. 19, 1914, when the whaling industry ceased.

Time does not permit of my entering into details which, however, have been fully described in the philatelic press at various times and are obtainable from the various journals concerned from the publishers.

There are one or two points which I have not yet heard satisfactorily cleared up. A postmark met with during the period of the 1891 Victorian provisionals has the word "ISLAND'S" spelt with an apostrophe S. Whether this was deliberate, or a mistake, I have never been able to fathom, and apparently none of the specialists whom I have consulted have been able to tell me.

Also, the reason why the 1891 "splits" were bisected from corner to corner is not apparent, although I think it more than possible that this may have been due to the fear that, if this had been done otherwise, there might have been some danger of stamps already cancelled being cut, or manipulated, so as to be used again as a half if the postmark had been badly applied. There would, of course, be less likelihood of this danger occurring if the stamps were bisected diagonally, although the possibility seems remote in view of the effective, and heavy, cork cancellations of that period, which makes it difficult to secure good postally used copies of the early Victorian stamps.

As regards the eventual surcharging of the halves by the hand-stamp 1/2d, this was doubtless thought advisable in order to make clear, in other countries, the franking value of the "split" and to show that such stamps were official.

There are several very interesting and desirable items to be found amongst the stamps of the Falklands, and, if this is extended to the Dependencies, we have a wide field open to us, which will add greatly to the interest we shall get. I have already mentioned the Afterglow stamps, and the early Edwardian and Victorian stamps used in South Georgia which have the imprint of those words beneath the stamps.

South Georgia is responsible for a variety which I prefer to call an "official unofficial" variety. In March, 1923, there appears to have been a shortage of stamps in the Island, and the 2 1/2d dark blue for a few days was allowed to be bisected diagonally and each half used as a 1d stamp. The necessity for this is not very apparent, unless both the 1/2d and 1d stamps had run out. The bisecting was authorised by the acting Resident Magistrate, who, however, had no authority from Port Stanley to do this. Although the mail from South Georgia was a small one, several copies were used in that condition, and allowed to pass through the post before fresh supplies were received. This interesting variety will therefore have to be recognised, as the stamps certainly did postal duty, and as the provisional was not discovered until some time after its discontinuance, very few copies survived, and they are exceedingly scarce in consequence.

Then we have the Deception Island cancellation, which, for a short time early in 1924 preceded the South Shetlands postmark, and whilst the latter is quite common, the former, which is in the form of an oval and a rubber cancellation, is very scarce.

I have only before briefly referred to the war stamps which are capable of being specialised. The 1d exists with double overprint, 58 copies being known, whilst 120 copies, or two sheets, exist with double overprint, one being in albino, the two being plainly visible on the back of the stamps, although only slightly so on the front. Other varieties include the "wide spaced," the "var" variety, large P, broken P, and various faults in the overprinting, whilst the 1d exists in the second setting on thick grey paper, and is comparatively scarce. The display before you will be found to be self-explanatory.

The current 1d script stamp is also known with inverted watermark, and I think only one sheet was found thus. Other varieties will be found throughout the various issues, which will well repay a little study.—The Stamp Lover.

Michigan Stamp Club Banquet

By HERMAN W. BOERS.

(We congratulate the Michigan Stamp Club upon its most successful banquet, and are grateful to Mr. Boers for his story given below. The committee in charge headed by Dr. Hoskins proved a very efficient one. This club is doing a splendid work for philately and may well feel proud of its record—Ed.)

The thirteenth annual banquet of the Michigan Stamp Club was held at the new hotel Barlum on Saturday evening, March 19. The members with their ladies and invited friends to the number of seventy made the occasion a very enjoyable affair. There was no speech-making, indeed a warning upon the menu card read:—"Anybody who attempts to make a speech at this banquet will forfeit his membership in the club."

There was a raffle of stamps, some two hundred lots being sold, and Karl Koslowski won the big prize, an 1847 Franklin donated by W. F. Fratcher. An additional prize was given the one holding 9999, and strange to say the very block of stamps I had given came back to me as the prize.

Prof. F. T. Shearer, who was announced to give "a little fiddle-ology from Toonerville" entertained the mem-

Seated at the head table were: Pres. Charles E. Brisley, toastmaster and Mrs. Brisley; Vice Pres. Clarence Mahar and Mrs. Mahar; Sec. Alex. Livingstone and Treas. Horace Hartwell. The menu was an excellent one.

Sec. Livingstone read letters of congratulation from A. H. Wilhelm, president of the A.P.S., P. M. Wolsieffer, Victor Rotnem of Gossip, Willard O. Wylie of MEKEEL'S. Radiographs were read by Dr. E. Preston Hoskins. One was from Riga, Latvia:—"Karl Koslowski declines the office of president of Latvia. It is stated on good authority that he has filed application for the office of postmaster." Another from Rotnem read:—"Suggest that Mich. Stamp Club provide publicity manager Boers with a stenographer and typewriter." Other similar radiograms were read.

bers for over an hour with some fifteen different musical instruments, including homemade contraptions, invoking a great deal of merriment. The feature was greatly enjoyed. A community sing was followed by dancing. The committee in charge of the banquet consisted of Dr. H. Preston Hoskins, Harry Carter, L. A. White, C. C. Rodenhauer and Herman W. Boers.

The tables were arranged for parties of six, and nicely decorated made a pleasing effect. A special souvenir was prepared by the writer, consisting of a photographic reproduction of a block of six U. S. 3c 1861, showing a shield cancellation on each pair of stamps. This was a unique feature. The menu card was printed in green and bore the picture of Benjamin Franklin.

(6) Lot of 1,000 1c 1898 (green) in original bundles with many precancels	4.00 1.50

Also very large unbundled quantities of most of above particularly 2c 1894-5 (a high proportion being unwatermarked). These are offered in the second price column and any quantity can be ordered at the 1,000 rate, 10,000 at 10% discount. We cannot guarantee these loose stamps to be unpicked, but believe most if not all are.

The business is now in process of rejuvenation and I want to ask the indulgence of those having orders in at this time. All orders received will have attention at the earliest possible moment. LEEWARD ISLANDS, 11-2d

By HARRY E. HUBER.

When the world war broke out in August, 1914, all the Leeward Islands Presidencies, except the British Virgins, were using stamp designs introduced in 1903. That of Antigua was the Royal Arms and Presidential Seal (1/2d to 2s6d); St. Kitts-Nevis, the Seals of St. Kitts (Columbus sighting land), and of Nevis (Sulphur Baths), on alternate denominations, 1/2d to 5s, and Dominica, a view of Roseau from the sea (1/2d to 2s6d). The Seal of Montserrat (Hope clinging to a cross) appeared on that Presidency's Postage & Revenue series (1/2d to 2s6d). The 5s of Antigua, Dominica and Montserrat were in large receipt size (vertical rectangular), with the head of King George V adapted to the 1903 frame designs. In the British Virgins, however, several changes had taken place since 1899 when the Madonna with lilies design made appearance. In 1904, the DLR-1888 keyplate design (Postage & Revenue) with the head of King Edward VII was used for all values, 1/2d to 5s, and in 1913, the same design, but with the head of King George V substituted.

Montserrat brought out on October 10, 1916 (authorised by Order-in-Council of Sept. 25, 1916), a series in the King's head and Seal type, small size, the denominations being 1/2d, 1d, 2d, 2 1/2d, 3d, 6d, 1s, 2s, 2s6d and 5s. All were printed on multiple Roman CA watermarked paper. By an Order-in-Council of March 24, 1922, additional denominations of 1/4d 1 1/2d, 4d, 5d, 3s and 4s were authorised, and these were issued July 13, 1922. The £1 stamp authorised at the same time has never been requisitioned.

The next Presidency to make a change was St. Kitts-Nevis, and there on June 15, 1920, a double medallion series (authorised by Order-in-Council of June 7, 1920) was issued in 12 denominations, 1/2d, 1d, 1 1/2d, 2d, 2 1/2d, 3d, 6d, 1s, 2s, 2s6d, 5s and 10s. The portrait of King George V appears in the left hand oval on all values, while in that at the right, the Seals of St. Kitts, and of Nevis, are used on alternate values. The £1 added to the series by an Order-in-Council of Jan. 9, 1922 was issued June 12, 1922. These were all multiple Roman CA watermarked.

On July 1, 1921, Antigua brought out a Postage & Revenue series in the well known King's head and Presidential Seal type, small size, similar to that used by Montserrat. This was authorised by Order-in-Council of June 29, 1921, and comprised the denominations of 1/2d, 1d, 2d,

2 1/2d, 3d, 6d, 1s, 2s and 2s6d. The 5s continued in large size, with the portrait of King George V adapted to the 1903 frame. By Order-in-Council of Jan. 9, 1922, 1 1/2d, 4d, 3s, 4s and 5s were added to the series, and issued Feb. 1, 1922. A stamp of £1 denomination was authorised by Order-in-Council of March 24, 1922, and placed on sale Sept. 1, 1922. All were multiple script CA watermarked, except the colored paper varieties, 3d and 5s (on yellow), 1s (on green), 2s and 2s6d (on blue), and £1 (on red), which were on paper with multiple Roman CA watermark.

The British Virgin Islands King's head and Seal series, small size, was provided for by Order-in-Council of March 24, 1922, and comprised ten denominations (1/2d, 1d, 2d, 2 1/2d, 3d, 5d, 6d, 1s, 2s6d and 5s). These were issued June 15, 1922, all script CA watermarked except the 3d and 5s (on yellow), 1s (on green), and 2s6d (on blue).

Ever since 1890, the DLR-1888 keyplate type, Postage & Revenue (with the necessary change in the sovereign's head) has been used for the Leeward Islands Federal series. An Order-in-Council of Sept. 3, 1901, authorised denominations of 1/2d, 1d, 2d, 2 1/2d, 3d, 6d, 1s, 2s6d and 5s, to which a 1/4d was added by order of February 20, 1909. The additional denominations of 4d, 5d, 2s, 3s and 4s were authorised by Order-in-Council of January 9, 1922, and 1 1/2d, by an order of May 17, 1926.

Madrid Convention (1920) Changes

By an Order-in-Council of Jan. 9, 1922, a rate of 2d was made effective from Feb. 1, 1922, on letters originating in the Federal Colony addressed to the "United Kingdom, other parts of the British Empire, Tangier, and the U. S. (including the U. S. Virgin Islands, Porto Rico, Alaska, Hawaii and the Canal Zone)." To other foreign countries, the letter rate was increased from 2 1/2d to 3d. Post cards for British Empire, U. S. and foreign destinations were increased from 1d to 1 1/2d, and the registration fee from 2d to 3d.

With the raising of the British Empire and U. S. letter rate to 2d (this of course had been the rate from the British Virgins since Sept. 1, 1916), the demand for 1 1/2d stamps was greatly lessened, though it still represented the post card rate for destinations beyond the Federal Colony.

On January 2, 1923, St. Kitts-Nevis issued a special series of stamps commemorating the 300th anniversary of the founding of St. Kitts by Sir Thomas Warner, in 1623. The denominations duplicated those of the double medallion series, 1/2d to £1, and were printed on script CA watermarked paper, except the 5s (on yellow), and £1 (on red).

Rumors had been current for many years that the View of Roseau type of Dominica was to be altered to permit the insertion of the King's portrait into the upper right corner. But on March 1923, a new series was issued, in large size, double medallion type, similar to but in much better design than the St. Kitts-Nevis series. The King's head appears in the right hand oval, and the Seal of the Presidency (old time sailing vessel) in that at the left. The values comprised 1/2d, 1d, 1 1/2d, 2d, 2 1/2d, 3d, 4d, 6d, 1s, 2s, 2s6d, 3s, 4s, 5s, 10s and £1, all script CA watermarked except the 3s and 5s (on yellow), and £1 (on red).

With the raising of the foreign post card and letter rates, color changes were necessary to allow of red being transferred to the 1 1/2d (foreign post card rate), and blue to the 3d (foreign letter rate). This necessitated a re-arrangement of the colors used for the 1d, 1 1/2d, 2 1/2d and 3d, which under the Crown agents color scheme of 1908, had been printed in red, orange, blue and violet on yellow respectively.

The St. Kitts-Nevis Tercentenary series of January 2, 1923, and the Dominica double medallion series of March 1, 1923, having been printed after the new rates were made effective were in new colors for the lower values; 1d violet, 1 1/2d red, and 3d blue. The 2 1/2d of St. Kitts-Nevis was printed in brown, and that of Dominica, in orange. Both series were bi-colored, with centers in black.

During 1922, color changes in the double medallion series of St. Kitts-Nevis appeared, the 1d violet in August, and the 2 1/2d brown and 3d blue in July. The 1 1/2d in red was not issued until August 15, 1923.

In the Leeward Islands Federal series, color changes were made in the 1d, 2 1/2d and 3d. The former in violet was issued August 21, 1923, and the 2 1/2d orange and 3d blue on Sept. 22, 1923, at Montserrat. The 2 1/2d orange is the best of the three. It was sent only to Montserrat, and the lot was small—only 50 sheets (of 120 each), or 6,000 stamps, and these exhausted during the summer of 1926. Those disposed of by the Crown Agents in London were of course additional.

On Sept. 27, 1923, the 1d violet and 2 1/2d orange of Antigua were placed on sale, and the 1 1/2d red on August 26, 1926. The 3d was not printed in blue, but appeared on script yellow July 23, 1925.

Montserrat, on April 5, 1923, brought out 1d violet, 1 1/2d red, 2 1/2d orange, and 3d blue.

On Sept. 1, 1923, the 2 1/2d of British Virgins was issued in orange, and the 5s on script yellow watermarked paper.

Stockholm Convention (1924) Changes

By Statutory Rules and Order No. 5, of 1926, made March 1, 1926, the rates on foreign letters, and those for the British Empire and the U. S., were reduced from 3d and 2d to 2 1/2d and 1 1/2d respectively, effective April 1, 1926. The post card rate of 1 1/2d was not changed.

With 1 1/2d rate restored on letters to the British Empire and U. S., there is now a double use for a stamp of this denomination. A 1 1/2d stamp was added to the Leeward Islands Federal series, by Order-in-Council of May 17, 1926, and printed from plate 11, in red, was issued Sept. 10, 1926.

The British Virgin Islands is also being furnished with a 1 1/2d red stamp (authorized by Order-in-Council of Oct. 8, 1926, No. 23, of 1926), and a reprinting of the 1d in violet is on requisition.

With the return of 2 1/2d as the foreign letter rate (since Apr. 1, 1926) future printings of the 2 1/2d for all Presidencies will revert to the original blue. This will necessarily affect the 3d and restore to it its former violet on yellow. Already the 2 1/2d blue of the Federal series, script CA., has been printed and dispatched to Montserrat. Antigua, Montserrat and St. Kitts-Nevis have re-issued the 2 1/2d in blue. The 3d violet on script yellow has been issued (for the first time) in St. Kitts-Nevis, and is on order for Montserrat. The 2 1/2d blue of Dominica has not yet been printed, and it seems unlikely that the 3d will be printed violet on yellow, inasmuch as a higher value (3s) in the series appears in these colors.

An Order-in-Council of Oct. 8, 1926 (No. 22, of 1926), authorizes and provides for the use of 1 1/2d post cards (single and reply) and envelopes, and 1/4d newspaper wrappers after January 1, 1927.

We have here a very gratifying list of applicants for membership in the Honor Club. Some of them have been subscribers to the WEEKLY for many years and their names will be familiar to our advertisers. From each a check for $5.00 has been received for five years' renewal of subscription and we are very grateful for this evidence of appreciation and esteem accorded us.

BEST CONDITION

Every stamp sold is in a thoroughly healthy condition whether it be a U. S. 10c 1847 (of which I have one copy with perfect margins, and lightly cancelled with blue town marking, and will exchange for $35.) or those incunabula from Liechtenstein (which I don't think fit into any of the sets I have advertised, but which I will let go to specialists in that country in exchange for unused White Plains on the basis of Scott's catalog, or for 10c a half ounce by weight). Every stamp sold is an original genuine and perfect stamp.

Every stamp sold is free from the gnawing tooth of a misplaced perforating machine. (If you find anything badly perforated, or lamely cancelled in N-1100, you will find that the packet is above count, and you must return the extra stamps and tell me what you want in exchange. In the other lots I have advertised there are no extras thrown in, but in N-1100 there is always a little overplus in count and value and a few higher value rather heavily cancelled are sometimes found as extra passengers). Every stamp sold is sold for the purpose of giving you pleasure and a valid return for your remittance.

N-1100 is $1. It will catalog $4, and does not contain any very common Europe or low denoms. of Portuguese or French Coins. In other words, no padding.

Having concluded this essay, I will resume next week the joyous task of writing ad copy.

Collecting New Issues

Gradually, more and more collectors come to the conclusion that securing stamps as soon as possible after they were issued is for many reasons about the most sensible way of collecting.

To meet this ever-increasing demand, we have built up two approval services called "USED SPECIALS" and "MINT SPECIALS" which are approval sheets containing chiefly new and recent issues in used and mint condition respectively. A trial selection will be gladly sent against reference.

SCIENCE AIDS PHILATELY

By A. J. SEFL

In a recent Editorial we drew attention to the dangers of repaired and cleaned stamps. For some time past we have, in conjunction with our Publishers, been studying possible ways of combating this evil. We are happy to announce that we have now in practical use a scientific method whereby almost all repairs and cleanings can be infallibly detected. This new method consists in the examination of specimens in a special cabinet under powerful ultra-violet rays directed upon the object through a special filter.

We feel a certain amount of pride in being first to introduce this method into philatelic practice in Great Britain, and are happy to note that experts, before whom we have demonstrated the results of our work, are fully satisfied of its possibilities, and several machines have been ordered through our publishers.

In the past, one of the methods of dealing with a repaired stamp has been to soak it in benzene, when the repaired portion sometimes appeared more opaque. By the new process any repaired portion of a stamp immediately stands out under the special lighting, while, in a cleaned specimen, the old pen-marks, even if invisible under a magnifying glass, are clearly revealed.

We are working on further extensions of the scientific principles involved in this apparatus, particulars of which it is not necessary to give here. Our intention, however, is to avail ourselves, wherever possible, of every scientific assistance that might be beneficial to the hobby.

We append herewith a few details of a more scientific nature which may interest some of our readers.

Very many bodies or materials, probably a far larger number than has hitherto been supposed, show under the influence of strong light an individual fluorescence, but usually of so weak an intensity that their own luminosity, coloured red, green, blue, etc., is not perceptible under the influence of ordinary sources of light. The brighter the source of light, the more intense the fluorescence; the darker the light, the less intense the fluorescence; in any case it remains imperceptible, because it is always overpowered by the bright light which produces it. What is required, therefore, is a source of light which gives out rays dark to the eyes, but possessing, nevertheless, sufficient actinism to produce the fluorescence.

Such a source of light was discovered to exist in the Quartz lamp, after it had been found possible to produce easily-handled filters permeable only to the invisible dark ultra violet rays, i.e., the rays of less than 4,000 A.U. wave length, all the bright light being entirely cut off. It is true that there was in existence already a certain fluid filter, composed of 2-3 different solutions placed one behind the other in layers (the so-called "Wood-filter"); but the production and handling of this filter was so complicated that a large number of those interested in this process found it impossible to fit to their lamps.

The new filter which we use is made of glass which appears quite black to the naked eye. The sun appears dark red through it, and the Quartz burner itself very dark violet. But the effective ultra-violet rays of the Quartz lamp, of about wave length 4,000 to 3,000 A.U., which are invisible to the naked eye, penetrate the filter. By means of these particularly actinic rays, with the simultaneous cutting off of all visible light, the characteristic fluorescence is produced with extraordinary intensity.

In the Quartz lamp mercury-vapour,

ROBSON LOWE

contained in a transparent vacuum tube made of fused Quartz, is brought to maximum temperature by means of electric current, and thereby produces a light of extraordinary strength.

It has long been known that incandescent mercury-vapour sends out chemically-active rays (ultra violet rays) of great intensity. But with ordinary mercury vapour lamps made of glass the ultra violet rays were absorbed by the glass covering. This is not the case with the Quartz lamp. Fused Quartz in the first place entirely permeable to ultra violet rays, and at the same time allows the mercury to be brought to much higher temperature than is possible in glass lamps, because fused quartz withstands a much higher temperature than that at which ordinary glass liquefies. Owing to the extraordinarily high temperature the amount of ultra-violet light produced is greatly increased, and so it became possible to construct a lamp which greatly surpassed any existing source of radiation as regards ultra violet rays.—Philatelic Journal of Great Britain.

ELIMINATION EXHIBITIONS By F. L. COES.

The New York Stamp Exhibition missed a chance for a lot more good publicity that might have been obtained at little expense. Bearing in mind the methods of the golf association, why not make the next exhibition a showing in all classes (except perhaps the "Championship" class,) of collections which have been selected by the method of area elimination. Properly run this would materially reduce the work of the committees on ratings, class descriptions, etc., and make the competition keener. This would also give a specially good chance for local clubs to run elimination exhibitions for the purpose of selecting possible contenders in the final "National Competition." Whether it would be best to make a hard and fast ruling that no additions are to be made after the local elimination or whether such additions might be made if admitted and so stated, would of course be a matter for consideration. It almost seems as if the allowing of additions would be wise. If a contender wins an elimination event in golf he at once gets busy in improving his faults and fixing up his weaknesses. Why not make the rules similarly easy for a collector?

Discussion of minor rules may be a good thing, but rather more the business of the Executive Board than the possible competitors. It seems as if the Elimination Exhibition would give publicity, and that this would at least make the next exhibition as large as the last. Why not?

The matter of frames per exhibitor is a matter for the Board in charge. No other form of dead competition limits the awards per competitor. Why the stamp cult? Cost being the main factor, the time or length of the show is distinctly a matter of funds. I believe Saturday to Saturday, open if possible Sunday P.M. and evening, would be well enough and worth trying. This would mean closing the trade booths for business Sunday, but nothing else.

The Elimination Exhibition would give the juries more time for deliberation, and the awards might well be omitted till the end of the show. In fact, the examining visitors ought to have a hand in judging the sweepstakes class, if there is one.

One word more in favor of the Elimination idea. The areas we serve are so great that the combined populace of any section cannot visit the final show without great expense. The holding of pre-shows to select final competitors would aid in giving a much larger section of our populace a chance to "see and enjoy," and a greater number of owners a chance to display, as runners up for the finals.

My comment on Mr. Luff's notes.

GEORGE WALCOTT SHOWS U. S. STAMPS Reported by CHAS. J. PHILLIPS.

On Wednesday, March 16th, there was a good gathering of members at the New York Collectors Club to see a special display made by Mr. George Walcott. Among those present were H. L. Lindquist (President), George Walcott, E. S. Knapp, J. N. Luff, W. Scott, G. Sloane, G. Ohlman, A. J. Goetz, Major G. W. Camp, C. Curie, Theo. E. Steinway, J. M. Bartels, V. Moizan, E. Perry, H. Delius, K. R. Cobbe, C. J. Phillips, H. Toasperm, Hugh Clark, W. Zimmermann, J. Rich, S. Rich, G. Burger, J. H. Hall, G. K. Parsons, Frank Crane, H. M. Konwiser, A. W. Vogt.

Before showing his stamps Mr. Walcott explained that he must apologise for showing only one volume but he had only mounted this one as he had been laid up most of the winter. The volume shown contained only the 1861, 5c buff, the finest selected copies only, each one being perfect and being selected for shade or cancellation. The first page consists of the unused, no less than ten perfect copies being shown in the shades of buff, brown-yellow, and olive-yellow.

Of the used stamps 132 copies were shown comprising a page of 29 with town cancellations in various colors, 20 grids also in several colors, then a page of stamps cancelled with numerals in circles, dots and the word PAID.

A great feature of the collection was the magnificent lot of stamps on covers, such as—Singles used as a domestic rate, probably an overpayment of the due rate. Singles showing part payment to Canada, France and Holland. Covers with pairs of 5c buff used to Canada. Covers with pairs used for Transcontinental rates from San Francisco. Then combinations of the 5c buff used with other stamps such as a cover with a 10c green Aug. 1861 used to France. Pair of 5c buff and a 10c August, 1861 used to Germany, and several covers with 10c green 1862 plus 5c buff, used to France and Germany. A cover with 5c buff and three 10c 1862 used to Switzerland. Strips of three 5c buff on covers to Germany. Also combination covers to the Canary Isles, Cape of Good Hope, etc., showing the use of the 45c and 60c rate, and finally a cover with an irregular block of six 5c buff with San Francisco cogwheel cancellation used to Germany.

Mr. Walcott also showed a wonderful lot of New Yorks, 1845, 5c black, all on covers from one correspondence and all addressed to Lyons, France. Every stamp in perfection condition, and in the lot, all the big "shifts" were represented. The gem of this superb lot was a cover used on July 15, 1845, the first day of use, and unsigned, most valuable and interesting and showing that these rare unsigned copies were the first few that were used.

Stop Press --- Another Spasm

It is most unfortunate that modern British Colonials are always found with original gum because it robs me of one of my pet arguments that collectors are foolish enough to pay about $10,000.00 a pint for mucilage. So I must find another thing to take a pot shot at this week—and oh, it is to be to Allah—ye shriners, I've found it. It's centering. Now years ago, about the time Walter Scott cut his first tooth—some fool started the centering business. Absolutely perfectly centered, etc. Brother sufferers of this wicked world the British Government printers are making stamps for the consumer not the collector. Don't kid yourself that Britain cares whether you buy her Colonial stamps or not—what collectors buy, or import, drop in a big bucket. And as the Government perforates its stamps to itself about 50%—or more—of my importations are not perfectly plumb and centered. The N. Y. dealers tried this game on me of demanding perfectly centered stamps—I showed them a sheet of Pounds and they hummed and they hawed, and spoke feelingly of plumb levels, even margins, etc., and I start to put the importation back they say, "Give me half a dozen, anyway." Of course. Piffle! I say try and get the best you can, but don't get too fussy because, if you are, you are going to have some lovely holes in your albums.

I don't propose or dare to dictate to collectors what they shall or shall not buy—but I do propose to try—if possible—to show the American collector that it's high time he comes back to reason and to collect stamps—plumb levels.

I've had some nice letters lately:—
"Awfully glad to see you back in the game, hope you'll hit out as you used to when you ran Gibbons."
"Put me down for two lists—want two in case I lose one."
"I think you know more about Colonials than the Government does."
(That's a hot one.)

Meanwhile, my check list of XX Century British Colonials is 50c—this week, next week, and for ever. No competition, cinch. If you want me to supply stamps, say so, but I don't hang 'round auction rooms and tag the dealers in the hallway—In fact, I abominate all kinds of slimy business practices and I'm here, on the job, to help you if you want to get your collections up to the minute. If you are a 50% fiend, leave me alone, please.

THE PRECANCELS OF WILMINGTON, DEL.

By A. C. LEDUC.

It is only natural that Wilmington, the largest city in the state, should have been the first to use precancelled stamps. The plate used for precancelling stamps for this Post Office up to 1925 was similar to style U-10, except that "Wilmington, Delaware" are in plain letters (no serifs) and between lines instead of bars. (Called the "old plate" in this article.) Since 1925 the precancels have come from a new plate, style U-11. The letters have serifs and the words are between bars instead of lines. (Called the "new plate" in this article.)

The exact date of the use of the first precancels is unknown, but it is supposed to have been at the time the last perf. 12 issue was still current. The use of precancels at Wilmington has become more common among the large business houses during the last two or three years. The local Postmaster has endeavored to get the large mailers to use precancels, as it expedites the handling of their mail. Precancels are used at the parcel post windows of the Post Office the year round for the mailing of packages handed in by the general public. The first values precancelled for Wilmington were from the last perf. 12 set and ran from 1c to 10c. These are not at all plentiful. Very few have ever been found inverted. A 4c parcel post is listed in the catalog but I have never seen one and have never been able to find any one who has. Can anyone give any light on the matter? Of the perf. 10 precancels the values used were 1c to 10c and so far no one has found any inverts in this issue.

With the advent of the perf. 11 issue the precancelling work has not been of as good a grade as formerly. Many stamps show only a part of the wording. Every sheet of stamps precancelled has half of the stamps normal and half inverted as the present printer has a small press and only half of a sheet can be fed into the press at one time. This necessitates turning each sheet around in order to print the other half. On account of so much labor involved there appear more faulty imprints. There are frequent double prints of the normal and inverts; a few have also appeared where the imprint was double in which one was normal and the other inverted. They are bound to occur where there is careless work. Where half of the sheet is printed one way and half the other it is natural that the two center rows of a sheet should be inverted to each other. Normal and inverted pairs are not common as sheets are usually split thru the center.

The use of precancelled due stamps has been discontinued. They are exceedingly hard to find and are much scarcer than the catalog prices would indicate. A great many 2c Hardings were used. Of these the double inverts are rare and as there are only 50 copies known the catalog price is due for an adjustment. These double prints have no philatelic flavor, as they were found among several thousands of Harding precancels and are known to have been entirely accidental.

All values of the old issue perf. 11, 1c to 12c inc. and the 15 and 50c, have been precanceled with the old plate. The new plate has been used to precancel the 3c offset and the 11c and $1.00 normal and invert in all cases. The old plate has been used to cancel the values 1, 2, 3, 4, 5, 6, 7, 8, 10, 11, 12, 14, 15, 20, 25, 30, 50, and $1.00 normal and invert or up or down as the case may be. The new plate is coming into regular use on the values of the new issue perf. 11 and the perf. 10 x 10 as they appear.

So far only one stamp has been issued in style U-97, that being the 1½c coil. The 1½c Bureau print coil is now taking its place. I have a 25c of the current issue cancelled with rubber precancel stamp Wilmington Del. in style U-53 reading up. This is the only one I have seen and suppose it was used at some time when the regular 25c electros ran out. With all the recent changes of plates, stamps and perforations there is a big field in which to work and there are bound to be some very good items among them.—Precancel Gazette.

EDITORIAL

We are in the thick of things and the WEEKLY is having the busiest time of its life. Indeed, collecting has become so well established that it is on a par, almost, with pursuits, professions or what you will that have long been recognized as having their places in everyday life. Correspondents are active, clippings are coming in shoals and reports of developments in our world are more numerous than ever before. We have been given to understand that two weekly stamp papers are possibilities and one hardy soul has asked if a daily sheet is sheer foolhardiness. While we may commend the enthusiasm of the one who plans a daily in his thoughts, we may take advantage of the question to say a few words on philatelic journalism. It is true as John K. Tiffany said years ago, that the collector could have a stamp paper at his breakfast each morning if he cared enough for philatelic fare, and the admission is made now that there are fewer papers published to-day than when Mr. Tiffany made his observation. The curtailment has been due to a variety of causes, none of which reflects on the growth of philatelic interest. In an economic sense, it is more of an undertaking to launch a new journal at present than it was years ago, and for that reason alone, ambition does not over-ride sound judgment. Even the young man is apt to realize that unless he has ideas of making philatelic publishing a life work, it is unwise to regard a stamp paper a temporary expedient that will return him results commensurate with time and money invested; and so he grows out of the philatelic publishing phase. The stamp papers of the present are more permanent and have larger circulations than those of years past, in line with the consolidating tendencies of the times. As for the daily, devoted to stamp news, one may not say truthfully that as a business proposition, it is attractive even for the investment of "speculative funds." Too many practical considerations argue against a successful issue, but we shall not attempt to list them, lest it may be thought that we should not welcome such a publication into the fold. Too much expense and too much work would enter into the proposition to make it feasible. In 1896, two hundred and eighty-five numbers of the Daily Stamp Item were mailed and years later, Mr. Eben S. Martin published his paper for about the same number of days; and since then, no one has tempted fate in this way.

Writing for the Hawaiian Philatelic Society, Mr. Edw. L. Caum, Honolulu, remarks: "A committee has been appointed by the Governor of Hawaii to make all necessary arrangements for a celebration to be held in Honolulu in 1928, to commemorate the sesquicentennial of the discovery of the Islands by Captain James Cook; and the Hawaiian Historical Society and the Hawaiian Philatelic Society have gone on record as favoring the issue of a series of commemorative stamps for the occasion. This plan has received the unofficial approval of the governor and the postmaster; and steps are now being taken to present the matter to the proper authorities through official channels. It is thought that stamps bearing the portrait of Captain Cook, a picture of the monument at Kealahou Bay, where Cook lost his life, or other designs appropriate to the occasion would be of considerable interest, not only to us here in the islands, but to the country at large." It is not for us to say that the Hawaiian Islands do not deserve stamp recognition of the kind; and we believe that there is a disposition to discriminate in favor of the commemoratives that have a broadly national aspect rather than those of localized significance. It is known that sometimes campaigns for celebratory issues are started by "drive directors" and "publicity experts" whose interest in the objectives are commercial instead of purely sentimental, and that the demand for the special stamps is manufactured to some extent. Again, the force behind the Hawaiian movement is based on a sense of historical appreciation and is unattached in any way to a measure that may be given a narrow implication.

We have received an interesting letter from Mr. DeWitt C. Sprague, Des Moines, Iowa: "I am sending you a copy of the West High Tatler, a St. Patrick's Day number, of the current week. An unusual feature of a high school publication appears in the box, 'In the Spotlight' (a regular feature). I tried to use some 'indirect propaganda' and had the staff paste an Irish stamp on each of the 850 copies circulated. The suggestion that a stamp is an actual bit of the country of its origin may encourage some youngsters to continue and stimulate others to begin collecting stamps. As I act as faculty adviser to the staff and teach high school journalism at West Des Moines High School, there will appear a story of putting out this feature, and other articles will follow." Flanking the half-penny green, Ireland, are the words: "A Symbol of Ireland. An actual bit of the Irish Free State. The Tatler gives its readers an Irish Postage Stamp in lieu of a 'bit of the old sod.'" Here is a new wrinkle that embodies an original idea so far as its connection with outside journalism is concerned; and all credit is to be given our correspondent for developing it effectively. Moreover, the Tatler is one of the best school papers that we have ever seen, and it affords a fine setting for the philatelic picture. On the score of an ounce of practice is worth a pound of precept, Mr. Sprague's action is beneficial to our pursuit in no small way.

The case involving the confiscation of stamp cuts and electros by the Canadian authorities may not have the far-reaching consequences that it was feared that it was fraught with, at first. In answer to our inquiry on the subject, reliable correspondent informs us that misapplied zeal on the part of an official accounts for the drastic action of the authorities. He says: "I wrote at once to the Deputy P.M.G., Senator Caldwell, and others, pointing out that we stamp collectors might be nuts, but not crooks, and that I hoped when they had satisfied themselves of this, the cuts would be returned. . . . I think that they realized very well that philatelists are a well-garnished body of considerable size and importance in the community, and anything that has such a serious effect on it without really accomplishing anything for the Department were better 'left alone,' which is the gist of my letter from Ottawa." It transpires that cuts entering into the composition of Butler's forthcoming year book, which subscriptions up to five thousand are said to be entered, were seized with the warning to Mr. Butler that he p ced no further in the production of the work. It seems that when proofs of the publication reached the hand of an official, he jumped to the conclusion that something was irregular and that heroic measures were necessary to stop the sludgery.

Through the courtesy of Mr. LeGrand Payne, Indianapolis, Indiana, we have received a cover from Saint Patrick, Missouri, dated March 17, 1927, a happy souvenir of the day. From Mr. H. H. Hoerning, Verona, N. J., an envelope bearing a 12c Cleveland has come, postmarked Caldwell, New Jersey; and in the corner of the envelope, Mr. Hoerning has written: "Grover Cleveland was born in this city 90 years ago today, 3-8-1927."

SIFTINGS

At a meeting of the Collectors Club, New York, Mr. George Walcott exhibited his volume containing no fewer than two hundred copies of the five-cent buff of 1861, U. S., including the rarer shades, on cover and off. Over twenty of the specimens are unused, and the combinations of these stamps on envelopes were scanned with appreciation by the members.

A correspondent has taken the trouble to send us a Canadian stamped envelope, 2c, bearing the imprint in red, in two lines, "Par Cometeque—By Labrador Dog-team Post," that originated at Cartwright, Labrador, on January 5, 1927. Five other postmarks indicate the line of postal march; and it took the envelope well over two months to make its thrilling journey. A 4c Newfoundland stamp paid the postage.

A comment in a letter from Mr. H. M. Konwiser strikes the right note: "The recent splendid philatelic show in New York developed the important idea that the one big lesson of the show" was that it paved the way for smaller annual shows elsewhere. A great tidal wave of enthusiasm was let forth, but what is being done to conserve the enthusiasm?" He says that if St. Louis is to have an exhibition it is high time to prepare for it, and adds: "If the St. Louis folks want to hold one in August, they need to form a committee, seek funds and entries, and hire a hall. The rest will be a matter of routine."

One keen observer of the swing of the philatelic pendulum notices that foreign collectors are taking advantage of the concentration of collectors here on U. S. to buy good foreign stuff, which they seem to think more of than the home collectors. This brings to mind the statement of an advertiser in his announcement that rare stamps bring 30 to 100% more in Europe than they do in this country.

A correspondent says that the Atlanta Collectors Club, Georgia, which has a good location in a downtown building, is letting the public know of its existence by numerous frames of postage stamps in prominent show-windows of business houses in the city. The example is one that could be followed by societies in other cities, in these days when suitable material for window display is in demand by the large stores.

FORMERLY COLMAN—NOW ROBINETTE

H. F. Colman, who since 1893 has been in the stamp business in Washington, D. C., announces that he has disposed of his interests in the business to H. A. Robinette, who for some time has been the manager of the foreign department. Mr. Robinette's long experience with Mr. Colman admirably fits him for the continuance of the business and we sincerely trust that he will be given the full measure of patronage which has been bestowed upon his predecessor.

Origin of Countries' Names (Insert in Your Album.)

Tobago, discovered by Columbus in 1498, was by him named Asuncion = "Assumption," a Festival celebrated by the Roman Church on August 15th. Its present name is clearly the Spanish tabaco = "tobacco," a plant associated both with this island and also with Trinidad. The latter name was used in this country as a synonym for tobacco.

Transjordan—The first part of this name is, of course, the Latin preposition trans = "over." The latter part is the Hebrew Yarden, and is always found with the definite article. It means the "descender" from the Hebrew word yad = "to descend." It is called by the Arabs "al 'urdun," which is what is found on the overprinted Palestine stamps, together with the Arabic word sharq = "East."

Trinidad—Columbus, we are told in history, vowed that the first land he discovered he would name after and dedicate to the Holy Trinity. When, on the evening of July 31, 1499, he came into sight of this island and saw the triple mountain peaks, which are one of its features, it seemed a heaven-sent confirmation of his vow. The name is the Spanish Trinidad = "Trinity."—Stamp Collecting.

Stamp News for the Juniors

Is there anything you want to know about stamps or stamp collecting? If so, write the editor. What would you like to see in this department? We have no way of knowing unless you tell us. Mr. Senior Collector, can't you give the boy collector about 50 words of encouragement along practical lines? Address your letter to the Beverly office.

Junior Gossip

—A Junior Stamp Club has been formed in Beverly, N. J. Its officers are Harry Katz, president; Wm. Kolberg, secretary and Albert Heineke, treasurer. The club has nine members.

—GEORGE PLOTKIN.—We do not have on hand the perforation scale described recently. If we can get a supply due notice will be given. Thanks for your article from the New York Sunday World, with its argument for the adoption of auto vending machines. The 4c U. S. comes in shades that are quite distinct.

—Can any dealer or collector inform us the name of some party who is using the new style perforation gauge pictured in the WEEKLY several weeks ago? If so, we shall be grateful for the information. Several of our Juniors have sent in asking for specimens.

—H. E. SMITH.—If you will write to F. H. Vallancey, 89 Farringdon St., London, Eng., you can no doubt secure information in regard to a book on the stamps of Malta.

—Our Juniors failed to read the article on map stamps printed in a recent number. The result was that many of the stamps chronicled in that number were named by the competitors in this contest. Duplication exists to such an extent that we have decided to call the contest off. Prize awards were made as usual.

Only a Scrap of Paper

(B. Fisher, Jr., in "Stamp Coll. Magazine".)
It's only a scrap of paper,
With some coloring on one side.
It's only a scrap of paper,
Perhaps not one inch wide.

Perhaps it shows a ruined town,
That's knocked by shot and shell.
Or perhaps a king who's lost his crown,
Or perhaps The Liberty Bell.

Besides, it's knowledge in itself.
That's why you should retain it,
And not be overcome by pelf,
And sell before you gain it.

A Philatelic Zoo

Did you ever try to pick out a philatelic Zoo, and one arranged alphabetically, at that? For example Ant-eater, Fr. Guiana—Buffalo, U. S. 30c; Camel, Sudan; Deer, North Borneo; Elephant, Br. N. Borneo; Fer-de lance, St. Lucia; Giraffe, Nyassa; Hippo, Liberia; Impalla, Liberia 2c; Jackal, Turkey-in-Asia; Kangaroo, Australia; Leopard, Fr. Congo; Monkey, Liberia; Nellore Cow, Borneo 18c; Orang-Outang, Borneo; Polar-bear, Norway No. 120; Quagga, Orange Riv. Colony; Rhino, Borneo; Seal, Newfoundland; Tiger, Fed. Malay States; Uruguay Longhorn, Uruguay No. 171; Vicuna, Peru 4c; Wolf, Fiume Charity; Yellow Tapir, Borneo; Zebra, Nyassa.—PERCY A. HILL.

Dots on U. S. Stamps

Relative to certain dots which you find upon the 2c issue of 1890, I would inform you that these are what are known as position dots. When a flat sheet of steel is marked off for stamp impressions, lines are first drawn and then little dots are made, so that each subject will register squarely and an exact distance from the next subject. It is supposed that part of the impression will fall on the position dot and hence cover it up. We find, however, in most of our earlier issues and quite a few of our late ones, that the dots may be found. Taking our earlier issues such as the 1847, you will find the position dots in the little three leaf ornament on the left, midway down the side of the stamp.—PHILIP H. WARD, Jr.

"Yes Siam."

"Yes, I Sudan. I was surely Angra with her."

"Did you Sweden my Java? Give me Samoa."
"Tell that orchestra to Tunis something. I'm through."

Reprints.—(Fr., réimpression; Ger., Neudruck; Sp., reimpression).—Impressions taken from original printing plates or stones of stamps that have ceased to be issued by the post office, as specimens for sale to collectors or otherwise.

Se tenant.—Means "joined together." A term used when two stamps have not been separated, the one generally being an error or variety.

Sheet of Stamps.—An entire unsevered quantity of stamps as printed.

Specimen.—Stamps overprinted thus have been sent to the members of the "Universal Postal Union," or to postmasters as samples of new issues.

Strip.—An unsevered row of stamps, either vertical or horizontal.

Sulphuretted.—Erroneously termed "oxidized." A change of color, generally due to action of fumes of sulphur upon the printing ink.

Surcharge.—An "overprint" which confirms or alters the value of a stamp.

Tête-bêche.—Signifies the inversion of one stamp of a pair in relation to the other. When such a pair is severed the peculiarity disappears.

Local Stamps

Local stamps are those available for use in a circumscribed area and fall into two main divisions—government and private locals. Government locals are included in most general catalogues, private locals are not, and though some in the latter class are equally as interesting as those in the former, their omission from the catalogues militates against their general collection. Among Government locals we find such labels as the 1c and issued by the Spanish government in 1900 for use within the city of Madrid, and Inter-island stamps of Hawaii, and stamps provisionally used by various departments of Peru during the war with Chili.

Of private locals those of the United States and China are best known, the simple reason that these are listed in Scott's local catalogue. There are many others, such as the interesting Russian stamps of Russia and the equally interesting rubbish issued in Germany and Switzerland solely for the exploitation of stamp collectors.

A NOVEL CONTEST

By CHARLES F. SCHELL, Braintree, Mass.

We are greatly indebted to Mr. Charles F. Schell for a novel contest in which Juniors should be interested. From a block of letters below it is possible to spell out the names of numerous persons whose portraits appear on postage stamps, by starting with one letter and moving to any of the adjacent letters without skipping. The moving may be not only horizontally and vertically, but also diagonally, and we have printed the word WASHINGTON in distinctive type in order that our readers may know the method of solving the puzzle. Here is the block of letters:—Letters may be used just as many times as may be desired, so long as the continuity in moving from one letter to another is maintained.

Mr. Schell offers ten prizes as follows:—(1) A stamp cataloged at $1.00; (2) Brazil Nos. 23 and 24; (3) Guatemala No. 196; (4) Guatemala No. 197; (5) Liberia No. 58 and 128; (6 to 10) a stamp cataloged 10c or more each. To secure one of these prizes at least twenty-five names must be sent in. Surnames only should be used, except in the case of crowned heads where the person is usually known by the Christian name only. One name counts only once, even though it may occur on the stamps of one or more different countries and designate two or more different persons. Nine of country and catalog number should be added after each name. This contest will close April 25, and all correspondence relating to the same should be addressed to Mr. Schell and to any of the three offices of the WEEKLY at Beverly, Portland or Chicago.

TWO EXHIBITION QUESTIONS

By N. Y. M.

Mr. Luff's masterly effort prompts these two thoughts on the first two questions:

"Should Judges be allowed to enter exhibits for competition?" Granting that no judge would care for obvious reasons to judge the class in which he entered an exhibit—why not? It seems reasonable to think that, as often happens in other exhibitions, an exhibit might get a fair shake, and not an extra favor, in such conditions.

Not much difference between this and the horse show, where the owner competitors often judge classes where they are not entered; or the great and exhilarating American cattle show, where the Jersey fancier competes for cattle honors, and rides his favorite in the jumps, at the same time filling in as judge on the Airdales and Poland-China hogs. There will surely be some lacerated feelings by losers anyhow, and that kind of people would holler even if the judges were the Twelve Apostles, or a selected jury from Valhalla. As to that, there never was a "fair" jury to most losers. "Should collections that have won golds at other shows be barred from competing, except in the Championship class?"

Well, mebbe so—but who ever saw the same collection shown twice, unless by a man's executors or heirs? It won't be the same 24 hours after the owner gets it back from the show, no matter whether he won a gold, palms, etc., or was only an "also ran." Granted that the classes might be split more and the chances of a win made broader, there is no reason why the collection shown by

SOUTH WEST AFRICA

Have you ever stopped to consider how extremely scarce the earlier settings of these stamps are getting? Recent years have seen the prices of many Colonial stamps move skyward,—yet, most of these rarities appear on the market from time to time, in fact, most of them are seen quite often, and their soundness guarantees that their prices are maintained. There is, however, a small "ultra exclusive" group of modern Colonials which are practically never seen in dealers' offerings and auctions, and which are missing in many of our most important collections. Such stamps usually bring "record prices" when they come in the market. The market seems to be starving for them,—and do you know that stamps like the S. W. A. high values, settings I & II, in a quite recent auction brought full cat. or even much more—in fact, $29-30 fetched $113.00.

We hold a wonderful lot of S. W. Africa just now—all in horiz. pairs, of course—including even a few of the invert. o'prints. You had better hurry and let us quote you because our present supply will not last long.

NOTE.—We are now putting out a new series of books of each Colony which will be sent to collectors known to us—otherwise against usual references. Many of these are ready for inspection. This is a grand series of books, priced very moderately. In using this service you will be drawing on—and getting the pick of—one of the greatest stocks of modern British Colonials in existence. It may also be worth your while to look up our offers as made in MEKEEL'S since Nov. 15th—the great majority still hold good, and quite a few have even been reduced.

We believe the purchase of these an excellent investment. Several of them are decidedly scarce—and personally we place Leeward Is. No. 76 at the top. Only on sale at Montserrat our records show it was printed but once. Priced by Gibbons at 5 shill.

a winner should not compete in the identical class again, and if it meets a spunky competitor, chances are it will be less of a walkover than the first award was. Why? Because the owner will "let up" a little (rest on his laurels?) and the close competitors will crack on all steam (step on it) to get even. True competition is the life of any show.

I think several competitors can offer a workable solution to this. The only fight will be on whose plan to adopt. This being the real fight in Prohibition, and the Tariff, and Farm Relief, and Religion, and everything else that is debated.

I am signing initials which might mean "Nice Young Man" but which mean N. Y. Medallist, so you guessed wrong.

UNITED STATES

Postage and Revenue

While I hold one of the finest, if not the best, stocks of the postage stamps of the United States in the hands of any professional and solicit want lists from the serious collector, nevertheless, right at the present time I much prefer to buy rather than to sell. While I want anything worth while and superb in the postal and revenue issues of the United States, I more especially desire:

- (1). Mint singles and mint blocks, 1847 to 1880.
- (2). Mint blocks, 1881 to 1900.
- (3). Bureau errors, including part perforates, inverts, etc.
- (4). Fine early covers.
- (5). Revenues—inverted centers.

The highest cash prices will be paid for such properties and these items are desired whether in small lots or in substantial collections. I do not ask for properties upon consignment but am pleased to purchase for prompt cash.

If you are thinking of selling your collection or duplicates, please communicate with me.

2c Battle of Bennington Stamp

The Postmaster General has just authorized the issuing of a 2c red postage stamp to commemorate the battle of Bennington. It is said that the stamp will be the size of the normal variety, will be printed in sheets of four hundred and distributed in panes of one hundred. At the present time, it has not been decided as to whether it will be a flat plate or rotary print. The design has not been approved, although the Bureau is now working upon the stamp. It is expected that it will be issued early in August and will possibly be placed on sale for the first time at both Bennington, Vt., and Washington, D. C.

Bennington is a small village situated at the foot of the Green Mountains, in Bennington County, Vermont, in the southwest portion of the state, about thirty miles from Troy, N. Y. The well-known battle of Bennington took place about five miles from the city on August 16, 1777. The American soldiers numbering two thousand, consisted of Green Mountain boys, together with militia from New Hampshire and Massachusetts. They were all under the command of General John Stark and met two detachments of Burgoyne's army, which they defeated. The victory had an important influence on Burgoyne's campaign, as it weakened his strength and encouraged the American militia to take the field against him.

This town was also the home of Ethan Allen and Seth Warner, and was named after Governor Benning Wentworth of New Hampshire.

No doubt the stamp will show one of the scenes from the battle.

Numerous other issues commemorating Revolutionary events are being asked for, but it is a question for the Postmaster General to decide. Personally, I believe that the last two years would have been an excellent time to have issued a series commemorating important events of the years 1776 to 1777.

Special Series For Hawaii

All interests in the Hawaiian Islands are active at the present time arranging for suitable celebration to commemorate the 150th anniversary of the discovery of the Islands by Captain Cook in 1778.

Mr. James A. Garvie kindly sends us further clippings from the local newspapers in which mention is made that not only the Historical Society, but that the Hawaiian Philatelic Society have gone on record as favoring two postage stamps, illustrating events in connection with the discovery. They have asked the Hawaiian legislature to request the Postmaster General to prepare two special stamps and designs are now being made in the Islands, which will be submitted. Of course, if the proposition receives the favorable consideration of the Postmaster General, the stamps will be good for postage not only in the Hawaiian Islands, but in the United States as well.

Mr. Bruce Cartwright, a well known philatelist of Honolulu, has been requested to confer with Postmaster Wooley of Honolulu, concerning the issuing of such stamps. The clipping mentions that it is reported that a granddaughter of Captain Cook is now living in Canada. It is hoped that a descendant of the explorer may come to the Hawaiian Islands in 1928 in connection with the celebration.

Air Mail Notes

Under date of March 12th, the Information Service of the Post Office Department announces that contract air mail service between Pittsburgh and Cleveland will be inaugurated on April 21st. Mr. T. Clifford Ball of McKeesport, Pa., was awarded the contract to cover this route sometime ago, and has now completed final arrangements for the inauguration of this service.

Provisional stops will be made at Youngstown, Ohio, and McKeesport, Pa., and these two cities will be given the benefit of the air mail just as long as the business warrants.

A schedule has not as yet been worked out, but it will be so arranged as to con-

Philippines

Mr. F. L. Brigham of the Bureau of Insular Affairs at Washington announces that they have just received from the Philippine Islands some of the 26 cent issue, in addition to the 20c Special Delivery, so that the Bureau of Insular Affairs are now in a position to immediately furnish in addition to the 26 cent series through the 26c, the current series of the lower denominations from 2c to 30c inclusive. The supply of 1 peso is at present exhausted but further supply is expected in short order. The 2 peso and 10 peso, perforated, are also available.

Attention of collectors and dealers is called to the fact that remittances must be made in cash or by money order, that sufficient postage is to be included to cover return registration.

I wish to thank Mr. F. C. Bundlie for notes of interest.

AFGHANISTAN.—M. Champion informs us that a new series of stamps is soon to be put on issue, as and when supplies of the current ones are exhausted. He says that the Afghan post has been placed under the direction of a French official—which is somewhat surprising, we think, in view of the terms of the international agreement giving preferential treatment to Great Britain in Stamp Collecting.

BELGIAN EAST AFRICA.—M. Champion writes that the printing of the 1.25fr provisional, chronicled in our issue of January 22nd, consisted of 50,000 copies of which 20,000 were sold and the remainder for some unknown reason—are to be destroyed.—Stamp Collecting.

CUBA.—Whitfield King & Co. have shown us the 1c green, imperforate watermark star. They also advise that the 2c rose and 5c blue have been issued in like manner.

ESTHONIA.—A new currency has been decided on, the standard to be the Estonian mark, divided into 100 sayaks, one east equaling 100 Esthonian marks of the present.

MARKET IN MODERN COLONIALS

Irish Free State.—Some interesting letters from the dealers, followed the curious statement in a recent No. of the "P.M.," as to the unsaleability of an ordinary Irish collection. One imagines, however, that the writer was declaiming, not against trade advertisements to buy Irish, but against the very large number of articles appearing in the reading matter of certain philatelic journals, all boosting Irish issues as the investment.

In these notes, and in the "P.M.," no undue emphasis has been laid on Irish emissions, although it has been pointed out that from an investment point of view, they are very sound and certain items have been singled out from time to time.

There has been an unusual demand for Irish from abroad, and the prices have gone much higher than for most Colonial emissions issued in similar numbers.

The most sensational increase of the last year, however, was in the high value Thoms, but it must be pointed out that these, being regarded as only minor varieties, are not listed in Scott or Yvert, and that, therefore, the demand from abroad should be much less for these. The numbers overprinted of the Dollard high values were considerable. I have no figures, but the foreign demand has been so keen that they have reached higher prices than some of the rarest Edwardian and Georgian high values, which are actually far rarer as regards numbers printed, and a good example of this was given in the auction columns recently, when at the Pillister Sale the 5sh Dollard (block of 4) reached £5 15sh and the 5sh overprinted for Bechuana-land, De la Rue print, fetched £4 5sh, although it is a far rarer stamp, and was always hard to obtain, and probably not a tenth as many were issued as of the Irish stamp, yet so keen is the demand and so many are following the injunction and buying Irish that its market value is at present actually higher than the Georgian rarity.

What must be emphasized is that it is not the rarity but the popularity of Irish that makes them so valuable, and as long as the demand continues there is no reason why a steady advance should not continue; some, such as Thom Saorstats, will probably overtake the Dollards, whilst adjustments will take place. It is to be doubted if the 2s6d Thom will hold its market valuation of £5; on the other hand, the 10d Thom is much too low at 5sh, and will probably reach £1 during the next year or two.

Zanzibar.—Some of the recent issues of this Colony are worth watching and buying. I rather fancy some of the Scripts, but as a tip buy the 10 rupee with Mult CA watermark. It is really the rarest 20th Century stamp of this country, excluding ultra high values over £1 face. Yvert is the only catalogue pricing it at all above the average at 650 francs, nevertheless, it is a stamp with a future.

China and Hong Kong.—The events of the day give topical interest to these stamps, especially the last issue of Hong Kong overprinted China. The high values are worth picking up at current rates, whilst the 25c and 4c (script) both give us rare varieties, the latter with a missing stroke in the Chinese character not yet listed.

There is also the possibility of the re-issue of Chinese Expeditionary Force. These have been virtually obsolete for a few years, and their re-issue on the new Indian stamps would be an interesting souvenir of the struggle against the "Nationalist" forces in the unhappily divided celestial republic.

Trinidad.—Those who bought the 5sh Script (old type) as recommended in these columns, will, if they retain their holding, soon be able to congratulate themselves. It was recently obtainable at well under £1, but price has stiffened considerably, and the standard Price List (Turpin) just issued gives it as 40sh. It is relatively a better stamp than the £1 Script. In a small way the 6d current design in purple is improving, and is now selling for 2s6d and over (3s6d in same list).

It is noteworthy that most of the recent rare Colonials have turned out from those issued during the few years following the war, 1919-23. Perhaps printings were extra small, or more likely usual speculators were too busy turning over Neuropes and War Stamps, or their capital tied up in them. However it may be, again and again we find stamps of that period turn out so scarce when they are superseded. The latest example is the 3sh Dominica M for which a brilliant future seems likely. The 5sh will probably be not quite good, although it should reach the level within a year.

Speculators, however, are getting v as to the few remaining stamps cur on the old paper, and one cannot pre any striking rise in any of these still use, and although there may be some value that gets overlooked, there are likely to be any more showing such increase as the 5sh and 10sh Cayr 1922, or the 3sh Dominica.—Philat Magazine.

French Stamps On Original Cover

By DR. S. AVAZON, 140 West 42 St., N. Y. City.

TO collect stamps on the original cover is one of the most interesting hobbies from the view point of specialists.

Stamps on original cover give the collector the complete date and make the study of stamps far deeper, more interesting and more exact. The collector has before him the absolute proof that a stamp was sent from Station A, Y city to Station B, Z city. There is no disputing what is actually written in black and white.

If one is in doubt as to the exact date a certain stamp was put into circulation nothing will clarify that difficulty like seeing a cover with this stamp cancelled. It even verifies the date given in the catalogue.

A short time ago in answer to an article of mine appearing in the MEKEEL'S WEEKLY STAMP NEWS a noted French specialist wrote to me about the exact date the 20c blue greenish, Scott No. 16, was put into circulation. The fact that I had an original cover with this stamp settled the matter for all time.

From the historical point of view an original cover is intensely interesting. Take for instance the case of Nice and Savoy. At one time Nice was part of the Kingdom of Sardinia which today is part of the Kingdom of Italy.

Following the campaign against Italy the plebiscite decided that Savoy and Nice be annexed as a province of France, and was gladly accepted by the young Kingdom of Italy, confirmed by the treaty of March 14, 1860.

There are original covers stamped with the Kingdom of Sardinia post office cancellation on French stamps which vivify and remain as an everlasting memorial to the glorious history of this little kingdom. It proves most conclusively the vicissitude in allegiance that part of this kingdom, namely Savoy and Nice, passed through in becoming a province of France after having belonged to Italy.

From June to October, 1860, the post office used Italian cancellations to cancel French stamps then in use in Savoy and Nice, awaiting the perfection of the regular French cancellation. The illustrations accompanying this article show the three different types of cancellations. The Savoy cancellation has the orthography of the place and month in French, but in Nice they used Italian script. These accompanying cancellations on original cover which the writer has just described prove this historical fact, and are truly illuminating.

Within a few miles of Nice lies the smallest principality of the world called Monaco which passed under the jurisdiction of France in 1860.

From 1860 to 1885 this little principality used Sardinian and French stamps, and these stamps are exceedingly rare on original cover. The French stamp used in the cities of Monaco, Monte Carlo, and Mentone are very rare and these cancellations appear in different shapes and forms.

They are worth very much more on original cover, in fact they bring from

Collect Your State

A number of far sighted philatelists have decided to collect the early postal markings and CANCELLATIONS used in their own State or section. Some want only those prior to the Civil War, others go much further. The growing HISTORIC VALUE of such a collection is self evident. Museums will want it some day.

We now have clients desiring all New England, Vermont, R. I., N. Y., W. Va., Tex., Kas., Iowa, Nebr., etc.

We are handling many lots of ORIGINAL FINDS, every week now, such as 1851-69 3c, etc. Some fine ones came from the South. Who will take up Va. or Ala. or any other State? Let us hear from you.

"ORIGINAL COVERS"

AND

"STOP AT HUDSON"

For several years each of the above has been a very frequent headline in my advertising. Many, many original covers have obeyed the impulse to "Stop at Hudson," and I presume that at 602 Warren Street in this little City of Hudson (an incorporated city since 1785, by the way) reposes one of the largest accumulations of original covers in the country.

Now, Hudson is on the direct route from New York to Albany, 113 miles from the former and 28 miles from the latter. I invite cover enthusiasts to also obey the impulse and "Stop at Hudson."

and re-arrangement of Mr. Colman's large stock, I hope to be better prepared to take care of all clients. The business is now in process of rejuvenation and I want to ask the indulgence of those having orders in at this time. All orders received will have attention at the earliest possible moment. In going over the stock I expect to find many fine items, and would be glad to hear from parties interested in the stamps of U. S. and Colonies.

five to twenty times the commercial value of the stamps when on original cover, and this proves their scarcity on original cover. They are much more sought after in that condition.

Let us consider the Ballon Monte. Some of the stamps themselves are practically worthless but since they appear on the original cover marked "Ballon Monte" they are in great demand and their value increases from the point of view of the collectors, the historical interest, and the financial returns from the investment made in them.

Take for instance the French stamp 1870-73 issue Scott 59 whose catalogue price is listed as 2c. By chance during the siege of Paris in the fall of 1870 this stamp was used on a cover marked "Ballon Monte" and sent by the famous Ballon "La Ville d'Oreland" on the 24th of November, 1870, twenty minutes before midnight. Today one of these covers with this stamp listed 2c in Scott catalogue is sought after by the French specialist, and air mail collectors, and they vie with each other in the payment of fabulous sums for it. This cover is now an important item in a famous collection and is of intense interest historically, and its fame has been broadcasted by numerous articles and international prizes.

Let us stop a moment to consider a little of the fascination history of the Ballon Monte. We of the Twentieth century often pride ourselves in living in such an advanced age. We speak of our many conveniences, inventions, etc., and hail the developments in the perfections of the air mail service as part of our proof.

With chagrin one must relate that France took the lead in air mail service as far back as September, 1870, during the siege of Paris by the Prussians. During the month of October, the second month of siege, the air mail service from Paris was definitely established and balloons departed every three or four days from the capital. Several of them fell within the Prussians lines and their pilots were shot as spies.

The Amundsen of these expeditions by balloon were the Tissander brothers. Fortunately they have left accounts of their first journey on the fourth flimsy balloon to leave Paris on the 30th of September. This diary, written during this journey, reads like a thrilling dime novel, and speaks of the desolate appearance of the erstwhile gay, laughing and animated countryside about Paris. Just as the balloon was about to land among the eagerly awaiting Germans, the balloon dropped handbills containing the propaganda, the contents of which materialized during the next war between France and Germany.

These handbills read to the effect that France had no emperor or king, and that if Germany had the good sense to imitate France both countries would no longer kill each other uselessly like savage beasts.

The trip, from Tours or any territory friendly to France to Paris was so hazardous that no one except the Tissander brothers would offer to attempt it and they were unsuccessful.

In conclusion I should say that stamp collecting on original cover illuminates the national history, brings greatest return on the investment, proves conclusively the genuineness of the cancellation, and is a source of greatest information to the specialist.

United States "Educators"

This is the name we give to a series of approval books designed especially for those who want to know more about the 19th Century issues of United States stamps and who are interested in filling as many as possible of those empty spaces with stamps that are presentable in appearance and correctly classified.

These "Educator" approval books have helped scores of collectors to find the missing varieties they were not so sure of identifying, and have further given them some idea of values as governed by condition. They are priced for what we think they are worth, perhaps twice catalog, or perhaps 1/4 of catalog according to the desirability of the particular specimen.

SENIOR "EDUCATORS"

Are similarly arranged, but designed for those who want only fine copies and who are willing to pay for superior quality.

Both series of "Educators" represent all 19th Century issues with considerable completeness. Ask for any particular issue that interests you, or start with the 1847-51 booklet and work through the lot.

SPECIALIZED SELECTIONS

Made up to suit individual want lists, and include varieties of cancellation, of paper, of printing, of shade. Pairs, strips, blocks, covers; whatever your speciality our stock is at your service and should be of some use to even the most advanced specialist. [H2]

Some Notes on Incoming Foreign Mail Cancellations

My article a few months ago on Incoming Foreign Mail Cancellations received at the New York City P. O. from the West Indies and vicinity met with an unusual burst of enthusiasm from some of the students of cancellations, and several copies in the past few days' mail show that there is a lot of interest in oddities of our own cancels on foreign stamps.

The new country to add to that list is Dominican Republic No. 103, the 5c blue of 1899-1900, this being the most recent of any stamps which I have seen with these numerals. Possibly the cancel ran over into the 20th Century. The appearance of this particular cancel is smudgy as to outline, showing that the cancel is about worn out, the figures being very heavy compared to the earlier ones on the imperf. Haytis, which are clean cut. Mr. R. C. Osborne sent in this copy, and a Hayti imperf. also.

Many U. S. stamps have been sent in with these numbers in similar elliptical form of cancel; but none were the foreign mail mark. There are three points which will help you to eliminate the suspects at a glance:

1. The numerals are well formed, with what would be called serifs if the numbers were letters, and are never of the block type, for they have a thickness and thinness.

2. The two vertical lines forming the outer sides of this cancel have small curves cut into their inner sides, or edges, to permit the circle to pass without being tangent to these lines; and

3. The circle is a very thin line.

The above will help you to eliminate most of those U. S. city types with the fat little figures, and the small thick line circles. To further verify them, the height of a numeral is 9mm; and the diameter of this circle is 14mm, which you will find is much larger than used in the city cancels of similar shape and appearance.

Mr. G. H. Kennedy has shown me a very pretty cancellation on a 3c Nat'l. It is the head of a beast, resembling the Zebra of Nyassa, you will see it some day.

Mr. B. A. Oppenheimer has shown me a 5 point star with a small open triangle in the center on a 3c '69 cover pmkd. Springfield, Mass. This is the first one of these that has ever come my way, and you can probably find unusual cancellations in most any collection that you look at—what have you in your collection that would be interesting in the Forum?

It is an odd thing that no one has sent in any odd cancellations on those old big postage due stamps. One of the most frequently found is a very pretty precancelled N. Y. type, these initials being enclosed in a circle of fairly good sized dots, the N being upright, and the Y slipped in sideways, with its top at the left of the N.

Here are some of the interesting ones that I have saved up, all being on the big dues, not these little red ones of recent date that give a ruddy glow to the pan of water when you soak a bunch of them!

Boston used a red cross on many of these, it measures 14mm across, and would make a collector of 3c greens go into raptures if he could find some on his chosen stamps. The thickness of the cross varies, some being quite thick. Then there is the same size of cross enclosed in a circle, this being in black on the few I have found. Then you get the odd Maltese Cross in red from N. Y., with the cut into ends measuring some 20mm across, and a very pretty cancel. They are not hard to find. In same shade of red we get a large colorless A in a cut triangular piece the outer edges of the triangle with saw teeth, and a pretty cancellation. Another pretty red one is the "race track" type, i.e., double ringed ellipse, with what I take to be Washington at top, a large D in the center, and DUE at bottom. Town cancels in red are absent. Purple is next best in quantity, most of them being used in Washington, and a large T is on most of them somewhere, they are the race track type. Also an ellipse of big type with eight heavy horizontal bars, and the letter L in a small circle in the center of ellipse. These are hit in the bright

"SERIES B" BRITISH COLONIES

A new series of BRITISH COLONIES (including a few Great Britain and Canada) is now available under our popular INTENSIVE APPROVAL SERVICE in envelopes marked at 1/2c, 1c, 2c, etc. This selection contains stamps different from those in our B. C. Series A and includes both used and unused stamps, chiefly issues of the last few years (although there are quite a number of older issues) at prices which on the whole—we do not think—could be duplicated by any other dealer. A selection will be gladly sent against references.

purple of that period. The blue cancel is not much in evidence. There are a few open stars in circles in blue, however, and a few cut cork cancels in blue.

In black there are a quantity of odd designs in cut cork. A neat little cross in a square is unusual, the arms of the cross extending into the corners of the square. There are DUE 2, and 3 in circles like our common PAID 3 on 3c '57s, etc., of the postage stamps. One big 5 in a circle is neat. There is a circle with HELD FOR POSTAGE in thin letters. Also large type POSTAGE DUE in a straight line across several stamps, probably a precancel.

The town pmks. are not easily found, Philadelphia being most prominent. The targets and gridirons which are so common on postage stamps do not seem to be applied to these postage dues to any great extent. The dues seem to have an entirely different set of cancelling devices in the large towns. They are very interesting when found on the covers with neat cancels, and doubtless the readers have saved up a good many of these. If you have, you will notice that the dues used in the big cities have cancels which do not "tie them on" to the covers in many instances, which can mean only one thing, that they were cancelled in the sheet before they were stuck on to the covers.

I have never seen these in collections of precancels, and wonder why they are overlooked, as they are oftentimes more entertaining than some of the things that are in these collections.

FIRST DAY COVERS ROTARY PRESS

Through the courtesy of Albert E. Gorham we have been favored with first day covers of the new 5c and 7c rotary press, perf. 11x10 1/2. The date of issue was March 24, from Washington, D. C., and the covers bear the military training camps advertising slogan.

EAST AND WEST

WE have received a Bulletin from the Postal Card Society of America and note that the Whole Number is 101. Anyone interested in U. S. cards should write S. M. Edwards, Fargo, N. D., for a sample copy.

W. STEINBRUCH informs us that a slight error occurred in our article on Newark, Del., precancels. Reference was made to the fact that these precancels had been used only during the holiday period. Mr. Steinbruch says that early in 1925 the Continental Fibre Co. of Newark commenced the use of these stamps and they have been used continuously since.

FROM James A. Urquhart we have received a copy of his Pan-American Collectors Journal, which contains an interesting article on the imperforate stamps of Chile 1853 to 1867. Mr. Urquhart is the author. If interested, write for a sample copy at Box 3355, Ferry Sta., San Francisco, Cal.

DR. W. I. MITCHELL of Paonia, Colo., one of the leading precancel collectors, is selling all of his collection of precancels, except his 13c and his Bureau Prints. The Hoovers, 35 West 33 St., New York, are selling it by auction. The first sale was held March 4 and was sponsored by the New York Precancel Club, organized a few months ago, to which a percentage of the commissions is presented by the auctioneers.

HUBERT LYMAN CLARK of Cambridge, Mass., who is well known to many of our readers, in renewing his subscription includes a yearly subscription for Max J. Colvin, 4110 Wayne Ave., Kansas City, Mo. We quote from his letter:—"Mr. Colvin is a worthy shut-in and completely helpless save for the use of one arm and hand, but he writes a

Every live general collector needs it for we believe it offers more quality and variety in course of the year than any other house organ or list in America. It is not "just another list" as a host of leading American collectors realize. Why not you, too?

"NEW ONES"

Collectors are realizing that the new and recent issues are a "good buy". One surely cannot go wrong in buying current and recent issues if they are held any reasonable length of time. Few are in use long and when once obsolete the tremendous demand from the great army of collectors to-day, soon jumps values. Below we offer you a splendid variety of recent items, Jubilee, Charity, Pictorial, sets and single items. HERE AND THERE

Bro. Francis, St. Michael's College, Buckingham, P. Q., has forwarded a copy of the Toronto Star Weekly of Feb. 12th, containing a full page illustrated article, by Frank J. Ayearst, headed: "Have You a Fortune Hidden in an Old Trunk?" Starting with the story of Mr. Angus' find of a pair of twelve pence black, Canada, in Victoria, Vancouver, the scope of the article widens until it covers philately as a whole. The account is a good one and it must have attracted much attention from non-philatelic readers.

Mr. Joel H. DuBose, Atlanta, Georgia, has sent us what literally is a philatelic fragment of much interest; and one might with reason make it the subject of sentimental musings to some length. A piece of cover that was sent from this country to Bingen-on-the-Rhine shows the remains of at least nine of the 12c of the 1857 issue, U. S., as mute testimony to the vandalism of profane hands. One of the stamps was cut from the envelope and probably was saved in good condition but the others seem to have been destroyed wantonly. The cover with its block of nine or more of the stamps would have made a real philatelic ornament, as has been remarked on a former occasion when the piece was told of; and now that we have seen the wreck, imagination has been succeeded by conviction.

One of the best bits of philatelic publicity that we have ever seen appeared in the Milwaukee, Wis., Journal recently as an aftermath of the exhibition held there by the local philatelists. The manner in which some of the Milwaukee collectors were woven into the picture was effective and the article certainly must have given philately a stimulus in that city, the abiding place of many active workers in the cause.

Mr. Clinton L. Chalfant, Warsaw, Indiana, whose part in the making of the Warsaw Daily Times is evident sends the issue of March 25th, containing a half column account of a stamp exhibit in the window of the J. B. Watson Drug Store. It is apparent that the display was conceived with the idea to use stamps of striking appearance to impress the outsider; and no doubt it succeeded in its purpose. Pictorial stamps may be counted upon to do their duty.

On April 4th, 1927, Ponca City, Oklahoma, became a regular stop of Contract Air Mail Route No. 3, Chicago to Dallas, National Air Transport, Inc., contractors.

We are informed that the Canadian Cancellation Club has been organized by a band of collectors who are interested in the various cancellations of the world; and not those of Canada exclusively. It embraces in its objective the precancels

British Colonials

A series of three books (300 different stamps) of the better-grade Colonials. All one and two-cent catalogued stamps, speculative material and very common varieties have been carefully excluded.

To give an added atmosphere of aristocracy, there are several stamps such as early Nova Scotia, etc., cataloguing up to $1.25, but the great majority of the items range from 4c to 50c each.

These books were made up from the cream of our stock and contain scores of elusive, seldom-seen stamps.

BOOK NO. ONE—Contains 100 different stamps from Bahamas; 19th and 20th century Barbados, including large and small chariot, King George, Victory issues; Bermuda; early mint British Guiana; British Honduras; scarce Cook Islands; both the queen and king heads of Ceylon and Cyprus; Caymans; Dominica; East Africa and Uganda; Gibraltar; Gold Coast; Grenada; Hejaz; $1 Hong Kong and other interesting colonies.

BOOK NO. TWO—Contains 100 different stamps: No Indian Native States whatsoever except a few of the beautiful Cochin rajah heads; Ireland, Jamaica pictorials; Kenya through the shilling, Labuan, Leewards, Malta queen and king heads, including "self-government"; early mint Mauritius, Mesopotamia, Montserrat, early Newfoundland and others.

BOOK NO. THREE—100 different stamps; North Borneo, early mint Nova Scotia; Palestine, Penrhyn Islands, Rhodesia; St. Lucia, St. Vincent, Sierra Leone; Straits Settlements, mint Edwards, $1 George (also Malay, Perak, etc.), Somaliland, South Africa triangles, Southern Rhodesia, Sudan; Trinidad, Tanganyika, etc.

A total of three hundred distinctly different, carefully selected varieties, British Colonials only, all in the pink of condition, picked for desirability and guaranteed to be worth at retail about $25.00 net!

On a recent visit to Winchester, Illinois, Mr. Ted J. Tyrrell, Jacksonville, Ill., says that he found the 3c surface printed on sale but "no rare types."

The banquet of the Michigan Stamp Club, held at Detroit, on March 19th was a happy affair in conformity with the traditions established by the enterprising members of the organization. The toastmaster by Charles L. Brisley, who no doubt enforced the pledge that anybody who attempted to make a speech would be expelled from membership. The entertainment was varied and the menu card showed an enlarged copy of the 13c stamp with appropriate legends. Mr. Herman W. Boers distributed a souvenir in the form of an excellent photograph of fine block of six of 1861 cancelled with three clear impressions of the striking U. S. shield obliteration that is numbered among his philatelic possessions.

The West High Tatler of Des Moines, Iowa, makes its promise good and follows its Saint Patrick's Day issue, illustrated by an Irish stamp, with a story telling how the trick was done in using nearly a thousand stamps. A later article on the symbolism of the Irish stamps is announced.

EDITORIAL

The following letter is now available for publication; it was sent to Mr. Thos.
C. E. Hunter, president of the Chicago Philatelic Society in answer to his inquiries on a subject of interest to collectors. The Washington letter is postmarked, March 25th and disposes of Mr.
Hunter's letter of March 7th, 1927; it reads as follows: "This Treasury Decision provides that no person other than a Collector of Internal Revenue, or designated United States depositary shall sell or expose for sale, give away, traffic in, trade, barter, lend or borrow, or exchange any stock transfer or future delivery stamps issued pursuant to these regulations; provided, that any person or corporation which has been duly appointed and constituted and is acting agent of any state for the sale of stock transfer stamps of such state may, upon approval by the Commissioner and upon giving a bond satisfactory to the Collector, sell United States stamps issued pursuant to these regulations. The Treasury Decision further provides that no person shall buy, receive, or have in his possession, or under his control, any stock transfer or future delivery stamps issued pursuant to these regulations, unless such stamps have been purchased directly from the Collector of Internal Revenue, or duly authorized Deputy Collector of Internal Revenue, United States designated depositary, or a designated agent for the sale of State stock transfer stamps, authorized by the Commissioner, in the district in which the stamps are to be used. You desire to be informed if the above ruling applies to legally canceled stamps procured principally from waste paper dealers who have purchased the same in quantities of waste paper, said legally used stamps having been rescued from such waste paper and circulated into Stamp Collectors' collections

AMONG OTHER THINGS Scott's Monthly Journal is a regular supplement of the Standard Stamp Catalogue—containing each month, a chronicle of new issues listed and priced in the same way that it is done in the catalogue.

In Addition; every issue contains articles of real interest and importance to collectors. In fact, such valuable mono-graphs as Stanley B. Ashbrook's "Types and Plates of the U. S. 1c 1851-1857" and Berthold's "Wells Fargo Handstamps and Franks", now in book form, first appeared in the Journal.

In Addition, Monthly philatelic news and comment by John N. Luff. In Addition, bargains in singles, special offerings and opportunities which appear nowhere else.

A year's subscription to Scott's Monthly Journal costs but $1.00. It is a paying investment.

in the manner that any other stamps have been received, sold, bought or traded in.
In reply you are informed that Treasury Decision No. 3976 does not apply to legally canceled stock transfer or future delivery stamps which have been procured in the manner outlined in your communication." Thus the question at issue which was presented to the WEEKLY in a way to make the other interpretation the logical one is now definitely and favorably settled by the Commissioner of Internal Revenue, so far as the interests of philatelists are concerned.

Writing to us under date of February 22nd, 1927, from Dunedin, New Zealand, Messrs. Wilcox, Smith & Company, give us the following observations on New Zealand official issues: "I often wonder that American collectors 'fight shy' of New Zealand Official Stamps and by Officials, I mean Insurance, Postage Dues and stamps used on official correspondence. There is absolutely no need for such aloofness. These issues are quite above suspicion and are much sought after in the country of origin, some of them being very rare. Insurances are used solely by the Government Insurance Department and are not supposed to be sold to the public, though some leak out from time to time. The 3d and 6d values are used only at a few big offices and accordingly are seldom seen. The penny blue and two pence brown red, without 'V.R.' are very scarce, indeed,
having been in use only for a few weeks.
Postage dues are now saleable to the public but only the 1/2, 1, 2 and 3d are now on issue. The stock of 4d to 2sh values was destroyed by the Government a few years ago; and these values, especially unused, are fast becoming rarities.

Stamps surcharged 'Official' are used by all Government Departments except the Insurance Offices and may be bought at certain offices by the public. Owing to the machines used by most of the larger Government Departments, values 3d to 5sh are scarce, especially 2sh and 5sh.
The Queen's head 2sh and 5sh now in use will be superseded very shortly by 2sh and 5sh King George, surcharged 'Official.' The 4d is for postage and registration and the 9d for telegrams. The Issues prior to the George set were not supposed to be issued to the public in an unused state but as usual some got out;
and I think that catalogue is much too low for them. The one pound value is not now issued and all on hand were destroyed by the Government some years back. The O.P.S.O. Officials are used only on Government correspondence going out of the colony; and accordingly, hard to get. There are few collections complete in these three groups, both used and unused."

From Mr. W. J. Cotterell, Philadelphia, we have received a postal relic of historic significance, in the shape of the poster giving notice of the establishment of United States Post Office, Military Station, No. 1, Cuba, dated at Santiago de Cuba, July 21st, 1898 and signed by Louis Kempner, postmaster. The poster was addressed "To the Commanding Officer Regiment U. S." and was to be posted in some conspicuous place.
The rates for soldiers' letters and civilian messages, respectively, were quoted and National Treasury has sent to this office sum of one thousand bolivianos in sta-

Junior Glossary

PAPER.—Bâtonné.—Watermarked with parallel lines.

Chalky Paper, Chalk-surfaced, or Coated.—A paper coated with a preparation of chalk, or similar substance.

Dickinson or silk thread.—Named after its inventor, John Dickinson, and containing continuous silk threads running through the paper.

Granite.—A paper with colored fibres in its substance.

India Paper.—Wove paper, of a fine soft texture used for proofs, impressions, etc.

Laid.—Containing a series of watermarked lines close together.

Pelure.—A thin, semi-transparent paper often of greyish tint.

Quadrillé.—Watermarked with crossed lines forming squares or oblongs.

Ribbed.—Possesses close parallel lines, slightly raised, on the surface of the paper.

Safety.—A bluish paper, originally used for British Revenue stamps, being so prepared that any attempt to remove the writing-ink obliteration would destroy the impression.

Surfaced-Colored Paper.—Paper colored on the surface only and provisionally employed for certain British Colonial stamps during a shortage of dyed paper, usually termed "white backs."

Toned.—Paper with a slight tint.

Stamp News for the Juniors

Is there anything you want to know about stamps or stamp collecting? If so, write the editor. What would you like to see in this department? We have no way of knowing unless you tell us. Mr. Senior Collector, can't you give the boy collector about 50 words of encouragement along practical lines? Address your letter to the Beverly office.

Junior Gossip

—We have received from Kenneth B. Welch a clipping showing a picture of the League of Nations poster. The paper states that this stamp is being affixed to certificates of identity of Armenian and Russian refugees. The bureau of the league in charge of the refugees sells the stamps for five francs each, the fund thus raised going to the refugees.

—VILJO LINDSTROM.—Most any kind of variety can be obtained in U. S. envelopes. Mr. Ward, our editor of U. S. new issues, will be very glad to inspect any item that seems out of the ordinary. Enclose a stamped envelope for reply.

—FRED BAMBER.—We thank you for your article, but are not using it because it follows too closely the language of the catalog. We suggest that you try again when the opportunity offers.

—Any Junior who wishes a correspondent in Porto Rico may write Manuel Abruna, Box 144, Arecibo, P. R. Juniors must bear in mind that we cannot be expected to arbitrate any exchange transactions.

—K. M. Fender calls our attention to the fact that he has a stamp like A5 of Leeward Islands, but in the tablet containing the value there is a shaded background. This is true of several values of the set. Evidently the catalog makers do not think it necessary to have two cuts to show this difference in design.

Department Stamps

These, also, are stamps of a local nature for they only have franking power within certain territorial limits. The Republic of Colombia furnishes the most obvious example. Here practically every department has a special issue of stamps in addition to the general issue of the republican stamps. These department stamps are not good for international postage though I am not certain that their use is confined strictly within the limits of the department whose name they bear.

Another well-known instance occurs in the issues of Nicaragua where specially overprinted stamps are used in the Bluefields district of the Province of Zelaya. The reason given for this overprinting is that the currency in this district is silver, worth about 50c to the peso, instead of the paper currency used elsewhere in Nicaragua and which is only worth half as much.

Origin of Countries' Names

(Insert in Your Album.)

Malta was known to the Greeks and Romans as Melita. The place was famed far and wide for its honey, Latin mel, mellis.

Seychelles, annexed by France in 1742 and named by them after Moreau de Séchelles, Chancellor of the Exchequer to Louis the XV.

Palestine appears in the Bible four times as Palestina and Palestine. In each case the Hebrew word is Peleseth, which, wherever else it is found, is translated Philistia, the reason for this being that when the Hebrew Scriptures were translated Palestine and Philistia were synonyms. Milton, e. g., in "Paradise Lost" uses Palestine when speaking of the country of the Philistines. The root of the above Hebrew word is Palash = "to migrate." To the Jews, therefore, the names Palaesthinim = Philistines would mean "strangers," and Palestine "The Land of the Strangers."—Stamp Collecting.

A Philatelic Aviary

In making up your philatelic zoo arranged alphabetically, see what you can do with birds. The following is a suggestion and it opens up a wide range of study for the Juniors. Here is my list: —Apterix, N. Zealand; Black Swan, West Australia; Cockatoo, Borneo; Dove, Czechoslovakia; Emu, N. S. Wales; Fish Eagle, Liberia; Great Cassowary, Borneo 24c; Hornbill, Borneo 16c; Iguana, Liberia; Jackass bird, Australia 6d; Kea, New Zealand 1s; Lyre-bird, N. S. Wales; Maya, Tonga; Northern Gull, Miquelon; Ostrich, Abyssinia; Peacock, Labuan; Quetzal, Guatemala; Ruffed Ptarmigan, Newfoundland; Stork, Austria Airmail; Tropic-bird, New Caledonia; Uruguyan bustard, Uruguay; Vulture, Colombia; Wild-Duck, China.

Jamaica

By MORTON GOLDFINE (12).

Jamaica, a colony of Great Britain, is due south of Cuba and in the Antilles. Her many tropical exports and tourists both tend to make her prosperous. She has altogether issued 126 adhesives, as follows:—101 regular, 4 official, 17 war stamps and 3 semi-postal charity stamps which were sold ½ pence over face value for poor Jamaican children. Her issues, on the whole, are not speculative. They have been produced in London. They hold great possibility for specializing as none are valued for exorbitant sums, the highest price being about $20 on the first issue. Juniors also can specialize in her issues for a modest sum. Being situated so near the U. S. and having so many connections with us in trade matters I think that with such favorable conditions Jamaica is ideal for a specialist, especially one who has not a very great purse.

A Specialized Collection

By EMIL REYNOLDS.

Many side-lines have been written about but here is one that I think has not been mentioned very much. It will make an ordinary or specialized collection of a country very much more interesting. Suppose we take a specialized collection of one country and look thru it. We find singles, pairs and blocks of four both used and unused, covers and pieces of covers. Then there are pages of cancellations and minor varieties galore, etc.

The writer was recently invited to visit a collector and see his collection of the stamps of Netherlands and its colonies. Of course it was "specialized" and it really was a nice showing. But the thing that struck my eye and made me sit up and pay attention was the following: Friend Collector devoted one page to each town cancellation and got that "town" on as many different stamps as possible and in the middle of the pages he had a nice post card view of the town. On the opposite page he gave a brief description of the town, size of its industries and other interesting details. Of course, some people may say that the description of the towns, etc., is not philatelic, but this collector does, because he likes it and he thinks it is interesting.

An overprint, meaning Architect, it is found on certain stamps of South Australia. These were used on the official correspondence coming from the office of the State Architect. Since 1874 these and all similar departmental stamps of South Australia have been dispensed with, by the general official issue overprinted or punctured with the letter "O.S."

Carriers' Stamps

This is another class of special stamp monopolized by the United States. These stamps were used to defray the postage on letters carried from a post office to an addressee residing in the district.

served by that particular post office. They were in use as early as 1842 and as late as 1858—a period when ordinary postage only defrayed the carriage of mail from one post office to another. Most of these services were of a semi-official nature and the fee charged was rarely higher than 2c.

Junior Dictionary

Abstimmung in Salzburg 29 Ma 1921 ("Plebiscite," etc.)—Austrian stamps with this overprint are bogus.

A Felkelo Magyarok Altal Megszalt Nyugat Magyarorszag 1921 Aug. Szept.—In August, 1921, Austrian troops took possession of a portion of Western Hungary in accordance with the terms of the Versailles treaty, but the Hungarians drove them out. Hungarian stamps were surcharged as above "Western Hungary, occupied by insurgent Hungarians 1921 Aug-Sept" and used during the months specified.

Agadir.—A seaport town in Morocco, where a set of bogus stamps with design of a lion and flag was issued in 1900. It was presumed to be for a postal service between this town and Mogador in the interior.

Allenstein.—A town and district in East Prussia, population about 25,000 where a plebiscite was ordered by the Versailles Treaty to determine whether Poland or Germany should have dominion. Two sets of stamps were issued, the first Apr. 12, 1920, and the second May 2, consisting of German stamps properly overprinted. The plebiscite was decided in favor of Germany and Aug. 15, 1920, ordinary German stamps were again put into use though the plebiscite issues remained valid to Sept. 13, 1920.

Alzamiento de Enriquillo.—This inscription is found on the 2c value of a set of stamps issued in 1899 by the Dominican Republic to procure funds for a mausoleum for the remains of Columbus. It means "Rebellion of Enriquillo."

Amurskaya Oblastnaya Pochtovaya Marka.—An inscription in Russian letters on stamps issued in the Amur district, now part of the Far Eastern Republic. It means "Amurian Provincial Postage Stamp."

Booklets but has not been reported. When a design is cancelled the existing stock may be withdrawn and used for other purposes, such as in binding up packages of sheets and parts of such covers showing backs of "cover b" have been seen in the 97c 2c denomination. This is very unlikely, however, that any booklets or combination 1c-2c booklets were made with this cover.

Cover "c". This being the present standard we can expect all six denominations of booklet to ultimately appear if Congress passes the bill restoring the 1c rate to private post cards. All three denominations of the 2c booklets are out and may be found in the larger quantities.

These three types of cover thus may be found in fifteen different varieties, i.e., 1c—25c, 97c*; 2c—25c*, 49c*, 97c*; 2c—73c*.

1c—25c, 97c; 2c—25c*, 49c*, 97c*;
2c—73c.

Starred items are known.

The real expert on printing has a further field of endeavor, if he wishes to exhaust the subject of the covers.

The Bureau makes these covers by two processes, electrotypes and surface printing or photolitho prints. The Bureau many years had ordered the necessary electrotypes to print these covers from the Government Printing Office but when the 3c booklets were suddenly called for early in 1918 surface printed covers were made for that denomination.

Since that date both processes of printing have been used as best suited the balance of work in the printing division; apparently the use of surface printed covers has been limited largely to the 2c denomination. At any rate proofs of masks for that denomination only are found in the file now. Generally speaking, the electrotypes covers should be distinguishable by sharpness of print, the type being pressed into the surface like a newspaper and not laid on the surface as in the case of the surface print. Doubtless, a study of these covers will develop an easy way of determining the difference.

We now come to the pane differences which form a second series of variations which add interest to our quest. The authorization of the Post Office Department permitting the use of rotary press work on all postage stamps up to and including the 10c denomination necessitated the development of rotary plates for the stamp panes. Early in 1917 plates were ordered for rotary booklets but these were never finished, although it was 1924 before they were cancelled. On July 22, 1923, curved plates 17450 and 17451 were approved, and on May 13, 1926, two more plates, 18550 and 18551, were certified. These latter plates were laid out with slightly different spacing from plates 17450 and 17451, to see which arrangement would best meet the requirements. A difference of spacing from that of the flat plate panes is necessitated by the change of dimension caused by the stretch of plate and paper in the rotary press printing. Both sets of these experimental plates were put to press and made up into booklets which were turned into stock.

As a result of this experimental work, further changes of spacing were made, resulting in the accepted pane now regular for booklets.

The use of the rotary press panes came promptly into use with the beginning of the fiscal year July 1, 1926. The following types of panes may be found issued during 1926:

1. 1c and 2c flat plate panes.

2. 2c—1st Experimental type from rotary plates 17450-51.

3. 2c—2nd Experimental type from rotary plates 18550-51.

4. 2c Permanent rotary panes from plates 18662 and above.

From the above it will be noted that there is but one type of 1 cent pane to be found and four types of 2-cent panes. No rotary panes of the 1 cent denomination has been made, as yet.

Pane No. 1 needs no explanation to identify the 1c denomination. The 2c denomination can be easily told from the rotary panes by usual differences found between flat press and rotary press work.

This ad is for dealers—those wicked people who plead poverty but pay cash. I am, primarily, an importer. I import British Colonials. It's quite an every-day occurrence to send 500 or 1000 berries to a Colony for stamps. And I sell them. Do you know, I've imported and sold over $2500.00 worth of current Irish alone in 1926. Well, well—you don't say—I've no use for the piker—I don't have to—but to the real honest dealer who is trying to do the straight thing, I will supply British Colonials, current as sold in the P. O. or the Treasury or whatever it is. Scott high and mighty—King of Kings—buys in large quantities from me, so does a little fellow on 125th St. Scott takes 5 dozen, the 125th St. man takes six, but—oh but—they're both honest dealers—and the six man gets them at the same rate as the six dozen monarch does.

I'm not going to get stuck at this game—the percentage doesn't warrant it—I'm not buying St. Vincent 5sh at 100 and selling them at 200. I'm buying Colonials at 100 and selling them at $110.00. Somedif.

Now to any dealer, who pays cash right bang on the nail I am willing to get in touch with and if he measures up he can have 12 sets all values of current Colonials from 1d to 1sh at 10% over $4.90 to the pound; 6 sets all values above 1sh up to and including 10sh at 10% over $4.90 to the pound and of the pounds such as he needs. Cash with the order. No other terms. If you want Br. Colonials write me.

Now about my XX Century Check List of all British Colonials issued 1901-1927. Ready end of April I hope. 100 pages, more illustrations than pages—awful lot more, Price 1/2 a dollar, no less to anyone—omits all errors and perf. differences—lists the Standard Brands only. Fine thing to have next the inside pocket wallet. Worth $10 and sold for fifty cents. And if you want any current Colonials write me about it.

WHEN answering an advertisement mention seeing it in MEKEEL'S.

The flat press panes are perf. 11, the rotary perf. 10. A glance at the back of the pane will, in general, clearly show, if a rotary press product, the characteristic parallel lines in the gum across the pane about 1/4 in. apart. These lines or ridges in the gum are provided to reduce the curling of the paper due to the winding on rolls in the continuous printing process. While the design of the stamp is made on the curved plate from the same transfer roll as is used for flat plate work, when the roll is bent the design is slightly lengthened, also the stretch of paper is in the same direction, with the result that the rotary press booklet stamp is about 22.5m.m. (0.88 in.) long, whereas the flat plate stamp is 21.5m.m. (0.85 in.) long.

United States

Current Issue Perforated 11x10 1/2

Washington announces that orders are being placed with the Bureau for some of the 1 1/2c and 5c rotary print, perforated 11x10 1/2, which heretofore have been known precancelled only. In view of the fact that the stamps have been previously issued throughout the country, arrangements are not being made for first day covers. So far, the 1 1/2c, 2c, 3c, 5c and 10c are known perforated 11x10 1/2 and the other denominations from 1c to 10c inclusive may be expected any day.

1 1/2c on 2c Green 1887

It has been some months since I have had the pleasure of chronicling a new Provisional envelope but one has just been brought to my attention that has not been noted heretofore. This is the 1 1/2c single line figures, overprinted on the 2c green on white of 1887. The envelope is size 3 and a few were found in one of the larger post offices among the regular stock.

The same stamp, overprinted on amber, Scott's No. 2717 has been known from the first but we have not seen the variety on white until this little lot was brought to my attention.

1914-15, 12c Vertical Pair, Imperf. Between

The 12c perforated 10, watermarked, was found in Flint, Michigan, some years back in sheets, wherein one vertical pair on the sheet was without perforations between. This was due to the fact that some of the pins from one of the perforating wheels were missing. It depended entirely upon the manner in which the sheet was fed to the press as to whether the perforations which were missing fell exactly between the two stamps, or whether they fell partly between one pair of stamps and partly between another. Pairs exist in which not a single perforation shows between the stamps but these are exceedingly scarce. The variety was located in the Flint post office during the Christmas holidays of 1917 by Mr. W. A. Beach. They were found in the excess stock that is always allotted such post offices during the Christmas rush. A number of the sheets contained the part perforated pair but as Mr. Beach was a new collector at the time, he cut the stamps out and trimmed the perforations off, making imperforate pairs. He writes he doubts whether more than ten blocks of six were preserved showing the actual variety as issued.

White Plains Variety

Mr. George P. Smith calls attention to the fact that in the lower left pane of plate 18774 of the 2c White Plains, that not only the dot which has been described before is found over the "S" of "States" in the ninth stamp but that the third stamp which is the one immediately under the top plate number, shows a small line through the "C" of "Cents." If one studies these small panes made up for the International Philatelic Exhibition carefully, many such varieties will be noted, for these stamps were turned out in a great hurry.

Air Mail Notes

Under date of March 24th, the Post Office opened bids for the operation under contract of the New York-Chicago air mail service. The four bidders were the Colonial Air Transport, New York, National Air Transport, New York, North American Airways, Cleveland, and E. F. Stewart, New York. These concerns asked prices of $1.68, $1.24, $1.23 and 35c respectively per pound. The Stewart firm, however, who bid 35c, accompanied their bid by a qualifying letter and proposing to carry all first-class mail between New York and Chicago by air, thus dispensing with distribution and sorting now done enroute in railway mail cars.

The Postmaster General has not as yet made any award.

ALBANIA.—Whitfield King & Co. have shown us six values of the 1925 issue with an overprint of "A Z" and a wreath. The values thus surcharged are the 1q orange, 2q red brown, 5q green, 10q rose red, 25q blue and 50q green.

AUSTRALIAN COMMONWEALTH.—Mr. R. Roberts sends for chronicle the 1 1/2p rose, new multiple A and Crown close watermark, comb machine perforation 13 1/2x 12 1/2, A. J. Mullett printing. Mr. Roberts adds that this appears to be a new perforating machine but evidently only a small batch were perforated by it as the stamps were distributed to various offices but they could not be obtained from Melbourne as the machine had broken down and they reverted to the old perf. 14 machine. It is of course quite possible that the machine might be repaired, though on the other hand it might be discarded altogether, as it is to be hoped it will as it is a most inefficient machine and most difficult to tear, in which case, these may be scarce.

BARBADOS.—Mr. R. Roberts and Whitfield King & Co. have shown us the new Tercentenary Commemorative stamp

UNITED STATES

Postage and Revenue

While I hold one of the finest, if not the best, stocks of the postage stamps of the United States in the hands of any professional and solicit want lists from the serious collector, nevertheless, right at the present time I much prefer to buy rather than to sell. While I want anything worthwhile and superb in the postal and revenue issues of the United States, I more especially desire:—

- (1). Mint singles and mint blocks, 1880 to 1880.
- (2). Mint blocks, 1881 to 1900.
- (3). Bureau errors, including part perforates, inverts, etc.
- (4). Fine early covers.
- (5). Revenues—inverted centers.

The highest cash prices will be paid for such properties and these items are desired whether in small lots or in substantial collections. I do not ask for properties on consignment but am pleased to purchase for prompt cash.

If you are thinking of selling your collection or duplicates, please communicate with me.

"When In Boston Come In and Browse Around"

BERTRAND L. DREW, 7 Water St., Room 605, BOSTON, MASS.

placed on sale in Barbados Feb. 17th last. It is of 1 penny denomination in rose color, script watermark and bears the portraits of King George V and King Charles I. Line engraved and printed by Messrs. Bradbury & Co., New Malden. The perf. is 12½.

CHAMBA.—Mr. R. Roberts reports the appearance of the following new colours De la Rue issues: 1½a rose, 2as6p orange, both watermarked single star.

CUBA.—Whitfield King & Co. report that the 2c postage due stamp has been printed in rose red color.

CZECHOSLOVAKIA.—The 185h. postage due stamp, has been surcharged for use as 60h, in blue. Copies have been received from Whitfield King & Co.

FRANCE.—The Economist Stamp Co. have shown us a copy of the 10c green, in which the wrong die was used. It has the thin letters of the 1906 die and was of a limited issue.

FRENCH COLONIALS.—The Economist Stamp Co. have submitted for chronicle the provisionals noted in last week's issue.

GAMBIA.—Whitfield King & Co. send for chronicle the 4p current design on script watermark paper.

HEJAZ.—Three more values of the new design have been received from Whitfield King & Co. They are the ½ yellow, ¾ green and 1 piastre mauve. Stamp Collecting describes as follows: "The Arabic inscription at the top of these Turkey-inspired stamps signifies 'Arab Government.' As already explained, the device in the centre is the King's touhgra or monogram, i.e., 'Abdul Aziz Bin Abdul Rahm,' the smaller monogram to the right of the touhgra being that of the King's family, reading 'Al Saoud.' Below the touhgra are the words 'Nejd and Hedjaz Postage' the denomination being shown in the lower corners and in words between."

INDIA.—Mr. R. Roberts advises that the 4a, Nasik printing, inscribed "Postage and Revenue" overprinted "Service" watermark multiple star has been received.

LEEWARD ISLANDS.—Whitfield King & Co. advise that a 2½p, blue, has been issued, script watermark.

PERSIA.—Our good friend at Tunbridge Wells, Mr. G. Wilson, kindly sends further news regarding the Teheran-Baku air service and aerial provisionals recorded last week. We now learn that twelve values of the 1909 series have been overprinted for this service, viz.: 1, 2, 6, 9, 10, 13ch, 1, 2, 5, 10, 20 and 30krs (fancy a 15s stamp for air mail!). The ordinary postage is paid in ordinary stamps and the extra in the overprinted stamps. The overprinting was done locally and is the same on all denominations.

There is to be a weekly service from Teheran and also from Baku, the same plane apparently returning after a few days. The flight from Teheran takes about eight hours to Baku, allowing for short stops at Kazoin and Pehlevi to deposit and pick up mails. The concession was granted last year to the Junker's Co., and the inaugural flight took place in the presence of the Shah.—Stamp Collecting.

POLAND.—A 40 groszy stamp bearing a profile likeness of Fryderyk Chopin has been issued. The color is blue and Whitfield King & Co. send the stamp for our inspection.

SARRE.—The following is a list of the new values and subjects now in process of issue: 10 and 30c, Fountain of Marché St. Jean, Sarrebruck; 15 and 75c, Sarre Valley; 20 and 40c, Sarrelouis fortifications; 20c, 50c and 5fr, Tholey Abbey and the Schaumberg; 80c and 1fr Mineshaft; 1.50, 2 and 3fr, Burbach steelworks. In the meantime the provisionals of 1921 have been demonetized as from the last day of February.—Stamp Collecting.

URUGUAY.—Whitfield King & Co. call our attention to the 8c rose, which has been placed on sale in the re-engraved type.

"Post Card In the Mail Ten Years"
"Post Office Takes 17 Years To Deliver Letter."
"Civil War Letter Sixty-one Years Mails."

Every once in so often articles appear in the press under headlines similar to those above. The American public entertained by them and readers of the shafts of criticism to be hurled at postal service upon the slightest provocation. Others of less critical mind, them as the subject for good-natured railery to be directed at the unsuspecting postman or at friends in the service. Postal officials for years have regarded these narrations as unaccountable incidents arising from the huge volume of mail handled and have looked upon them as more or less necessary evils.

Postmaster General New, however, was not satisfied with this explanation and recently when an article was broadcast throughout the country that a letter penned by an Army chaplain and containing a dying Civil War soldier's quest to his family, had just been delivered in a little Indiana town after having been in the mails for sixty-one years, assigned an inspector to make an investigation.

The newspaper article was dated Ironton, Ohio, but the principal in the story was Mrs. Elizabeth Barnheisel of Conza, Indiana, 97-year-old widow of Cornelius Barnheisel, who died in army camp near Alexandria, Louisiana, in 1865.

The post office inspector ascertained from the aged woman that the letter had been received as an enclosure with a letter from the Commissioner of Pensions, Department of the Interior, dated October 25, 1926, advising her that the old letter, having served its purpose in the Bureau of Pensions, was being returned.

Although Mrs. Barnheisel did not recall ever having seen the old letter before it came to her last Fall, it developed that it had been submitted to the Pension Bureau in 1869 to prove the merit of her claim for a pension, and had remained in the files of the bureau during the intervening years until brought to light by a request for an increase in pension. The pension increase was granted about the time the letter was received by the widow.

Postmaster General New is convinced that similar solutions may be obtained for all stories of extreme delays in the mails and is determined that in the future the accuracy of such narrations will be challenged in every instance so that unjust reflection may not be cast upon the postal service.

SENATOR J. A. CALDER, Ottawa.

"I think it is a real good production and should do a lot to advance philately."
C. J. PHILLIPS, N. Y. C.

"... one of the best annual numbers of a stamp publication that we have had the pleasure of seeing."

MEKEEL'S WEEKLY STAMP NEWS.

"The Year Book is splendid."

DEREK INGRAM,
Editor "Stamp Collecting."

"... and wish to congratulate you. It fills a long felt want. I am sure that collectors at large will appreciate the tremendous amount of research work involved."

LOOKING ROUND
 By "MARQUETTE"

I have looked through several modern Colonial collections lately, and have been struck by the potential loss sustained by those collectors who have limited themselves to values up to the 10s. It is true that they got the rare Malas, but they missed the Cyprus £1 and the same value in the St. Kitts Tercentenary, which makes a considerable difference to the result when they come to sell.

It would be interesting if some dealer who runs a new issue service would publish a statement giving the respective percentages of his customers who take (a) up to the 1s value; (b) up to the 10s value; (c) up to the £1 value; (d) no limit. The quantity of stamps in circulation depends to a considerable extent on the numbers distributed through new issue services, though there are, of course, large quantities sold through other channels.

I would advise readers to watch Mauritius. There have been a number of changes there recently, and there are more to come.

The "Port Fuad scandal" has attracted a good deal of attention in the philatelic Press. The number of corpses resulting from the riot has gradually risen from one to seven; but an eye-witness states that, though he heard of one, he could obtain no confirmation of the death. The Egyptian street lounge who was chiefly concerned is a tough fellow, and not likely to succumb in a mere riot. As far as the stamps are concerned, very high prices are being asked for the few sets which have reached this country. I understand that high officials are holding a few sets, but they are not likely to flood the market with them, and I shall be surprised if the price, retail, falls below £20. I do not anticipate any startling rise in the near future, as a set at this price can only find a limited sale.

The new issue for Tanganyika has also been receiving attention in the Press. It is stated that objection may be taken to the fact that His Majesty's portrait appears on the stamps of a Mandated Territory. We imagine that the authorities concerned took advice on this point before the stamps were issued, but in any case the mills of the League of Nations grind slowly, and it is not likely that the stamps will be withdrawn at once. As they are still available at current rates there would be no harm in making sure of them.

The new Luxemburg Charity stamps, with portrait of Prince Jean, were soon sold out at the Post Office, and prices are rising. The set is a pretty one, and should have a good future. Another Charity set which is rising steadily is

PAPUA

By HERMANN FOCKE.

It is just twenty years that news reached the philatelic world that the name of the Territory of British New Guinea had been changed to Papua, and the eight stamps which until then had been recorded and which had not attracted any particular attention, especially because as a rule the used copies were badly soiled by a heavy bar cancellation, sprang into sudden fame, and the name of the new country for several years had almost a magic influence over stamp collectors, young and old.

Terms of thick and thin paper, watermarks, rosettes and crown over A vertical, sideways or inverted, heavy and thin surcharge, large and small letters, rift in the clouds, white leaves, etc., were the topic of the days, and months of patient expectations, which passed until the receipt of new supplies ordered from the far-away country, as a rule rewarded us with some additional novelty.

During the short space of five years, from Nov., 1906, until 1911, the number of major varieties increased from 8 to 57 and of minor ones to almost 200, and new discoveries came to light almost constantly to keep up the keen interest of the specialists; there were furthermore the stamps of Queensland, used in the Territory from 1888 to 1901, with their B.N.G. and other distinguishing cancellations for the untiring collector to hunt for and finally the postmarks of the various post offices which were not numerous, only seven being known for British New Guinea and a mere dozen for the present day Papua, in spite of the immense area it covers.

But who speaks of Papua today? Very few collectors will now get a thrill out of the mention of the word and nobody seems over-anxious to get a complete collection of these very interesting and not less attractive stamps, and why? Simply because for the last ten years, or since the issue of the "ONE PENNY" provisionals there has been the same series of stamps in use, not quite as handsome perhaps as the first engraved issues, and without any major varieties to speak of, although the careful student may discover certain flaws in the design, such as a broken leaf on the 3d, and deformed leaves on the 2d and 2s6d values.

Last fall it was reported that Papua stamps were now being printed on the remaining "war paper," whatever that meant, so as an untiring Papua enthusiast, I immediately sent for two complete sets to Port Moresby, which have just arrived, and all the news I got was—nothing. The stamps do certainly not make a war-like impression, printed on purest white paper with the same old (sic.) crown over A wmk., the same number of teeth, i.e., 14 to the inch, and the Lakatoi still drifting peacefully along in the offing of the equally peaceful village of Hanuabada, so I am really unable to tell what this "war paper" looks like.

Aside from very slight variations in the shades of some values, all the stamps are exactly the same as they have been since the day of their first issue; the 2½d of 1919, reported obsolete some time hence, is again in stock, while the 6d received is still the old orange-brown stamp of 1911, only on a brownish paper, instead of white, but this may be due to the color of the gum which is equally brownish. This particular stamp seems to exist in unexhaustible quantities and only once, in Sept., 1924, did I receive a supply of the new 6d violet, no matter to which P. O. I have written, always the old 6d brown, the catalogue price of which, 65c, appears therefore too high.

There is one peculiarity in the present set, which I would not overlook to mention, and that is that on the 1½d and 10sh values, the last two to be issued (in 1925) the value in the lower right oval panel is out of line, or to be more exact, it leans perceptibly towards the left, and the 0 of 10sh is quite a little narrower than the one in the left panel, but as this seems to be the rule, it cannot be considered a variety but rather just an oddity.

It seems quite clear that the more stamps are issued by almost any country the more popular they will be with the collector; Papua and Cayman Islands had their day, then came Cyprus, Gibraltar, Malta and even St. Kitts-Nevis with their defamed cricket ground stamps which, by the way, are not any worse than so many other commemorative and charity issues, as they were good for postage and certainly used for this purpose, and not even the harsh epithet of "rankly speculative" will reduce their value in the eyes and mind of the lucky possessors, amongst whom I, myself, cannot unfortunately be counted as I was not in the field at the time of their issue. The harder it is to get a stamp, the more it is coveted, and if Papua should revert to the former habit of changing its stamps frequently it will immediately return to the front in the collectors' esteem.

"STOP AT HUDSON"

For several years each of the above has been a very frequent headline in my advertising. Many, many original covers have obeyed the impulse to "Stop at Hudson," and I presume that at 602 Warren Street in this little City of Hudson (an incorporated city since 1785, by the way) reposes one of the largest accumulations of original covers in the country.

Now, Hudson is on the direct route from New York to Albany, 113 miles from the former and 28 miles from the latter. I invite cover enthusiasts to also obey the impulse and "Stop at Hudson."

NOTES ON THE NATIONAL GRILLS 1870-73

By ELLIOTT PERRY.

ALTHOUGH they are really one issue the U. S. postage stamps printed by the National Bank Note Company from 1870 to 1873 are divided for convenience sake into two groups. The first group comprises Scott numbers 134 to 144 with "grill measuring 8½ to 9 by 10½ to 11½ mm." The second group comprises Scott numbers 145 to 155. These are without the embossed grill, but otherwise are identical with numbers 134 to 144.

Our available information indicates the grilling process was part of the contract held by the National Bank Note Co. until the termination of that contract April 30, 1873, and therefore, all the stamps printed under that contract should have been grilled. Strictly speaking then, the embossed stamps are the normal varieties and those without grill are sub or minor varieties. The prevalent idea that the grilled stamps were issued first and were succeeded by those without grill is somewhat incorrect. It would be more correct to say the grill was used more extensively in 1870 and 1871, and that more often in 1872 and 1873, the people supposed to be operating the grilling machine were only "going through the motions."

Proof that grilling did continue to some extent to the latter part if not to the end of the contract period exists. The first series of National plates, bearing numbers 1 to 24, included one or more plates for each denomination of the set except the 6c and 7c stamps. These 24 plates included two 1c, (Nos. 16 and 17), four 2c, (Nos. 12, 13, 14, 15), eleven 3c, (Nos. 1 to 11), and two 10c, (Nos. 18 and 19). The next nine plates included four more 3c, (Nos. 25, 29, 31, 32), two 6c (Nos. 26 and 27), two 2c, (Nos. 28 and 30), and the only plate made for the 7c, (No. 33). As the 7c stamp was not printed until March, 1871, and occurs with grill, we know the grilling machine was still in use as late as March, 1871.

The last group or groups of plates of the National series comprise 22 plates all of which bear numbers higher than that of the 7c plate and therefore, probably, were made at intervals in the period between the early spring of 1871 and April 30, 1873. There were four 1c plates, (Nos. 50, 51, 52, 53), five 2c, (Nos. 34, 35, 45, 46, 47), eleven 3c, (Nos. 36 to 44 and 54, 55), and two 10c, (Nos. 48, 49).

The last eleven of these 22 plates were numbered from 45 to 55 and include four 1c, three 2c, two 3c and two 10c. These eleven plates were most certainly made to replace earlier plates that had become too badly worn for further use and any grilled stamps from them cannot reasonably be placed earlier than the last third of the contract period. We are well justified in assigning most of the stamps from these eleven plates—including any that were grilled—to the latter part of 1872 or the first part of 1873. There is no reason whatever for believing stamps from any of these eleven plates were issued in 1870, and very slight chance any of them were included among the printings made in 1871.

Grilled stamps from some of these eleven plates disprove the contention that all the 1870-73 grills were issued in the early part of the contract period. Turning to page 127 of Luff's book on United States postage stamps, we find the 2c National from plate No. 45—one of the three last 2c plates—listed with grill. Further proof is found in a well known collection which contains one or more grilled stamps bearing the high numbers of the last plates. Additional search is likely to result in the discovery of other copies.

Much attention has been paid by collectors and catalogers to the grills found on the 1867-68 issue and much effort has been made to obtain a comprehensive and correct list of the various varieties and sizes of those grills, but although some of the grills of 1870-73 show differences both in size and character fully as distinctive as several of the 1868 grills the various different grills of the 1870-73 period are not noted in the catalogs. Instead of being properly classified these National grills are grouped under one rather indefinite heading, which examination of the stamps on which they occur shows to be both misleading and incorrect.

The impression conveyed to me when I read "Grill measuring 8½ to 9 by 10½ to 11½ mm" is that the stamps to which it refers—Scott numbers 134 to 144—are all found with a grill of the same character, but which varies in size from 8½ to 9mm wide and from 10½ to 11½mm tall. I also understand the variation in size as stated refers to complete grills—not to partial grills—that is, not to grills so poorly impressed or centered that only a part is visible.

I am not able to reconcile my comprehension of the catalog description with a careful examination of the stamps. I find several varieties of grills differing from each other, both in character and in size and usually not agreeing closely with the variation stated in the catalogs. There are two definite sizes. The smaller usually measures about 8x10mm, but is sometimes less than 10mm tall and is often 8½ to nearly 9mm wide. The larger measures about 10x12mm and is often a fraction larger each way. Full, deep impressions of this grill are extremely unusual and might easily measure 10½mm wide by 12½ to 13mm tall. Partial impressions of this grill are common and the part showing may measure anything within the limits stated.

This larger grill is the cause of most of our trouble with the 1870-73 grilled stamps, yet the fault does not lie in the roller or in the character of the grill units, but rather in the bed or backing against which the roller pressed. I suppose the first time this bed was adjusted for this roller was also the last time it received any attention. Certainly that is just what the stamps indicate. The grill units are sharp pyramids, but the bed or backing did not hold the stamps firmly against the grill roller and the usual re-

FRANCE

Our "USED SPECIAL No. 33" contains about 40 varieties of France in fine postal used condition, issues of the last few years only: from Scott's No. 165 on including most of the provisionals and color changes chronicled in Scott's Monthly Journals. Most of these stamps have been in use for a very short time only and some of them—we honestly believe—may turn out to be one of the best stamp investments. They are priced by us at a penny or a few cents each and may be had on approval against the usual references asking for "USED SPECIAL No. 33".

AIR-MAIL COVERS

Nothing we know of except back lots at Neepah, Nev., has shown such astonishing appreciation in value during the past five years as United States air-mail covers. This applies particularly to first-flight covers over government-established routes. These are in every way legitimate and of great historic and philatelic interest. Our supply of these covers is very limited, but more than ordinarily useful because many of the covers passed between men identified with the early development of aviation, rather than philately. Among the interesting first flights on hand we note:

May 15, 1918. New York - Washington, First trip, in circular cachet, "Air Mail Service, Wash., N.Y. Phila."

June 1, 1918. Washington to Boston via New York. Rate 24c. Circular cachet "First Air Mail", also the stamp tied to cover with red postmark, "Aerial Mail—Via New York".

June 3, 1918. Experimental flight. New York - Boston. Circular cachet reading, "First Trip", though the trip was not completed.

June 9, 1918. Boston - New York. Bears a large double circle postmark with the inscription "AIR MAIL—June 9—FIRST TRIP". This was the last of the 24c rate "first trips" on government routes, until the establishment of the 24c trans-continental rate.

July 15, 1918. First trip, new 16c rate, Washington, Philadelphia, New York. September 5, 1918. First trip New York - Chicago, via Lock Haven and Cleveland. These bear a gaudy special cachet, oval in form, red-violet in hue, "N.Y. CHIC. AERO MAIL 9.5.1918. FIRST TRIP".

September 9, 1918. The return trip, Chicago - New York, though we have covers from New York to Chicago, dated Sep. 4 bearing the Air-Mail postmarks. Opening of Newark aerodrome for September 14, 1918 postal service, with large New York cachet in green.

Dec. 16, 1918. First Washington - New York flights at the new 6c rate.

Sep. 7, 1919. Inaugural flight of trans-continental service at regular 2c rate.

July 1, 1924. Inaugurating trans-continental service involving night flying, zone rates.

Then follow the contract flights, which are also of much interest, with covers comparatively common. The big stunts were pulled on the dates here given. In large measure they were neglected by philatelists so many of the covers are rare. They will be very scarce as the number of those devoted to air-mail covers increases. Present quotations cannot last because of scarcity of material. Our present prices are below list prices. Sent on approval of course.

Hammondsport, N. Y.

sult was a partial impression from the points of the pyramids. Such gridded stamps may—and too frequently do—show only a few faint marks like pin pricks, or none at all. Strips and blocks may show stamps with complete grills, partial grills, traces of grills and invisible grills—all from a single impression of the roller on the same sheet. This grill occurs on all values of the set, which is unfortunate for philately; but what is worse, it appears to have been the only grill used on the 10c, 12c, 15c, 24c, 30c and 90c stamps. Hence, these higher values are hard to find with grill and are seldom satisfactory when found.

The smaller grill—8x10mm—is not a reduced size of the larger. It is entirely different. The pyramidal bosses are not sharply pointed but have nearly flat tops and steep sides. The rectangular tops of the bosses were pressed into the faces of the stamps and appear slightly raised on the backs of the stamps. Narrow ridges between the bosses are depressed on the backs of the stamps and are raised above the level of the rectangular depressions on the face of the stamps.

In detail this grill resembles the "grill-all-over" and normal 13x16mm grills of 1867 but similar characteristics are found on the front instead of the back of the stamps, and vice versa. The "ribs" or ridges between the bosses are thicker and less sharply impressed on the small grill of 1870-73 than on the "biscuit" grills of 1867, and while the biscuit grills often show irregular breaks in their units, the blunt points of the bosses on the 1870-73 small grill do not usually break the paper of the stamps.

The smaller grill of 1870-73 is even more like the "grill-all-over" essay that is sometimes mistaken for Scott No. 79—the issued 3c 1867 gridded all over. (See note under No. 81 in the Standard Catalog.) This essay also has the characteristics reversed as compared to the 1870-73 small grill. That is, the bosses are raised on the face of the essay and complementary rectangular depressions are found on the back. This essay was made by pressing a roller covered with truncated pyramidal bosses into the back of the "stamps," thus producing the rectangular depressions on the backs and raised, blunt rectangular bosses on the face. Further careful study may show that the smaller grill of 1870-73 was made by altering the roller previously used for this "grill-all-over" essay and then applying the altered roller to the face of the 1870-73 stamps.

The 8x10 grill of 1870-73 is often clearly impressed and usually the impressions are much more distinct than those of the 10x12 grill. Complete impressions of the smaller grill are not scarce and nearly complete impressions are common. This 8x10 grill has been found only on the 1c, 2c, 3c, 6c and 7c stamps. Records covering a large number of stamps are not available but there is no doubt the small grill is frequently found on all of these five lower denominations and quite possibly it may be commoner than the large grill on some of them.

Over 95% of the 1870-73 stamps which show an identifiable grill have either one or the other of the two grills here mentioned as occurring on issued stamps printed by the National Bank Note Co. during that period. There exists, however, a minor variety of the "8x10" or small grill and also a minor variety of the "10x12" or large grill. These minor varieties differ from the two common or normal grills in the character of their bosses, and probably indicate attempts to improve the results which were more or less ardently desired. The smaller grill is occasionally found with bosses from sharper pyramids than the normal variety. When not completely impressed this variety of the small grill might readily be mistaken for a partial impression of the larger grill. It is too uncommon to be bothersome. A minor variety of the larger grill may be found by anyone who has sufficient time and will exercise sufficient patience. This also is too unusual to interest those who are not extreme specialists.

It seems to me the two major varieties mentioned should be known to every collector of United States stamps. They differ from each other much more than do the "E"—(11x13)—and "F"—(9x13)—grills of 1868 which have been recognized as major varieties and so catalogued for many years. The two 1868 grills mentioned have exactly the same characteristics of detail and differ only in size. The smaller was made by cutting down the larger. The two grills of 1870-73 not only differ as much in size as do the "E" grills of 1868 from the "F" grills but the 1870-73 grills are also quite dissimilar in character.

The collector who happens to have normal small grills on the low values of

Cover Album

We offer an ideal and practical method of mounting your first trip covers as well as first day covers—always up to date and permitting of mounting so that all back-stamps may be fully displayed without removing covers from page after mounting.

OUR PLAN.

Each C A M route is handled as a section and consists of one or two title pages with full description of the route, the cities served, date inaugurated, schedule of operation, check list of cancellations used by each city as well as backstamps, etc., together with one page for mounting two covers, terminal to terminal in each direction. This latter page is suitably titled and headed and mention made of the cancellations used, etc. The above plan is the base of our service and consists of 22 title pages and 17 pages for covers for all routes established at this time—3/30/27.

Above pages include special flight from Springfield, Ill., and the Air Race route. Ready complete as above on April 20th. Price $5.98 delivered.

Our members have received all of the above pages with the exception of a few which will be sent them as soon as off the press. You may enter your order now for the above and same will be shipped in part at this time or complete on April 20th.

To permit of mounting from one to a hundred or more covers for the various routes, we offer three styles of pages all suitably titled and headed to match the above sections as follows:—

City to city pages for all routes.

Pages for trips in either direction, all routes.

Pages for covers mailed from each city, all routes.

Price 8c each. Any number may be ordered and combinations may be had as suits the individual needs and manner of collecting covers.

Service will be kept up to date by the issuance of sheets to handle new routes, as they are inaugurated.

This Service is a special and limited printing work, designed for the collector who wants the best. We number among our users some of the most prominent air mail collectors in the U.S., and advise an early investigation of our plan.

Corners for mounting covers, 45c per 100.

Cellophane paper (transparent as glass) for making display windows to show back-stamps and protection envelopes for mint stamps, 65c per 1000 sq. inches.

CHEERIO!

By "M. T." DOME.

When the evening's long and dreary

And you feel a little weary,

When collecting doesn't cheer ye

And the common issues pall,

When the rare ones lose their flavor

And the "Revs." are out of favor,

Pleasure gone, naught left but labor,

Should you quit it? Not at all!

What you need's a short vacation.

And by way of relaxation

Hunt the wary cancellation

Of the odd and rare design!

Get a bunch of common issue,

(3c greens or reds can't miss you)

Spread 'em out. I'll bet you'll wish you

Had a bushel of each line.

Look a' there! Say, there's a dandy

Alphabet to start,—that's handy!

Stars and crosses,—Love o' Mandy!

There's a "PAID" as plain as day!

Grids and crossroads, round and square dots,

Bulls-eyes, bars and funny what-nots,

Sun-bursts,—towns galore there cross-lots.

"This is fun!", I heard you say.

Cheerio! Now that you've started

Bet your woe's have all departed!

Will you ever get down-hearted?

If you do—Switch Back to Stamps! !

HEARD AND SAID

Mr. R. Forbes-Bentley, Birchircara,

Malta, writes: "The Minister for Industrial and Commerce announces that the remainder of the values of the permanent set, the 1d red, 2d grey, 2½d

blue and 3d purple, will be put on sale from the 1st April. It is believed that these values will be like the other low values of this set, printed in sheets of 120 stamps, and of the same design."

From Mr. Allan P. Vestal, Indianapolis, we have received a copy of an

Ahern cartoon, in the series, "Our

Boarding House," that is titled, "Back Home With the Peace Offering." The man hoping to escape the blast of bottled wrath from his militant Missus, tenders

a hat box, as ornamental as a wedding-cake, with an alibi, based on his assertion that he has been "upstate attending an important convention of philatelists, yes." His knowing spouse says that if the hat is anything like the convention, it's a wild one!

Ponca City, Oklahoma, entered the arena with a first flight offering, dated Ponca City, Oklahoma, 10.30 A.M., April 4, 1927, and took its stand as a station on the Chicago-Dallas route.

The Lamborn sale made a good start and the New York Times reports that $850 was paid for the 5-cent error, 1916, "in the carmine error color. The error stamp was in the centre of a block of twenty-five and only 43 sheets of that print were discovered." An inverted center, 24c aeroplane, brought $770.

The exhaustive collection of Venezuela that was exhibited by Mr. J. Murray Bartels, New York, at the Collectors Club, on April 6th, was characterized as being one of the best extant. A Bourse meeting was scheduled for April 13th and probably it more than duplicated the success of the first meeting.

Some weeks ago, the Newark News told of the sale in Berlin to a New York collector of a block of twelve of the yellow Mercury newspaper stamps of Austria, at auction for $7,500. Mr. Heinrich Kohler, the Berlin dealer who conducted the sale, had this interesting piece with him when he attended the New York Exhibition. Who is the New York collector? One guess.

A reader sends us a receipt of Freeman & Co.'s Express dated in 1851 and says that he wishes it were a franked envelope instead.

ANOTHER CANADIAN COLLECTION

I have just bought the collection of Canadian stamps formed by Mr. G. W. Wilson of Montreal, this being the eighth collection of Canada stamps I have bought in a short time—and I am still open to buy more—the larger the better.

Mr. Wilson's collection contained a 12d black, used, with a big re-entry. All the "pence" issues several in duplicates, blocks of four of most of the "cents" issues, 1870-1893 Imperf. and a considerable number of entire sheets, particulars of which will be sent to any collector interested.

I have now remade all my approval books of Canada, and can send selections of unused, used, or stamps on cover of any section required.

Prices strictly moderate for first quality goods.

U. S. STAMPS "USED ABROAD"

China and Japan.—Although under the Postal Law of July 27, 1868, the Postmaster-General of the U. S. A. was empowered to "establish in connection with the steamship service to China and Japan a general postal agency at Shanghai, China, with such branch agencies at the other ports in China and Japan as shall, in his judgment, be necessary for the prompt and efficient management of the postal service in those countries," no immediate steps appear to have been taken to carry this into effect. At this period the American Consuls at Yokohama (Kanagawa) and Shanghai acted as postal agents and this arrangement continued in force until the year 1875, when the U. S. postal agency at Yokohama was discontinued. What special cancellation (if any) was employed by the U. S. Consular post office at Yokohama, is unknown to the writer, who failed to secure any covers bearing early U. S. stamps and emanating from this office. The more recent issues may occasionally be met with showing the postmarks of Kobe, Nagasaki, Yokohama, etc., but these are merely Ship Letters, which have been cancelled at the first port of call on the steamship's itinerary after posting on board, and the obliterations are in every case those of the Imperial Japanese Post Office.

The Shanghai Agency is, however, in quite a different category. United States postage stamps would seem to have been in use there from a comparatively early date, probably some time in the seventies, so that most subsequent issues of the U. S. A. are encountered with the Shanghai postmark.

One of the earliest types of postmark in use by the U. S. Consular post office at Shanghai consists of a single-line circle inscribed round its circumference "U. S. POSTAL AGENCY—SHANGHAI" with the date and time of posting in abbreviated form in two lines across the diameter in conjunction with an elliptical "killer" containing the figure "1" in a circle, and the last two figures of the year mid-way between the circle and the ellipse, at the foot. An interesting cover showing this type of cancellation was in the writer's collection of U. S. used abroad. Posted at Nanking, China, in 1897, it bore in the first instance two local postage stamps of that Treaty Port of the face values 2 and 3 cents, respectively, which originally served to frank the letter as far as Shanghai by the Local post. There it was handed over to the U. S. postal agency for transmission to the addressee in Springfield, Mass., for a further fee of 5 cents represented by a 2 cents Omaha and 3 cents Columbus stamps of the U. S. A.

At a later date another type of postmark was introduced, with the wording amended to "SHANGHAI CHINA—U. S. POSTAL STA.", and this is believed to have been employed down to the time of the actual closing of the Agency in December, 1922.

The military post offices established in China during the Boxer outbreak of 1900 provided what are probably the scarcest and certainly the most historically interesting examples of U. S. stamps used abroad. The international troops landed in China for the relief of the besieged Legations in Peking, included a brigade of U. S. troops despatched post haste from the Philippines to the seat of war.

At first the official despatches of this force were conveyed by naval despatch vessels to Chefoo or Shanghai, and thence transmitted to Washington over the Trans-Siberian telegraph line. The first ordinary mail from the U. S. troops was forwarded via Nagasaki by courtesy of the Japanese postal agency in Tientsin and was franked with stamps of that nation. On August 2, 1900, however, four special military post offices were established to deal with the growing correspondence of the American forces in the field—at Taku, Tientsin, Peking and Toughka respectively. These were supplied with contemporary postage stamps of the U. S. A. in denominations 1, 2, 5, 8 and 10 cents, which were cancelled with distinctive postmarks containing the words "Mil.P.Sta. China," together with the name of the town and date of posting. The various forms of inscription found on the postmarks used by these military post offices are as follows:—

(1) Mil. P. Sta. No. 1, Tientsin, China.

- (3) Mil. P. Sta. No. 1, Peking, China.
- (4) Mil. Postal Sta. No. 1, China.
- (5) Peking, China, U. S. Mil. Postal Sta.
- (6) Mil. P. Sta. No. 1, Peking.

The first three of these offices appear to have been of a stationary character, whilst the one located at Toughka was presumably a field post office and following the movements of the brigade to which it was attached.

There was in addition a Registered mark in use by Military Postal Station No. 1, in the form of a circular date stamp, struck in violet ink, and inscribed "Registered Mil. Postal Sta. No. 1, China."

U. S. stamps with postmarks of the military post offices in China are extremely hard to come by, and command high prices on the infrequent occasions when they are offered for sale. They ceased to be employed when the main body of U. S. troops was withdrawn from China on August 1, 1901, after having been in use for a year, all but one day.

Samoa.—In the days when Samoa was an independent native kingdom under the joint protection of Great Britain, U. S. A. and Germany, each of the Consular representatives at Apia, the chief port, kept on hand a supply of their national postage stamps for the convenience of traders who wished to forward letters by vessels bound for British, American or German ports, which afforded the only means of communication with the outer world. More often than not the stamps affixed to such Ship Letters were not cancelled until they reached the port of arrival, but occasionally they received the postmark of the local Samoan post, more particularly when they bore in addition the private stamps of that service. The writer has seen the 90 cents carmine U. S. A. (series 1873) with the Apia, Samoa postmark of June 28, 1878, and other varieties doubtless exist.

Under the terms of the Samoa Convention of 1899 the islands of Tutuila, Manua and one or two smaller atolls were formally ceded to the United States. At one time it was proposed to apply a special overprint to the stamps sold in Samoa, but the project was abandoned, and since early in 1901 ordinary unsurcharged U. S. stamps have been current there.

Two post offices only are maintained in the group by the U. S. Post Office Department, one at Pago-Pago, the chief settlement on Tutuila Island and the second at Tau on Manua. Both take the form of a single-line circle with the name of the office at the top and "Samoa" at the foot, with date and time of posting in the centre. Neither of these postmarks is common, that of Tau being the scarcer.

Guam.—This American naval base in the Pacific has only one post office, situated at Agaña, the chief town and port, where contemporary postage stamps of the U. S. A. have been in use since the beginning of the present century. The fact that it is one of the most elusive varieties of modern U. S. stamps used abroad may be accounted for by the small white population (including the marine garrison) and that most of the naval vessels touching there have their own particular postmark.

Philippines.—Special post offices for use by the U. S. troops in occupation of the Philippines were established at Cavite (on July 25, 1898) and subsequently at Manila, Cebu, Iloilo Harbour, etc. These offices employed ordinary current postage stamps of the U. S. A. devoid of any distinguishing overprint, and were subordinate to the head post office at San Francisco.

The earliest type of postmark used by Military Station No. 1, consists of a large concentric circle struck in lilac ink and inscribed round the circumference "Philippine Station—San Francisco." It was used in conjunction with a cancelling stamp formed of three heavy concentric circles. This gave place very shortly to a somewhat similar mark lettered "Mil. Sta. No. 1, Philippine Is-

A LUST FOR THE ALMIGHTY DOLLAR

We received recently a letter from an A.P.S. member which challenged statements on "Credit" upon which we discoursed some weeks ago. The letter rather tart communication and we deem it wise to publish this communication in our reply. We had expectations that our offer would be accepted by the A.P.S. Board of Vice Presidents but evidently our letter has fallen on stony ground. We have no desire to expel any member from the A.P.S., what we do desire is to keep members from resigning because of the crooked transactions of some of their fellow members.

The Protest

"I have just read your article on page 141 on the matter of 'Credit' and I must admit that it interests me very much as a member of the A.P.S."

Of course I do not know any more of the incident you wrote than that it sounds like a grievance. If so, would it not have been proper to make a complaint and what more could we have done than investigate the case—give the accused a chance to answer and if guilty on your complaint expelled—all this, I'm sure you ought to know, is the procedure prescribed by our By-Laws, a reasonable method.

Our Society does not guarantee anyone a profit or assurances that you will get your money any more than the A.S.D.A. will guarantee its membership, and I hold within me the judgment that the percentage is not any different there, than here—you forget that our numbers are about 40 times greater.

Complaints that come from the A.S.D.A. membership at times are bound to be unsatisfactory, no more fair than the average. I have in mind several.

Our difficulty often has been to make the charges stick, in very nearly every case on settlement the case usually falls as flat as the proverbial pancake. I feel that your article is not justified, it isn't fair even though generally written—it's an assertion to say the least.

I'm afraid you are somewhat in the same class that we have had to deal with (with the results previously mentioned), that you are not sport enough to take your chances as is met with in every business. It is perfectly fair to protect yourself and far be it from me to uphold any crook, but I know, like any business man should, the limitations of trying to make us a collection agency where it isn't always fair to do it.

I'm playing a hunch when I say that the motive back of this and the other article is probably the case—for your information I'll say that that has been settled to the satisfaction of the complainant and in view of such settlement it did not warrant an expulsion, notwithstanding the blood-curdling yell of 'expel him' by your friends."

lands" San Francisco, also of the rubber stamp variety and applied in coloured ink. Metal postmarks of the duplex pattern were subsequently introduced with inscriptions reading "Mil. Sta. No. 1, Philippine Islands-Manila" or "Mil. Sta. No. 1 Manila-Phil. Islands."

In Reply

"Let me preface my letter by saying that I believe in the A.P.S. and WEEKLY is anxious to do all that we can to promote its interests. It is merely a question as to what shall be the scope of the organization that is up for discussion. As you know, I have been a member of the Society, have attended many of its conventions, and have definite ideas as to its policies."

I believe that membership in the A.P.S. should mean honorable and just treatment of fellow-members of that organization. You intimate that the Society is not a collection agency. Possibly I am but at the same time it should have 'credit protection' when it comes to business relations between two members."

You know more about than I do. You know how many claims you have had against this party. You know how much trouble you have had effect settlements. So far as we are concerned he owes us $75 for advertisement and a check for $25 protested represents an additional obligation of $3. Such a man ought not to be a member of A.P.S. and be permitted to prey upon philately."

I can give you another example in of Mass. This party absolutely refuses to reply to letters, meet his obligation to us, and if I may take not the A.S.D.A. has had him on its black list. I think I could give you some further instances in case they were needed.

The reason why these claims have been filed with your Board is on account of previous experiences where we have been informed that the A.P.S. was not the collecting business. Here then is the whole crux of the case, and my impression is that the Society should maintain credit standards.

In sheer self-defence the WEEKLY is compelled to require that membership in any stamp society cannot be accepted without reference. If we accept commercial references and find ourselves imposed upon we can find no fault, but the general rule of collectors and dealers feel that there should be protection afforded along the lines by an association such as the A.P.S. is supposed to be.

Pardon this long letter, but I feel that the situation calls for it. If the A.P.S. feels disposed to waive the 'collecting agency' principle I shall be very glad to comply with any rules in connection with the filing of our claims. It is the aim of the WEEKLY to purge the trade so far as it can of the irresponsible dealer who knows no standard except a lust for the almighty dollar."

STAMP BOOKLETS OF 1926

By H. M. SOUTHGATE, 5800 Conn. Av., Chevy Chase, Md.

ane No. 2 is from the first experimental set of rotary plates, numbers 17,051, which were put to press June 9, 1926, and 31,895 sheets (360 subject) were printed. As the entire printing is reported to have been made only into 25 cent booklets and in "a" covers there would be over 900,000 booklets of this type turned into stock.

ates 17450-51 were returned for proofing 11 Sept. 1926, so that we may expect this No. 2 pane to appear with the "c" cover at some future date in all stamp demonstrations and possibly the combination 1 cent 2 cent 73 cent booklet. It cannot appear in the "b" cover.

These are the only curved or rotary plates made that show guide lines, and that any rotary panes with guide lines can at once be identified as pane No. 2. If in trimming the right side of the full sheet the cut is a little too far to the left, the plate number may be partially visible on the left side. Some of these panes showing plate numbers were found by a keen Boston collector. Plain panes not showing guide line numbers are difficult to identify from panes 3 and 4, but careful measurement of the spacing may show this. Plate number or guide line panes are desirable as sure of this type.

The plate numbers on these 360 subject plates are located at the four corners in the side margins, and in the position as on the ordinary rotary plates, of 400 subjects. It is thus possible for four different positions of each plate number to be found; but as the trim is made on the right side, and the edge is used as a guide for perforation the cut is carefully made, sheet by sheet and consequently the numbers on the right will seldom if ever show up; as stated above, if the trim on the left is too deep the left hand numbers found in the "a" type cover, 25 cent booklets.

The only sure identification of the No. 3 panes will be probably from panes showing the plate number, as no guide lines appear on the plate and the spacing differences between panes 2 and 4 are small, the greatest differences being in the top margin. It is possible that in panes showing the bottom line of the stamp from the pane above, i.e., showing the full binding margin that definite identification may be made.

As both of these experimental panes are the only rotary panes appearing in "a" covers they may be easily identified as being experimental panes and should be kept with the covers.

No. 4 pane. These permanent or standard rotary panes come from plates 18662 and above. As panes showing but the bottom part of the number will be found, the following list of plates made to date may be of use in identifying the numbers. In some cases the slightest showing of the bottom of the numbers is sufficient:

18663	18706	18712	18721
18695	18707	18716	18842
18696	18708	18717	18843
18697	18709	18718	18844
18698	18710	18719	18845

These panes first appeared in August, 1926, in 25c booklets with the "b" covers but as far as known they have not been found in the "a" covers. As the No. 1 panes came out in the "b" covers it seems probable that we shall not find the "a" covers with these No. 4 panes but they should be looked for. These No. 4 panes likewise should be watched for in the 49c and 97c booklets with the "b" covers. All 2c denominations with No. 4 panes appear in the "c" covers.

Summarizing the above we have the following possibilities in combinations of covers and panes:

I 1c, 25 cent Booklet				II 1c, 97 cent Booklet				III 1c-2c, 73 cent Booklet

top and bottom will show. pane No. 3. The second set of experimental rotary plates, Nos. 18550-51 were put to press also on 9 June, 1926, the same date as the plates 17450-51 (pane No. 2) were started and 61991 sheets were printed (360 subjects). Like the sheets for pane 2 this printing was supposed to be made only into 25 cent booklet in "a" covers and there were probably some 1,800,000 booklets of this type turned into stock.

ates Nos. 18550-51 were cancelled after this printing, so that, in all probability, experimental pane 2 can only be

The probability of a 1c rotary pane 4 has been included above, although these varieties would not strictly come within the scope of these notes, as no curved booklet 1c plates were made in 1926.

There are in the vaults a considerable number of flat 1c booklet plates but owing to changing of postal rates they never have been put to press. These probably would be used up before curved plates are made but they may be used in "a" or "c" covers. It is not impossible that a new form of cover might supersede the "c" before these No. 1 panes are used up.

Action by Congress to restore the 1 cent rate to private post cards will create a demand that should wear out existing plates rapidly in making up a sufficient stock.

The writer would appreciate hearing from anyone finding experimental panes 2 and 3, the only rotaries in the old, or "a" cover, and also of any combinations not listed as known, more especially the numbers 1 and 4 panes in the "b" covers in 49c and 97c denominations. As the "b" cover was put to press before the rotary number 4 panes were approved, both types 1 and 4 2c panes in all denominations were, doubtless, put into circulation but so far only the 25c books of both types have been reported.

By EDWARD E. GOODCHILD.

Greed, and nothing but greed, has much, if not all to do with the sudden action of the P. O. authorities in Canada regarding the reproduction of Canadian postage stamps.

Since its inception, those who have guided the destinies of the Philatelic Department of the Postage Stamp Dept. of Canada have given very courteous and valuable assistance to philatelists throughout the world, and in moments of despair we should not be unmindful of that fact.

Information of valuable assistance as to plate numbers, quantities supplied, etc., have always been readily given by those responsible. With that experience one may well inquire why this apparent change of heart, if any, of the authorities toward Philately. A little play of imagination can readily supply the answer.

In the belief they were conferring a favor upon philatelists, the department under authority of Mr. Gabony, the Deputy Minister, instead of destroying all of the supplies of the now famous three-cent surcharges saved a number of sheets for "philatelic purposes."

A firm of Canadian stamp dealers, obtaining their supplies rather early saw an opportunity for a little "clean up" and boosted these "rare" items at 25c each and then up to 35c per stamp.

If there is one bugbear philatelists have to contend with it's the surcharge issues. Most, readily lend themselves to the faker's art and this Canadian surcharge is no exception, in fact, the type is of the font found in "any old printing establishment."

At thirty-five cents per stamp the faker would be more than well repaid, we must therefore believe that those in charge of stamp issues were alive to the possibility of the market being flooded with spurious surcharge specimens, and took action as a precautionary warning against such.

The legal aspect of the case is at present being investigated by certain legal authorities insofar as it affects seizures of cuts, and although no definite decision has yet been arrived at, it is the belief that the P. O. department would be acting within its rights so far as cuts of Canadian Postage stamps are concerned but would have exceeded its power and open to action if its seizure included demonitised or Revenue stamps outside of its jurisdiction.

That the matter will be adjusted to the satisfaction of all parties interested is the belief of those more qualified to judge.

EDITORIAL

The buzz of conversation regarding prospective commemoratives for the U. S. is losing some of its softer accents and again it becomes evident that there is a division of opinion as to the effect that such stamps have on what may be called the welfare of collecting. We do not know whether any philatelic societies have debated the subject as has been suggested but it is plain that readers have not been backward in speaking for themselves, individually. Recently, we took a vote of twenty callers on: Are commemorative issues desirable, in good number, in your opinion and (b) for the benefit of collecting, as a whole? The voters ranged from twelve to sixty-five years of age and their answers were tabulated but the result was that the voters, when viewed compositely, almost divided themselves, half and half. It was not denied, however, that the "thrill" of such issues was weakening with successive issues. One reader who, by-the-way, is in the advertising business says: "You have summed up the matter in remarks made in a recent issue, as follows: 'The danger of undue industry in stamp making is recognized even by those who stress the temporary tonic effect of new stamps on philately. Each succeeding special issue moderates interest and a check is needed to prevent the idea from running wild.' That is a good statement and why not rest on it? When it is found that sales to collectors fall off, it will be shown how collectors stand." Then our editorial friend, Mr. Victor W. Rotnem, takes up the cudgels for commemoratives and brings arguments to bear in favor of them but he takes it for granted that our expressions are personal, instead of being based on the opinions of a rather large number of collectors who have taken the time to register their views. We have felt that the advertising value of commemorative ratives commended itself and this advantage, coupled with the fact that the outlay for the stamps was no hardship on the collector justified the stamps. However, we are aware that there are not a few collectors who take a broad view of the problem and say that the effect of the stamps on collecting is an impairing one. The fear that the trickle of commemoratives may become a stream worries more than the well-known corporal's guard of collectors.

A book of over 350 pages has been published at Cleveland, Ohio, with the engaging title, The Overland Mail, and while there is nothing of philatelic content in it, if the picture of a pony express envelope is excepted, the book is one that will be esteemed for its historical importance. The years, 1849 to 1869, are reviewed by the writer, LeRoy R. Hafen, Ph.D., historian of The State Historical and Natural History Society of Colorado, who had access to a host of authorities on his subject; and we may add that there are about 750 footnotes in the book.

From Mr. E. W. Murray, Monroe, La., we have received two varieties of the Wells, Fargo & Co.'s prepaid newspaper stamps, 1c and 2c, each with the text: "In payment of the charges on newspapers and magazines to all points reached by this company in Missouri, Kansas, Nebraska, Arizona, Colorado, Iowa, New Mexico, Wyoming, Dakota, Texas and Indian Territory. If the package contains any other matter, change tariff rate in addition to the stamp. Amador Andrews, Manager." The "1 lb.—1c" label is black on pink and the "2 lbs.—2c" is black on blue green, type set. Mr. Murray says: "These stamps were used over twenty-five years ago by the Wells, Fargo Express Company on packages of newspapers. The express company operated out of St. Louis west over the St. L. & S. & F. R. R. At the time I was interested in a book-store and handled the St. Louis daily papers, the bundles of which were thrown off the fast trains that did not stop at Monroe. The express was paid by the publishers and the stamps showed that it was paid." Every now and then, one finds these and other express labels on one of the blank sheets in the old album; and at any rate, they have a slight call on the attention of collectors, even though they lack philatelic credentials.

Mr. N. J. McQuade, Utica, N. Y., says: "Having collected stamps for fifty years in a modest way and having marked on the back of each stamp, the time of purchase, and from whom bought, as well as the price, I find much ever transported on any of the first contract service air lines. It is acknowledge that the philatelic mail on the occasion was very heavy and the company is quick to say that it is aware that philatelists are the best customers of the flights.

* * *

As readers know, the post office department has leased the aerial mail privileges of the transcontinental route to a private contractor. The contract for the western division of the flight was awarded some weeks ago but inasmuch as the bids on the eastern service, Chicago to New York, were unsatisfactory, a second call was advertised and the National Air Transport, Inc., has been awarded the contract. The schedule will necessitate a flying speed of a minimum of ninety miles an hour.

The story of the man who bought a hotel so that he could "fire the clerk who was flip to him" comes to mind as a consequence of the following request from a reader: "Why don't you buy —because it is so woodeny; I am sorry that I have to see it come each month." Some of our readers take a great interest in our affairs and many has and suggestions come from those who are interested in our publishing welfare. At times, advice is given that is impractical because it proceeds from a mistaken idea of the purpose of the paper. The mission of the WEEKLY is to present the news of the week in a readable manner so as to enlist the attention of all classes. A month's issues of the paper will establish the fact that within that period, about all the notes on the collecting scale are struck, with undue emphasis on none. We realize that the pursuit has advanced beyond the personal stage and that collecting is in no way dependent on the wishes or whims of any individual; and so, our columns reflect that condition. Well-balanced rations must be provided and a surfeit of no one course is offered, at any rate. At times, our pages cannot accommodate all the matter that crowds for place and changes have to be made at the last moment, which upsets our routine, but in the aggregate, the whole collecting field is covered; and original and reprint matter presented in fair proportion.

NEWS ITEMS:—

WE are indebted to M. P. Ganey for two clippings. One gives the story of the Lamborn auction sale in New York City as it appeared in the N. Y.
Times. The other is from the Peoria, Ill., Star and describes the collection of airmail stamps of Paul F. Robertson of that city. The story of his collection is accompanied by a picture of Mr. Robertson.

ALBERT H. HARRIS, writing us in behalf of the Harris Publications Ltd., informs us that his office has been removed to 112 Strand, where he is very pleasantly situated. This firm is actively engaged in various lines of philatelic publishing.

WE have received from Fred E. Prohaska, 82 Hutton St., Jersey City, N. J., his April price-list covering a wide range of stamps in sets and singles.
A sample copy will be sent by Mr. Prohaska on request.

PONCA CITY, OKLA., AIR MAIL

The first flight inaugurating contract air mail over the Chicago-Dallas Route via Ponca City, Okla., was made April 4 and we have covers from various parties with Ponca City regulation marking. In each instance the hour is given as 10.30 A.M. Thanks to our friends for courtesies extended.

"Finger Print" Overprint

Quite recently Sidney Brownstein contributed a bit of verse to our columns, and we are very glad to have another contribution, as follows:—

The type of fellow I can't stand
Is the guy who grabs with dirty hand.
A Stamp that's new and clean and mint,
And returns it surcharged "Finger print".

We can sympathize with Sidney.

Side-Lines in Collecting

In recent issues I have suggested some specialized collecting with animals and birds in alphabetical order. This idea can be applied in other directions, as for instance the botanical kingdom, where nearly every useful tree and plant is well represented. Map and ship stamps are very common and in general of interesting appearance and make a very fine collection in themselves. Then there are in addition to scenic views, those representing the various trades and activities of mankind. In the average catalog there are nearly one hundred different trade activities represented from bishops to blacksmiths, the collecting of which makes for infinite variety.—PERCY A. HILL.

Stamp News for the Juniors

Is there anything you want to know about stamps or stamp collecting? If so, write the editor. What would you like to see in this department? We have no way of knowing unless you tell us. Mr. Senior Collector, can't you give the boy collector about 50 words of encouragement along practical lines? Address your letter to the Beverly office.

Junior Gossip

—We have received a little story on 'The Precancelled Stamp of Kokomo, Ind.' from Parvin Riley (17), Bridgeton, N. J. We are not publishing the same, but we thank our Junior friend for remembering us with his story. In this connection we may add that we are glad to hear from our Junior collectors at any time, but it may not always be possible for us to use their contributions. We shall do this whenever possible.

—We are very pleased at the interest taken in our British stamp contest. Answers were sent in by the following Juniors:—

Earl L. Whetsell, Eugene McDonald (15), Paul Barnes, Helen G. Hovda, David Q. Weaver, Kazuo Sakane, Alfred R. Tapert, G. A. —"I believe Albert Rosenthal is right. If U. S. stamp dealers will put the catalogue number on the back of each stamp they sell, it would prove quite popular with collectors who are puzzled by different shades and varieties. — H. R. ZUCKERMAN.

Origin of Countries' Names

(Insert in Your Album.)

Orange River.—The Hottentots call this river Garib—"great water." This word was corrupted by the Dutch into Gariep. In 1777 Colonel Gordon, a Dutch officer of Scotch birth, named it "Orange" in honour of the Prince of Orange.

Nova Scotia.—In 1603 this country was called Acadia by the French. An expedition sent out under De Monts, by Henry the IV of France, came into conflict with the English settlers while carrying out their royal master's rather large pretensions. Doubtless, in consequence of this, James the First, with his usual Scotch canniness, made a grant of the whole peninsula, under the name of Nova Scotia—"New Scotland," to Sir William Alexander, another Scotsman. The name Scotia was originally applied to Ireland. A tribe from thence came and settled in a part of Scotland, then called Caledonia, giving to it the new name of Scotia in the eleventh century. From that beginning the name Scotland became established in the twelfth and thirteenth centuries.

Mauritius.—The island was discovered by a Portuguese navigator in 1505, but it was taken possession of by the Dutch in 1598 and named by them after Count Maurice of Nassau. Previously the name given by the Portuguese was "Ilha da Cerne."

Montserrat was discovered by Columbus in 1493 and named by him from Mont Serrado, Spanish serrado and serato—"toothed like a saw," a "saw-like mountain."—Stamp Collecting.

Postmasters' Stamps

These are stamps and envelopes prepared for and issued by the Postmasters of various cities in the United States in 1845-46 to facilitate the prepayment of postage previous to the introduction of the general Governmental issues. Outside the United States we find but one solitary representative of this class of special stamps—a 1d label issued by the Postmaster of Hamilton, Bermuda, in 1848.

An Album Page Arrangement

So many collectors using a blank album think it is their bounden duty to crowd as many stamps on a page as possible, and with that "laudable" object in view, they mount the first stamp in the upper left-hand corner, and follow the others all as close together as possible, row by row, ignoring such trifles as different issues and regardless of the most elementary ideas of symmetry. This is, of course, altogether the wrong way. Each issue must be kept entirely separate. Thus if one has two issues of stamps, one containing three varieties and the other two, these must not be placed in the same horizontal row but each must be allowed a row to itself. Furthermore, the stamps should be mounted in the centre of the page and not as near the left-hand side as possible. For the sake of illustration we will presume we have four issues to mount on one of our pages comprising seven, three, four, and eight stamps respectively. We find eight will not go in a row and seven has a rather crowded appearance so we decide to allow two rows to each of these issues. In all we, thus, have six horizontal rows and allowing a fair space between these they fill the page nicely. The 22 stamps will be arranged as follows:—

1	2	3	4	5
	8	9	10
11	12	13	14
15	16	17	18	19
	20	21	22

Do not arrange them thus:

1	2	3	4	5	6	7
8	9	10	11	12	13	14
15	16	17	18	19	20	21

War Tax Stamps

Most collectors are familiar with the Spanish stamps inscribed "Impuesto de Guerra." These are listed in Gibbons under the caption "War tax stamps" and, we read, "These stamps were issued to collect a fee in addition to the ordinary postal rate." It will thus be seen that they are not postage stamps at all inasmuch as they did not pay postage but represented a transitory tax levied on letters and stamped papers and documents. The first of these war tax labels was issued in 1874 to help pay the expenses incurred by the Carlist insurrection while the last was issued in 1898-99 to help pay for the war in Cuba and the Philippine Islands.

The Junior Dictionary

Amur Province.—A tract of territory in Siberia. Stamps are said to have been issued in 1917, bearing the inscription "Amurskoe Zemstvo Lioy" or "Amurian Local Government Post."

Arad.—A city in Hungary where during the World War, the French occupation forces under the authority of the Allied commanders used certain Hungarian stamps overprinted "Occupation française."

Arbe.—This surcharge on the "Agency" stamps of Fiume was to indicate their use in the island of Arbe in the gulf of Quarnero, which was occupied by the Legionnaires of D'Annunzio.

Armenia.—A large table-land region northeast of Asia Minor. Stamps were first issued in 1920, consisting of Russian stamps overprinted with various devices. In 1921, a regular set appeared.

Aunus.—A town in N. W. Russia where in 1919, Finnish stamps were overprinted "Aunus" by the Finnish military forces engaged in fighting the Bolsheviks.

Ayacucho.—An Indian word found on Peru, 1921, issue, and meaning "Corner of Death." It has reference to the battle which secured the independence of Peru when Gen. Sucre defeated the Spaniards Dec. 9, 1824.

Azerbaijan.—This republic was composed of parts of former Russian, Persian and Turkish territory.

Bagdad Issue.—A name applied to a set of stamps used by the British Occupation Forces at Bagdad during the World War. Stamps of Turkey were overprinted "Baghdad—in British Occupation."

Balcony Falls, Va.—A town where Confederate provisional appeared in 1861. The stamp is circular in shape and the design is a five pointed star with "10" in the centre and P-A-I-D and the letters "C. S." in the spaces between the points.

Balboa Tomando Posesion De Oceano Pacifico.—"Balboa taking possession of the Pacific Ocean" on the Panama 1915, 2c stamp.

Banat Issue.—In July, 1919, the Serbian troops withdrew from the Banat, an agricultural region in Hungary whose chief town is Temesvar, but before the Roumanian forces could take possession, the local Hungarian postal officials issued a distinctive local set of stamps. It is known as the Banat Issue and is purely Hungarian.

Baranya.—A city in Hungary where during the Serbian Occupation in the World War certain Hungarian stamps were overprinted "Baranya."

DURBAN STAMP EXHIBITION

A competitive Stamp Exhibition will be held in Durban, So. Africa, during July, 1928. This will be the Third International Exhibition of stamps held in the Union of South Africa. It will be recalled that the exhibition which was held during 1913 under the patronage of H.
M. King George V was a great success, and the promoters, the Philatelic Society of Natal, are determined to leave no stone unturned to make the proposed Exhibition the most successful ever held in the Southern Hemisphere.

All the officials are expert philatelists and many are well-known throughout the world. Every effort is being made to secure the services of judges of world repute and already several prominent philatelists have promised to assist in this direction.

Preliminary inquiries which have been made indicate that overseas collectors will heartily co-operate in the venture, and several well-known collectors of international standing have signified their intention of exhibiting. A cordial invitation is extended to all Philatelists and Dealers to participate and send in collections and displays.

The final arrangements for a hall have not yet been made but it is hoped to secure the use of the Durban Town Hall.
This building is one of the finest in the world and is situated in the heart of the town. All exhibits will be insured against fire and theft, and every possible provision will be made to secure the safeguarding of exhibits whilst in the custody of the Exhibition Committee. Collections will be displayed in sealed glass cases protected from direct sunlight.

There is no customs duty on stamps imported into the Union and collections will not be opened until entrusted to the Exhibition Committee for judging and display.

If you are interested in the Exhibition write Norman Welsford, Durban, So.
Africa, for entry blanks.

railway where there was no regular postal station.

Following the advent of specially overprinted stamps for the Philippines, the unsurcharged varieties continued to be accepted in prepayment of postal charges as late as October 1, 1903. The overprinted stamps were introduced on May 1, 1899, when the control of the Islands postal service was formally transferred from the U. S. Post Office Department to the government of the Phil-

UNITED STATES

Postage and Revenue

While I hold one of the finest, if not the best, stocks of the postage stamps of the United States in the hands of any professional and solicit want lists from the serious collector, nevertheless, right at the present time I much prefer to buy rather than to sell. While I want anything worth while and superb in the postal and revenue issues of the United States, I more especially desire:—

- (1). Mint singles and mint blocks, 1847 to 1880.
- (2). Mint blocks, 1881 to 1900.
- (3). Bureau errors, including part perforates, inverts, etc.
- (4). Fine early covers.
- (5). Revenues—inverted centers.

3c National, Broken Plate

Mr. Eugene Klein has just shown me the 1870 3c National broken plate on cover. I have never seen this break before, which extends horizontally across the stamp at the level of the neck. The crack is very deep at the left and terminates at the extreme right edge of the variety. The copy in question is on a cover from Ithaca to Williams Point, Pa., and the black postmark bears date of Feb. 6. Notation upon the envelope in manuscript shows that the year of use was 1873. The copy is on a cover used by the offices of the Ithaca & Athens Railroad.

Special Delivery Service With Mexico

Effective April 1st, ordinary articles in the regular mail addressed for delivery in Mexico will be given the benefit of special delivery service when prepaid 20c, in addition to the regular postage.

The envelope or cover intended for special delivery should have affixed labels reading "Expres (special delivery)". However, until a supply of these labels can be secured from the Fourth Assistant Postmaster General, the communications in all cases should be marked in red ink "Expres" directly below the stamps.

Articles mailed in Mexico, which are intended for special delivery are to be similarly marked. Such communications will be subject to the same conditions in their delivery as special delivery articles of domestic origin.

BRAZIL.—L'Echo de la Timbrologie states that two Commemorative stamps will be issued in August on the occasion of the centenary of the foundation of the Courts of Justice in Brazil. The stamps will be 35x24 mm.; the values 100r blue and 200r red; the inscription "Brasil—11 De agosto 1827/1927—Cursos Juridicos—Centenario".—Philatelic Magazine.

FRANCE.—The latest new issue of this country is the 1fr10c cerise, Sower type. Mr. R. Roberts sends a copy for chronicle.

HUNGARY.—Whitfield King & Co. have shown us the 70 filler scarlet, design similar to Scott's A27 but with the word at the top extending over the entire length of the stamp and the word "Filler" at the base in smaller and shorter letters. Also the 1 filler postage due stamps has appeared in carmine.

HYDERABAD.—Whitfield King & Co. report that they have received the 1 rupee value in yellow.

JAMAICA.—We have received from Mr. R. Roberts a copy of the 5sh stamp of the current issue in a different shade from the original printing. The frame plate is quite a bright orange yellow instead of the bistre and the vignette plate is a deeper richer blue.

MOROCCO.—Whitfield King & Co. have shown us the Air Post stamps in these new denominations and colors: 80c brown, 1fr40c red brown, 1fr90c blue and 3fr black.

NETHERLANDS.—Our Rotterdam correspondent, Mr. P. Gordon, informs us that the 7 1/2 and 60c values are to disappear from circulation, while new denominations of 27 1/2c and 45c are to be issued.

There is no official news as to the watermark being done away with, as recently rumored elsewhere.

Mr. Gordon tells us that a new set of Red Cross stamps, to celebrate the sixtieth anniversary of the Dutch R Cross Society, will be issued about June comprising the denominations of 2, 3, 10 and 15c, to be sold at a premium of 2, 2, 3, 3 and 5c respectively.—Stamp Collecting.

NEW CALEDONIA.—The long-promised portrait stamps have again been announced as about to be issued. In time, in about a couple of months L'Echangiste Universel gives biographical details as follows:

"La Pérouse. Born at Albi in 1735. Died 1788. Sent exploring by Louis XVI, he commanded two ships, which went aground off the Isle of Vanikoro (North of New Hebrides). He was massacred by the natives.

Jules Dumont d'Urville. Another French Navigator. During his voyage round the world, in 1828, re-discovered the remains of the boats, 'La Boussou' and 'L'Astrolabe.' These were, by order of the Government of Louis Philippe transported to France, where they are exhibited in the Naval Museum of the Louvre.

Louis de Bougainville, French Navigator. Born at Paris in 1732. Died 1811. Between 1766 and 1769 he undertook tour of the world, about which he wrote a book. Napoleon created him a Count and Senator."—Philatelic Magazine.

NEWFOUNDLAND.—Our Special correspondent, Mr. Frank F. Willis, has on good authority that plans are already under way for the issuing of a new set of stamps, which it is hoped will be ready in about two months.—Stamp Collecting.

NORTH BORNEO.—Mr. R. Roberts advises us that the following denominations of the current issue have been placed on sale with perforation 12 1/2: 1c, 3c, 5c, 10c, 25c, 50c and of the postage due series the 3c and 4c.

PALESTINE.—Further to the descriptions given in our last reference, we have now received the following: "It is officially announced that the first issue of new Palestine stamps, replacing the overprinted Egyptian Expeditionary Force stamps now used, will probably appear in July. The stamps will bear representations of David's Tower, the Mosque of Omar, Rachael's Tomb, and the Sea of Galilee."—"Exchange Telegraph Company."—Philatelic Magazine.

PARAGUAY.—From Whitfield King & Co. we learn that the 5c blue, design Scott's A38, has been surcharged "Habi tado en $0.02 centavos" in four lines black.

UNION OF SOUTH AFRICA. — News from Mr. J. Robertson, editor of the South African Philatelist: — I am informed on authority which I have previously found 100 per cent reliable that supplies of further values in the pictorial set have reached Pretoria from London. Beyond the statement that at least one denomination is transverse oblong in shape no details are available, but the denominations received will probably prove to be the 2d and 3d, as they are much needed.

Supplies of the Pretoria printed 1/2d and 6d pictorials have been delivered to the Post Office Department by the Government Printer, and the former denomination will probably be on issue almost at once.

A new design has been adopted for the Postage Due stamps, while the wording has also been altered. Stamps are now inscribed alternately in English and Afrikaans, as on the postage adhesives. The new 1d Due is now on sale at Pretoria P.O., but is not yet available in Johannesburg. I shall probably be able to enclose specimens with this letter. [Not enclosed.—Ed.] The 2d, 3d and 6d Dues in the new design will probably not be available for some little while yet, but the 2d will be the next to appear. No further printings are being made of the 1/2d and 1 1/2d Postage Due stamps, as these denominations are no longer required.

I omitted to mention above that on the new Postage Due design the inscriptions are alternately "SOUTH AFRICA" and "SUIDAFRICA." — Stamp Collecting.

St. Kitts, 3d Ultramarine.—It is not my rule to be continually patting myself on the back, but one may be forgiven now and again when things turn out as predicted. I am hoping that all my readers took full advantage of the St. Kitts 3d blue, S.G. No. 47, which has now jumped to 2sh both mint and used. I may go a step further and give it as my opinion that not only this stamp, but others of the 3d values which have changed, or are about to do so, their colours will rise in price.

British P.O.'s in China (on Hong Kong).—I have a reason for making my "Best Thing of the Month," China, British Post Office, 50 cents, black on emerald, emerald back. S.G. 12b.

The printing of this stamp was not a large order, and it will not be repeated. These British Post Offices in China are often stated to be shut, and the stamps obsolete — but look out for some new issues from this quarter of the globe!

The Remaining M.C.A. Paper. — All values have appeared of the Crown Colonies series, with the exception of the £1 values, on the new script watermarked paper.

The red paper used for this value was manufactured in absurdly large quantities, and, I understand, would last for years if it is kept for the high value stamps it is exclusively used for at present. There are rumours about that the £1 values are shortly beginning to appear on the new script paper. I do not place any credence in this rumour, but there is so much of the red paper remaining, that I should say it will certainly be destroyed one day.

Australia.—Readers should quickly obtain the two low values Australian, 1d green and 1 1/2d red, with the new multiple watermark, and perforated with the old comb machine, 14. I expect these will be the only two values to be issued with this watermark and perforation, and they had a very short life indeed, as a new comb machine, perforating 13 1/2 by 12 1/2 was very quickly brought into use.

French Provisionals.—I should like my followers to get all these as they appear. Some will turn out good, and others may not, but they only cost a small sum, so do not miss any. Whilst on France, I should like to mention that French precancels are beginning to go very high—not the Postes Affranchis which are at present in use, but all the Postes Paris and Postes France, which were previously in use. These may be found amongst the very commonest mixtures, and the market price of the commonest in France today is from 2s6d to 10sh. Some of them fetch even a good bit more.

French Colonial Surcharges. — Those readers who followed my last advice on these should keep it up with the new ones that are now putting in an appearance. The 10 and 20 franc provisionals which have just appeared for five of the French Colonies, will have but a very short life. Follow these up by obtaining copies of the new 90 centimes and 1.50 centimes surcharges as soon as you can obtain them.

Monaco.—A nice little country, this, I think, and I advise readers not to miss any of these stamps as they appear, as many of them are likely to have a very short life, and very few in number, comparatively speaking, are printed at one time.

Belgium.—The Belgium 5 francs, plus, 1fr red, charity (tuberculosis) stamp recently issued, has been fetching quite a large price here and even more in Belgium. I do not feel inclined to boost it, as from what I hear it is very probable that the Belgian Government will make a second printing of this stamp. Of course, the second printing, if it eventuates, may show a marked difference in some way or other, as they often do, but as I say, I shouldn't recommend buying this stamp except at the ordinary percentage over face.

Seychelles.—I am of opinion that there are two of the recent low value stamps of this Colony likely to become rather scarce in the near future. I allude to the 3c black and the 12c carmine scripts. The former has now reverted to green, and the latter to grey. Neither has had a long life, and the 12c especially has always been rather an elusive stamp.—Philatelic Journal of Great Britain.

WESTERN AIRMAIL NOTE

By CALVERT R. STIER.

Bids for the carrying of mail by plane from Seattle to Victoria will be opened by the post office department May 17. This bid calls for operation of the airmail service for one year, 1, 1927, to the following July. Those liners bound for the Orient on the port of Victoria. No special cancellation is to be used on the opening of this service.

On CAM 5, Walter T. Varney, controller of the Pasco to Elko (now changed to Salt Lake City) airmail has application to the P. O. Dept. for operation of a seven-day schedule to begin April 1. Varney's planes now all days except Monday, when the r is dispatched by Oregon and Washington train to Salt Lake or San Francisco. This extra day of service will allow Varney to take care of the increased mail that has resulted since the reduction of rates February first. This serves the states of Washington, Oregon and Idaho, allowing the Northwest have direct air communication with New York.

Route 8, Seattle to Los Angeles, had several mishaps with its planes, the mail delivery has been most content and on time. This route is longest of all the contract ones, serves some dozen large coast cities.

The Wilkins Expedition at Point Barrow, Alaska, in which great interest being taken here in Seattle, has received its third plane from Detroit. The idea of this expedition is, for C. Wilkins and his staff to use the plane in flying from the base at Point Barrow in search for unexplored lands. Perhaps Wilkins will have a special N. Pole stamp issued, as did the Norwegian.

The China controversy has made the city of Seattle a clearing house for mail letters. Most of the important patches to the danger zones of N. China arrive here by Pasco-Salt Lake airmail and are despatched on the imperial liners bound for Kobe, Shanghai and Hong Kong. Those that are late are placed on the seaplane at Seattle and immediately dispatched to Victoria, where they are placed on outbound steamers.

It is doubtful if any more contract mail routes will be established here the west, despite some talk concerning new ones. The Seattle-Los Angeles-Victoria-Seattle, Pasco-Boise-Salt Lake and the Cheyenne-Denver-Pueblo routes amply take care of all important west cities.

the 1870-73 series and tries to fill out set with similar "plain, strong grill" cannot live long enough to complete set simply because that grill does occur on the high value stamps, when both grills are represented in collection the owner is apt to wonder which are genuine or why the catalog fail to mention the existence of two distinct varieties.

The purchaser of a large grill show the characteristics of the smaller is of luck. When he discovers it was made by the National Bank Note Co. dealer who sold it is also out of luck. The 3c National with grill (Scott 136), is priced at 8c. Any dealer who stock contains a dozen or two probably has at least one copy of each of the major grills showing their characteristics plainly. At a cost of 15 cents any collector can possess himself of two stamps that will be a shield and buckler against the temptation to invest good money in good stamps bearing grills that are so good as they may look.

I wish to express my indebtedness to Arthur E. Owen for first calling my attention to the existence of National grills from the later plates and to John N. L. for having drawn so freely from his valuable book for the information covering the numbering of the National plates to which reference is made in this article.—Scott's Monthly Journal.

Part I.—Bureau Precancels

This week I have lots of news for those interested in the Bureau and precancellations. As you are aware, the Department is experimenting with a new perforation for the Rotary stamps, which is compound, being 1½, and for the first time Bureau precancels were issued in this perforation in the month of January. Following is a list of the same, which shall be found in the Bureau catalog as follows: "1927, Bureau Print Rotary":

(Perforated 11x10½)
Columbus, O., 3c, 5c, 10c.
Chicago, 1½c.
Los Angeles, 3c.
St. Louis, 2c.
St. Paul, 1½c.
Washington, D. C., 3c.

The above have been issued in the new perforation, except the 3c Dallas. This gives us five stamps in the new perforation, the 1½c, 2c, 5c and 10c. The 1½c will doubtless follow shortly. In addition to these new varieties we also look for the following, which were ordered during the months of December and January:

Batavia, Ill., 1½c coil.
Youngstown, O., 1½c coil.
Little Rock, Ark., 1½c coil.
Chicago, 1½c coil.
St. Paul, N. J., 1c coil.
Dallas, Texas, 1, 1½, 2, 4, 5, 6, 7, 8, 10c ordinary.
Batavia, R. I., 7, 9c ordinary.
It may be well to note that the Manassas coil was reported as having been issued a year ago, but this was not so. The 1½c has heretofore been all that has been furnished and is incidentally a common variety.

Dallas will use the entire set to 10c in 10x10 perforation, with the exception of the 3c, which is the 11x10½. The 10c coil may also be looked for, though not as yet been ordered.

Evidence has now the entire series of 1c to 10c in the 10x10 perforation, and the 7c and 9c have been furnished. Chicago, 1½c is a decided surprise. I imagine what the need is for such a circular mailing from this town.

Batavia and Youngstown coils will be hard to pick up, but Little Rock should be more plentiful.

The Harrisburg 3, 4, 5 and 10c ordinary stamps that were reported some time ago should never have been listed as they were reported through error by our correspondent.

The Gossip Bureau Catalog will appear at an early date, as the compilation has been completed and the material sent to the publishers. The prices on the Frenchtown and New Britain 1c coils have been advanced to $5.00 and $3.00, respectively.

Part II.—General Issues

THE ILLUSTRATIONS

Three Oaks, Mich.—Makes its debut in precancel circles with a printed cancellation produced by a 100 subject electroplate. I believe it exists only on the 1½c, perforated 10.

San Pedro, Calif.—The illustrated overprint was first seen by me, upon the current 20c. This style is going into widespread use, which is well, for it is admittedly of pleasing appearance and distinctive neatness.

South Bend, Ind.—Says goodbye to the old U-5 style! Just as well, too, because the old plate had several breaks in it and was beginning to show the signs of service. The new type came on the current 6c perf. 10, and was printed upside down.

Norfolk, Virginia—No longer will we get those large U-2 cancellations that were so striking, for the new plate is of the style that is being generally adopted. The 1½c, perf. 11 is all I have with the new overprint. Staunton, Va., has an electro that is practically identical, with the exception that the state name is abbreviated.

Carronton, O.—Very different, is it not, from the usual run of precancellations? Without question it is a local type set production. Have noticed it only upon the current 20c.

MISCELLANEOUS.

New Rochelle, N. Y.—In the course of a month two new types of precancels are added to this city's list. First, the Bureau overprint on the 1½c coil, that is like the type for Grand Rapids, San Francisco, etc., and then an electroplate overprint resembling the Three Oaks, Mich. illustration. If ever a city needed an electroplate, it is New Rochelle, for the handstamped varieties were a disgrace to the name of precancels. The ink faded when you soaked the stamps and it was seldom that the cancellation was centered. However, the printed specimens are a delight to the eye. I can chronicle the 15 and 20c of the current series.

Ogden, Utah—Also discards a plate producing a large sized overprint, the Universal Style I, in favor of the style illustrated for San Pedro and Norfolk. This will mean a saving of ink, and an improved appearance for Ogden precancels.

Waukesha, Wis.—Likewise has a new electro of this same style. Prof. A. F. Gamber was the first to show it to me, on his pet stamp—the 14c.

Marinette, Wis.—Now possesses a plate which prints a cancellation like the illustrated Three Oaks. Have it on the 1½c.

Leon, Iowa — Wish we had room to illustrate this one. It consists of tall, thin capitals, with serifs, between lines and just about covers the stamp. I feel sure that the cancellation is a local type-setting, for it is printed, not hand-stamped. I found a pair of the current 13c in a job lot from a Texas correspondent.

Sherrill, N. Y.—Someone mentioned that this city has an electroplate, but if so it's new to me, for I have not seen evidence of the fact. If some reader has a specimen showing a printed cancellation, I shall appreciate seeing it.

There are a number of new offices to be recorded as having come into the precancel fold, with handstamped precancellations. These I shall attempt to cover in a separate article. News notes in regard to any of these will be appreciated.

That the 1926 Standard Precancel Catalog is completely sold out, is the information I receive from the publishers. There are, however, a number of copies of the 1925 edition available at a sacrifice price. If any reader wishes more information concerning this interesting branch of the hobby, I suggest buying one of the 1925 books. They can be ordered through this department. The cost is $1.00.

Boston, Mass.

STORY IS DATED APRIL 1

The following article in some form or other has been going the rounds of the daily press. D. Staver sends us a clipping from the "Daily Tribune" which we reprint because of the significant fact that it bears the date line "April 1". The contents contained in the article have not been verified by any of our Denver correspondents.

DENVER, COL., April 1.—Romance in stamps? Yes, and fortune, too! August Lutken, who spent 53 of his 63 years in collecting the postage of the world from its four corners, has disposed of part of his collection for $38,000.

Lutken has sent to stamp dealers in California, 220,000 stamps, mostly those of the United States. He will retain a collection of 750,000, which he appraises at $100,000.

Lutken the game was no rich man's hobby. He could afford no heavy expenditure for this or that elusive stamp to complete some particular collection. His entire accumulation, he estimates, did not cost him more than $500. Most of it he sold to him in his travels. For it was he who had seen the seven seas from the kind of ship bottom, but for 18 years he was a marine in the British Navy. Always it was the zest of the hobby, rather than the thought of an annual monetary return, that urged him on.

How did I start?" Lutken says: "I was in San Francisco in 1876. Four men had signed up for Liverpool. One of them, broke, offered me a membership book with 11 stamps pasted in for a quarter. I had been interested in stamps before that, but those 11 I consider formed the cornerstone of my collection. Their present value is $825."

A side of stamp collecting that absorbs Lutken is its educational phase. He is frequently sought by local schools and often he is called upon to address student bodies in various parts of the State. His little cottage in a remote section of the city is a popular rendezvous for excited school children.

HOW I FELL FOR PRECANCELS
 By A. F. GAMBER.

As has been the case with many other now rabid precancel collectors, the process of my induction into the game was somewhat accidental. My collecting instinct was first aroused when I was about 9 years old, by the sight of a 2 1/2d blue stamp on a letter addressed to my father from the Cape of Good Hope. Thenceforth, I was always interested in stamps, but until my mother bought me a cheap packet of 100 varieties in 1900, I suppose I had not more than 20 or 25 stamps. My chances for securing stamps were very few, and my pocket money was all pocket and no money. But by the time I entered Oberlin College in 1907, I had accumulated some few hundred stamps from all parts of the world. Lacking $5 to buy a Christmas present for my girl (she's still it) I sold them for that amount, and have never felt that I was cheated out of a single cent.

In 1910, I got Scott's 19th and 20th Century Albums and went at it again, this time with some money to spend occasionally. After 1912, when I was out of college and on my own, the collection grew more rapidly, but I soon came to see that with my limited means I never would get very far, so I traded off all but my 20th Century United States and a few foreign countries in which I had the best showing.

During this time precancels meant nothing to me except that the overprint disfigured many an otherwise, to me, fine copy. Between 1914 and 1917, I was Assistant Postmaster in a small North Dakota town, where I picked up quite a lot of the perf. 12 and 10 and Parcel Post issues and later traded them off for foreign and United States. I realized that there was a precancel game, but still I was not intrigued.

When I moved to Fargo in 1918, I met Frank W. Johnson, the old reliable, who has collected everything philatelic since 1896 or thereabouts. Frequent looks at his precancel collection made me more interested in them, but still I held off, giving away or trading off the choice items that came my way, and throwing away the common ones. I met Fred Allen for the first time when the Victory precancel was at the height of its popularity, and he gave me still more of an idea of how interesting the game is, but not enough to precipitate me into it, for I was then intent upon forming as large as possible a collection of the revalued 3c stamped envelopes.

In 1923 came the Harding stamp, which attracted me, as it did many another, by its unusual color and the circumstances surrounding its sudden appearance. I set out to form a specialized collection of mint plate number blocks of this stamp, beginning with No. 14,852, the first one. Having made a fair start on this, it occurred to me that this collection would be more representative if I included in it a page or so of the stamp precancelled.

A page or two? Lord bless you, before I knew it I was in deep, deeper, and then still deeper, and I've been there ever since! Forgotten were the blocks of six, forgotten was everything but—oh well, you were there yourself! I played the old army game along with the rest of the nuts, and stuck when many became disgusted or discouraged and quit cold. Them was the happy days, and no mistake!

I still have the 2c Hardings, mounted just as they came in, without regard to states or towns, in three large looseleaf notebooks. How many? I don't know, but plenty, and many are plenty good too. I still buy or trade for the very scarce or rare ones I lack. I'm not so keen about the doubles and inverts as I once was, except in the case of the electros, nor do I fall for the nice perf. 10's supplied to so many obliging postal clerks. As to remounting them—well, I don't know, it seems like a heap bigger job every time I think of it. I made a lot of friends and had a fine time while the Harding craze was on, but in the summer of 1924 I cast about for some stamp or stamps on which to concentrate, as the Harding game was dying down, and would soon peter out for lack of ammunition.

At first I decided on three stamps of the 1922 series, the 9c, 11c, and 14c, but after a few months I saw that I was scattering my fire too much, so I disposed of my few 9c and 11c, and ever since then the blue Indian has been my game. I chose this stamp in preference to the other two because of the greater thrill to be derived from pursuit of so odd a value, one so seldom used in the regular course of business. Needless to say, my anticipation has been fully realized. At present I have over 600 varieties of this stamp, cataloguing over $500 by the 1926 catalog.

In 1925 my little daughter wanted to collect stamps because a girl friend of hers was doing so. I started her on the Bureau Prints because of their simplicity, but I'm ashamed to say that I allowed my heavy school work and collecting and correspondence to keep me from sustaining her interest, so I found myself with a good Bureau Print collection on my hands, to which I am adding right along. At present I have some 560 varieties of this very popular stamp.

Within the past few months I have taken up the 15c orange Spécial Delivery, attracted to it by the fact that but few offices have any occasion to precancel it, and by the striking appearance of the black ink overprint on the orange stamp.

I am not sure but I am trying to cover too much territory in thus collecting four different stamps. I would not advise anyone not a general collector to try to cover so large a field if he expects to get to the point where his collection is widely Keeping everlastingly at it is the only recipe for success here everywhere else. Be prepared to pay what you get, dealers won't lay out items for you especially unless you pay for the service. Don't hesitate to accept a poor copy for a space filler, it's a lot better than no stamp at all.

THREE SCARCE WAR STAMPS

By E. C. ECKEL.

A critical reader will note that, in my attempt to give these notes a very concise heading, two evident errors are introduced. For, first of all, only two of the stamps to be discussed (Togo No. 22 and U. S. A. No. 472) are of the War period proper, the third (Saar No. 98) being of considerably later date. And, second, two of the three are not scarce as stamps solely, their present interest arising from particular circumstances of use, in two cases at least. As against these two errors I might plead that I have used the term scarcity in a very mild way indeed; for we are talking of things of very considerable rarity. As will be seen later none of the three is likely to exist in any such quantity as one hundred copies—and there is indeed no proof that at least one of them exists in more than one.

The three subjects are as follows:

- I. United States No. 472 used within France, 1917-1919.
- II. Togo No. 22 used, unsurcharged, under French occupation in 1914.
- III. Saar No. 98 with inverted surcharge.

These cases will be separately described in the order named.

I. United States No. 472 Used Within France.

The ten-cent orange stamp of the 1916-1917 issue has the distinction of being the only American stamp to be used of necessity within France, during the days of the A. E. F. No other American stamp had any validity, as used from one point in France to another point in France; and as a matter of fact there was no occasion for anyone to use any other American stamp in such fashion.

But the ten-cent orange had a very special, and very limited, use in France. Under French rulings, all mail from any member of the A. E. F. could be sent through French mails without payment of postage. Under our own Army regulations, the use of the French posts for personal mail was barred. So that in any case, no use for ordinary postage stamps existed, for all the usual official mail passed without postage. But with regard to special transfers of funds, under certain conditions, the case was different; and the ten-cent orange was applied as a Registry stamp, to secure recognition of registry by the French posts to whom these letters were entrusted.

The circumstances under which the American stamp was so used were limited, so far as I know, to shipments of checks to engineer or quartermaster officers acting as special disbursing officers, located at detached posts, and with a necessity for paying off civilian labor or local bills in cash. It will be seen that with all these qualifying conditions the total use could not have been very great; and even if the stamps were also used, as is possible, though not necessary, to secure a return receipt for a check sent to a French commercial house, it is not at all likely that the numbers so used ran up far into the thousands. And it is highly improbable that one out of ten such covers were saved at the time—so that the existing supply is probably a matter of a few hundreds, and perhaps of far less. It is in any case one of the very scarcest of American usages of stamps; and as such is worthy of record.

The few covers in my collection of this type were all addressed to me, and all came from the Engineer Purchasing Officer at Paris (U.S.P.O. 702) during the period June-October 1918. They carry the familiar circular postmark of the U. S. Military Postal Express Service * Registry *, with an additional oblong block containing the word Registered and a penciled serial number. I hope that someone who was in close touch with the Postal Service of the A. E. F. will throw light on the period during which our stamps were so used and the extent to which that use was carried.

II. German Togo No. 22 Used Unsurcharged During French Occupation.

The second scarce use of a common stamp occurs with respect to the ten-pfennig stamps of German Togo issued on watermarked paper; and relatively scarce even in a surcharged condition, though common enough unused and mint.

A cover in my collection, bought in Paris last year, shows what is perhaps the scarcest Togo in existence, since it carries the 10 pfennig unsurcharged, along with several low-value stamps of the French — surcharged Togos. The cover originated at Atakpame, Togo, on December 26, 1914; and received a Paris postmark on Feb. 2, 1915. It is addressed, by the way, by a French lieutenant to a lady, which probably accounts for any use of stamps at all, since the mail of "Militaires" was at that time carried free. Luckily, however, our lieutenant did use stamps, and did use one of the very few 10pf Togos that remained unsurcharged in French possession.

In order to fix the relative rarity of this stamp so used, we may recall that the entire stock of 10pf stamps captured at Lome was 2,000 copies. Of these the British surcharged 1050 copies; and the French surcharged 908 copies. There remain a possible 42 copies unsurcharged; and there is of course no certainty that as many as that were actually available at any time in 1914. Yvert notes that certain copies of the 10pf, unsurcharged, were cut in half and used as 5pf stamps, so that our available supply, already low, is reduced by just that much. In any case it ranks as the scarcest of the first French Togos.

Part Perforate Errors

Since 1912, collectors of United States stamps have been startled from time to time with the discovery of various varieties that have escaped perforation either vertically or horizontally. A few of these are Nos. 405a, 424c, 489a and b, 525c, 611a and numerous others. Some of them are rare beyond pricing.

The lowest priced of these errors are Nos. 538a and 539b, catalogued at $1.00 each or $2.00 per pair. These are real errors and the supply available is by no means enough to go around. I offer these at prices I believe are still low:—

Fine unused pair No. 539b 1.35

Condition will please you, and blocks of four can be supplied at $2.70 each.

H. A. ROBINETTE (SUCCESSOR)

WASHINGTON, D. C.

III. Saar No. 98 With Inverted Surcharge.

All that need be said about this stamp is that, though uncatalogued, there are two copies known to exist, one in my collection and the other in New York. The surcharge measures exactly, its color is correct, and there is no apparent reason for doubting its authenticity—except the mere fact that, in a country which is perhaps the most highly specialized of all the new countries, this variety has never yet been recognized.

So I am noting the fact that it seems to be genuine, in the hope that some one else can add to the story. If genuine, since there are no inverted cliches in the plate of the 25 mark, we must account for it by assuming either the inversion of two of the surcharge cliches, which seems an unlikely thing to remain unnoted; or the introduction of an entire sheet inverted under the surcharging plate. If this latter explanation be correct, there were of course 98 more copies of the same inversion; and their non-appearance in catalogues or at sales becomes still more remarkable.

I might note now, in the interests of accuracy, that despite the frequent warnings against "counterfeits" of Saar stamps, the truth is that such counterfeits, properly so called, are very rare indeed. What did happen in the Saar was far worse, and impossible of detection now. It is said that crooked Germans, employed in producing the stamps, connived with crooked Frenchmen, employed in checking the output—and for a time produced perfectly genuine stamps for private account, using the same paper, plates—and workmen—but using unofficial time. Johann Schmidt might, for example, be engaged properly in printing Saar stamps up to 6 P.M. But he might also return surreptitiously at 10 P.M., and spend a few night hours printing equally good though unofficial Saar stamps. The matter led to fines and jail sentences finally; but meantime an uncertain number of stamps had been printed—and stolen. Under these circumstances it is obvious that the so-called guarantee of an expert is utterly worthless, for no one can distinguish the stamps that Johann printed up to 6 P.M. from those he turned out during his illegal night shift. Fortunately this practice affected only the earliest of the Saar series; those prepared and issued by the French were not involved in any disreputable affair of that sort.

ODD ITEMS:—

A CORRESPONDENT advises us that Norway is contemplating a Henrik Ibsen Commemorative Issue for March, 1928. It is probable that a large number will be issued so that there will be enough to go around.

THE same correspondent informs us that in memory of Einar Holboll, the next Christmas stamp will bear his picture, and the committee in charge of the stamp has decided to give his widow a pension of 2,000 Kr. a year and in addition 500 Kr. a year to his two children until they are 18 years of age. A children's sanitarium that is being completed in Svendborg, Denmark, will be named for him. Mr. Holboll is known as "the father of the Christmas seal" and at his death, which occurred Feb. 23, was Postmaster of Copenhagen.

A NEW wholesale list No. 70 has been received from S. Grossman Co., Box 120, Madison Sq. Sta., New York City. It consists of 20 pages and any dealer will find it advisable to send for a specimen copy.

WE are indebted to Theodore Kemm, managing owner of the Fifth Avenue Restaurant, 200 5th Ave., New York City, for three new yearly subscriptions received in a single letter. This is a splendid tribute to the WEEKLY and we feel like publicly acknowledging this fine bit of support.

A CLIPPING from the Arizona Republican gives the particulars of the growth in philatelic interest in that state. The Arizona Branch of the A. P. S. at Tucson has been working under the name of the Tucson Stamp Club, but steps are now under way to change the name to the Arizona Stamp Club. Plans are being formulated for the organizing of junior stamp clubs in each city of the state.

WE have received a very elaborate stamp auction catalog from E. Luder-Edelman & Co., Zurich, Switzerland. The sale is to be held six days, beginning May 9, and no fewer than 4,189 lots will be sold. The catalog consists of 150 pages and there is a supplement of 72 pages with superb illustrations of covers, pairs and blocks. It will be a notable sale.

ACCORDING to an announcement made by the Postmaster General there will be an issue of bi-lingual stamps to commemorate the 60th year of Canadian Confederation. No details are as yet available but if the new issue should equal, in an artistic sense, stamps issued in 1897, they will be something to be proud of. Announcement has just been made of a new provisional Air-Mail stamp, the 25c Patricia Red Lake Stamps with suitable wording and the new value of 10c.—G. H. CROUCH.

Have You a Surplus of These?

We always want to buy for ready cash and at the top of the market anything fine in early U. S. stamps or covers. If you have a specialized collection of any stamps or series; a find of old correspondence; an accumulation of 3c '51s, '57s or '61s on or off cover; patriotic covers of the Civil War, either Confederate or Union, or of the Spanish American war; a few thousand Bank Note issues, even the common 2c and 3c stamps if there are enough to bother with.

Send them to us with your best cash price. Particularly if you have items you think are worth more than anyone else will pay, for that is just the kind we want. Our check or the stamps will come to you by return mail if you ask it.

Just now we are anxious to spend some real money for fine items, but don't want the culls at any price.

Many of the above may be familiar to you. There are a great many other types of this interesting cancellation, all of which will be reproduced from time to time. Among this lot are two which seem very unusual to me. For example, the second one is very odd, for the cutting has a double top stroke to the K as shown. No. 6 is a very handsome cancellation, and it is remarkable that such tiny letters could be cut out with a knife, for the actual cancellation is just as clean cut as is this illustration.

In the last group shown, the Whatdoyoucallit lot, the No. 6 calls for several names, among them being Belt Buckle, "Pirate's Teeth," Triple Cross, Rail Fence, and other names. We have not heard from its home—Philadelphia—yet, and it would seem as though someone there should be able to find out what it is actually intended to be, as it was in use a long time.

I suppose that most of the readers of the Forum tear out the front page of their New Scott Catalog and send for the year's Monthly Journals to supplement their catalogs, along with the Local stamp catalog. Well, if there are any who do not have the Journal, and who wish to keep up with the cancellations on early

U. S. it would be well for you to take a look at the series of cancellations which are coming out in the Journal, as these cancels are taken from the odd obliterations found in the Dr. Carroll Chase collection of 3c 1851-57 stamps. There are some rare and handsome effects, the Cantons are especially interesting as a group, and then there is the Fair Haven, Ct. "Used & Done For," the Chicopee Masonic, the Noisy Carriers, plus a neat railroad cancellation, and some of the packet cancels.

Mr. Eugene Klein sent in a most unusual cancellation on a 3c 1861 cover used from New Bern, N. C., the home of some other odd cancellations. This one is dated Feb. 11, 1866. The obliteration hitting the stamp three times, is a very small man with a stick over his shoulder, from which is suspended something (banner or bandanna with his effects), and it is a truly remarkable little cancellation.

A collector once showed me his collection of Boston cancellations. These dated from so far back that I have forgotten the date, they ran back over 150 years. Many of these were beautiful covers, neat and clean, and with very odd postal markings. Similar collections are

SENATOR KING perhaps got his idea that our intervention in HAITI was a brutal outrage from looking at a collection of those weird products perpetrated in 1917-19 during the U. S. regime. (Scott Nos. 245-308). Certainly no American collector should be without a few of these funny things, the like of which will probably never occur again in philatelic history. Why we do not recognize the fact that Haiti since 1915 has been under U. S. Marine Occupation is one of those political mysteries. Anyhow, we took charge in 1915 and still seem to be there, and the stamps are related to U. S. issues as closely as those of Johore or Kelantan are to those of Britain.

25 of these peculiar stamps (Cat. $5.48) for a $2 bill. It will not bring you bad luck as these things have a future.

ALSO, while we are on the subject of Haiti, we'll offer No. 262 (Cat. 2.25), $1; 268 (Cat. $1.50), .75; 269, ditto; 273, ditto; 280, ditto; 291 (Cat. 2.50), $1.

All unused and perfect.

ALSO, a few N-1100 (see previous ads) and 2022 left. When these are sold out we shall make no more packets. Too nerve racking—So order "soon or not at all, we don't much care."

P. S. We have other Haitis, too.

P. S. Again. Anything you don't like, you return and your money is restored. Good-bye till next week. Ad-writing is amusing, when you're in the mood.

PROVIDENCE, R. I.

being formed by many collectors all over the United States, who take much interest in getting covers from their home cities, these being shown with civic pride.

Then too, there are many who collect the cancellations of their home state, and I suppose they show these with static pride. I've been fussing with 3c 1851 covers from my home state, and now have about 250 different towns represented, some few of which are not in existence now—Sippican for example, and New England Village, etc. Lots of fun. Have found covers to Zoar, Mass., but can't get one from that town, and it is needed to complete the list alphabetically.

Met some collectors from California at the International Exhibition, and after a bit of generalities, they asked me if I had any small town cancellations on early covers from their home state, so it looks as though they are after these state cancellations too. This style of collecting is hitting into foreign countries also. In fact some of our collectors are digging up catalogs of the foreign countries.
France has recently had some enthusiast put out a small pamphlet with a list of all the towns in their P. O. Guide from 1849 to 1876. An Italian publication is putting out its list of all cities, towns and hamlets. Great Britain and others have their own lists dating well back into the 19th Century, when their towns were designated by numbers. The collectors are beginning to take up these town cancellations with much enthusiasm, especially the towns which were removed in some way from the mother country.

In the U. S. we know pretty well what comes from Waterbury, Ct., and what comes from Canton, Miss., in the early days, and we are fortunate in not having to remember numbers, for a collector of France will have to memorize his list, so that he will know that his wants start with 5079, and not get these confused with the Algerian numbers. Then he may want the cancellations from Corsica, which makes another set of numbers to carry, and these are just the big numbers, for he has a whole similar lot of small numbers to remember too.

Our good cancellations show for themselves fortunately for us.

A short time ago a little chap asked me where he could get ten or a dozen covers of 1861 issue with town postmarks from Utah? You tell him! Some of this collecting of pmks, is not so easy as it would seem. In time the collector who can show some 50 town postmarks on 1861 covers from Arizona, Colorado, Nevada and say Utah,—well, he will have a collection that will make the "big-time" collector look at them with more than a cursory glance, and he will say, "I never saw that, 'n that, 'n that, etc."

Then there are the alphabetical collectors who must have one cover from a town beginning with each letter of the alphabet. Not so easy, either. When you get most completed you find that "X"

Box 936,

is to be found, speaking philatelically now, not algebraically, and you wonder what town will do it. The beautiful bright blue Xenia, O., solves this problem very finely—when you find that cover.

Some collectors try to find a town postmark for each of their own names, several have been quite successful in this.
Others save every cover dated with their birthday. I have had covers sent me as "Anniversary of the Battle of Bunker

Hill," etc., etc. Some folks save up all of the covers they can get bearing the day Feb. 29th. One collector I know saves every cover that has a postmark which is not circular, this making a very unusual lot to look over.

Then there is the man who advertises for postmarks and cancellations in green.
His collection of these is a treat, too.
Sidelines in collecting are receiving more consideration than ever before. You hear these things talked of every day.

There is plenty of amusement in gath-

SALE OF COOLIDGE STAMPS

By HERMAN A. BOERS.

The stamp collection of the late G.
C. A. Coolidge, who died in Detroit June 1, 1926, was sold at auction at rooms of the American Legion, Detr Saturday evening, April 2. About eight collectors, members of the Detroit Ph-ilatic Society, the Michigan Stamp Cl-and their friends, were in attendance.

The sale of this collection, which co-sisted of many volumes, was conducted by the Detroit Philatelic Society, who recently appointed an appraisal committee, consisting of C. Fred Heyerm as chairman, with Fred Schmalzreidt a J. E. Scott as associates.

There was some lively stepping amo-the bidders in connection with certalots that had a special appeal. Euge-Telfer, R. H. Hendershot, Alan Fernal-
Dr. H. Preston Hoskins, William Swa-Fred Farnham and Dr. Warren L. Ba-cock were large purchasers, the prices their lots ranging from $56 to $400.
This latter figure was on a collection
U. S. stamps from 1914 to 1916 and w bid off by Dr. Babcock.

A U. S. collection, consisting singles, pairs, strips and blocks (the ba-ner volume of the sale, appraised $700) was started at $400 and spirite bidding resulted between William Lingston and R. N. Hendershot. On misunderstanding of what was suppos-to be a final bid at $585 a suggestion continue bidding was acquiesced in ar
the collection was finally bought by M.
Hendershot for $650.

The total amount of the sale wa
$2,640.15. Gen. Coolidge will be remenbered for his activities in the A.P.S. ar kindred societies. He was a veteran o many wars and rose to the rank of Bri-adier-General. Upon his retirement from service in 1903 he went to Detroi where he organized the Detroit Philate-Society. He died June 1, 1926, at th age of eighty-two.

METROPOLITAN STAMP CO., 1482 Broadway, N. Y. CITY

PLATE NUMBERS, HINGES, ETC.

By SEVARD.

Last week we went to Chicago and bought some tickets for the World's Fair Columbian Exposition, 1893. And we were fortunate to get the ticket showing Handel for Music, a ticket as scarce as a blue speeding ticket in Detroit. To those making up a nice 1893 collection, we suggest a collection of these entrance gate tickets, beautifully engraved by the American Bank Note Co., showing engravings of Columbus, Lincoln, Washington, Franklin, Handel, and Lo, the American Indian. Each ticket has a distinctive color. Then there is the usual admission ticket and the children's half catalogue ticket.

When we got to Philadelphia, in spite of the fact that we bought Sesqui stamps, we could not buy any entrance tickets to the Exposition. One policeman almost socked me in the jaw for mentioning the word Sesqui out loud.

Then we got to Brooklyn, the place where they elect New York City's mayor, and found a bunch of the old Brooklyn Circuit R.P.O. when the street cars carried mail down Fulton Street to the Bridge. Those old street car R.P.O.'s, what has become of them? Those in Pittsburg, and the Cleveland Circuits and the old Boston "dinkies", and then that one in Chicago which went under the river because it couldn't go over it, and then the Baltimore one, whither and whence? Who cares?

The Air Mail cachets showing the new rate on February first surely are historically interesting, and quite attractive in our philatelic chronos. Iowa City, Des Moines, Omaha and Salt Lake City advertised the new rate for us collectors nicely, and I hope many received these covers.

Early plate numbers are darn scarce. Sometimes it is disheartening trying to dispose of them, but there are many collectors who sit back and wait for them to come along, merely because it is too great a task to list all they want to buy. Perhaps the only way to complete the current 2c plate numbers is to find a distant friend who will trade, or take up your difficulties with the organized plate number collectors. And don't throw away any of those star plate numbers, especially that hand drawn star and also that little top star next to a guide line perforation. Think this over at the ball park this afternoon.

Somebody sent us 3,000 tasteless hinges which all figures out as a new philatelic raspberry? Say it with hinges—what's the riddle? Anyway, our specialized collection of the 2c perf 11 now has 1,600 different cancels, all identifiable as to use. Our 2c perf 10 hasn't near as many—and the 2c Liberty Bell, much less. Anyway, we used the hinges to good advantage with a great deal of pleasure.

King George was defeated in the Chicago elections last week, but then, looking at it from a different angle, we're glad because he now will have time for his stamps.

The centennial of the first sale of matches was held last month, which all reminds us of the stamp taxes for matches, the match and medicine stamps, and the match box labels which quite a few collected. Those old matches, you remember, with which you lit the coal oil lantern? The ones they called "timber" at West Point, or the ones the Victorian sheiks casually referred to in "Hand me a log, will yah?" And how long it took you to learn to skin your pants so's you could strike them the first shot? Hmmm—you never dreamed that you were destroying a good stamp those days.

And then there were those royalty stamps, which different firms used to account for the use of their patents. It was difficult, wasn't it, to tell what was good and what was bad, in those days when spool labels and Vote for McKinley pasters came your way. Don't throw away your old collection just because everybody doesn't collect the same thing.

VIRGIN ISLANDS

If you have not got these three stamps you had better get them before the boost comes.

EDITORIAL

It is reported that there is on file at Washington requests for special or commemorative stamps from different individuals or communities that have brought to bear various influences on the attainment of their objectives. The New York Times, in speaking of the forthcoming Bennington stamp in August, says that different parts of the country have made their wishes known in this regard. It is idle to repeat here the variety of opinions on the desirability of special stamps and it is admitted that it seems churlish to object to such issues in their modest denominations, but there is a principle involved that cannot be ignored. In viewing any present condition it is natural to give heed to the possibilities of the future. Our special Washington correspondent, who has given such information as to impending commemoratives that he could divulge with propriety, has hinted that "there are more to follow" and judging by his previous forecasts, his intimations are to be relied upon. We do not pretend to speak for the department at Washington by a long shot, but in days past it is known that the authorities did not always relish the extra work entailed on them by the special issues. As it is granted that the reason for the commemoratives is dissociated from any financial consideration, it follows that the only money aspect that enters into the transaction is the sum derived from the sale of the stamps to collectors; and the amount cannot be given great weight. It is our guess that the post office department is not partial to commemoratives on the score of practical advantage and that it is only the desire to be agreeable that prompts its co-operation, when once the order is given to steam ahead.

Doubtlessly, the demand for the special stamps does not originate in the department.

Under date of April 5th, 1927, the Hon. W. Irving Glover, second assistant postmaster general, writes as follows: "The contract has been awarded for the Government-operated Transcontinental Air Mail route, New York to Chicago, to the National Air Transport Company of Chicago at a bid of $1.24 per pound. Service on this route will be inaugurated by the contractor on July 1st, as well as on the western end of the Government-operated Transcontinental Air Mail route, Chicago to San Francisco, on which the successful bidder was the Boeing Airplane Company of Seattle. There will be a special cancellation on the first-day Air Mail covers incident to the inauguration of privately-operated Air Mail service on the routes between New York City and San Francisco. Effective on April 21st, contract air mail service will also be established over route C. A. M., No. 11, from Cleveland, Ohio, by Youngstown, Ohio, to McKeesport and Pittsburgh, Pa., and return, a distance of 123 miles each way."

The Bennington stamp is to celebrate the victory of the Americans over the British on August 16, 1777.

"near Santcroick Mills, on the Walloon Creek, four miles from Bennington." General Stark went forth from Bennington to where Baum was entrenched and attacked him "with a firm resolve 'to conquer or make Molly Stark a widow.' The savages, British and Canadians, soon fled into the woods, while the Germans fought vigorously until their ammunition was expended, when they made use of their swords. They were overwhelmed and made prisoners with their wounded commander. Breyman now arrived, at four o'clock, and renewed the fight, which was continued until dusk, when the enemy retreated with great precipitation, and left baggage, muskets, artillery, and sabers in the power of the conqueror. The royalists lost in these two battles, about 200 killed and 500 prisoners. The loss of the Americans was inconsiderable. Stark received the thanks of Congress and was made a brigadier-general. This was the first check the enemy received in this campaign and it was a grievous one, as it placed them in a very critical situation, while the American army was daily increasing in strength and spirits." It is not necessary to say that the engagement was a critical one and was far-reaching in its consequences.

paper is not needed." He read recent remarks in this newspaper on the subject of "a contemplated daily," as it puts it, but in justice to the correspondent who asked of the chances of a daily for success, it is to be said that the inquirer was merely "thinking about the ambitious project. The point is made that several of the newspapers of the country devote space regularly to philatelic news and, doubtlessly, the writer has the New York Times particularly in mind. The Times covers philately in New York in an admirable manner and is early in the field with an account of the philatelic transactions of the metropolis; and the collector who reads it keeps informed of the latest stamp developments. Another reader says that the idea of a daily stamp paper is a credit to the enthusiasm of the one who entertains it but not to his sound judgment.

The date of the convention of the American Philatelic Society at St. Louis has been named as the third week in August and it is none too soon to direct attention to the annual event. It is only just to say that the convention last year at New York, in October, did not have the undivided attention of some of those who customarily followed the sessions with attention because of their attendance at the Exhibition. This year interest will be concentrated on the transactions of the society and steps taken to strengthen its influence, it is predicted. The progress of the great national organization during the fiscal year has been substantial and the administration deserves credit for working with effect. There is no doubt but that President Wilhelm has been an active executive and it is comforting to know that he does not relax his energy as the duties of his office, ordinarily, become an old story to him. While he has served two years, dating to the time of the convention at St. Louis, there has been some talk of which we have become the program of the Joint Meeting of the Wisconsin Academy of Sciences,

by F. M. K. Foster. This lecture by Prof. Foster was illustrated and was thirty minutes' length, and we learn that the lecturer, who is Associate Pro-self. It is something to know that Philately can hold its own in the most

In the special issue of the WEEKLY,

COL. JOHN E. STEARNS
By A. W. BLOSS.
Another serious loss to Philately occurred March 23, when Col. John E. Stearns, veteran collector of Los Angeles, passed from our world.

He was truly a collector of the old school, for he commenced his first collection in Chicago, during the Civil War. While he disposed of his first collection, and was not active for many years, he took up the hobby again about thirty years ago, and followed it up to a few days prior to his death, when he became ill.

"The Colonel," as he was affectionately known among his host of friends in stamp circles in Los Angeles and elsewhere, was an ardent collector and student. He devoted special attention to early U. S., of which he amassed a splendid collection.

Going back to his boyhood, he delighted his friends with tales of the 5 and 10 cent 1847's which he cut from letters in his father's office. In those days, these choice stamps were common, and he had them by the thousand. While he doubtless ruined many covers, he feels that he saved many of the stamps for Philately, since the files were later destroyed in the Chicago fire.

When he resumed collecting, he took up all countries, but paid special attention to U. S. cancellations, and contributed much valuable information to the study of these stamps. His big foreign collection, one of the finest in the West, is complete in many sections, such as the Edwardian and Georgian British Colonies, etc.

Big in heart as in body, the Colonel was loved by all who knew him. He was a loyal A. P. S. member. He was always glad to help in any stamp movement; to assist a boy in starting; to help a student, and to show his stamps to a fellow collector. He paid little attention to the financial side of the hobby, loving his stamps for themselves, studying them, and divulging the result of his labors.

His passing comes as a shock to his many friends, and a keen personal loss to the writer, who spent many happy hours in looking at his treasures and listening to his tales. Truly he was a gentleman, and a friend.

Colonel Stearns is survived by his wife and four daughters, to whom the sympathy of his friends is extended.

THE HINGE
By KARL A. PEMBER.
"Finest stamp hinges—perfectly taste-

So's Your Roll, Man!
Give, Oh! Give to me a hinge
That will not to my thumb impinge—
Quite feelable.
And may its taste not make me cringe
With flavoring of fish-glue tinge
Full mealable.
Let me on strange domain infringe
And there experience a twinge

Origin of Countries' Names
(Insert in Your Album.)

GIBRALTAR.—To ancient geographers this place was Calpe, Alybe. Tariq, an Arab, with a host of Arab and Berber followers, invaded and conquered the country in 711 A. D. The rock was then called Jebel Tariq = "Mount Tariq," after the conqueror Tarig-ben-Zaid, which name has corrupted into the present form.

GILBERT ISLANDS.—These islands, sixteen in number, coral reefs or atolls, were discovered first by John Byron, in 1765. To one of them he gave his name. The group was later named after Captain Gilbert, who visited them in 1788.

GRENADA was discovered in 1498 by Columbus and named by him Concepcion = Assumption. The present name, from Spanish granada = "a pomegranate," was probably given by the Spaniards with reference to the splendid Moorish city of Granada, which had shortly before been subjugated by their great captain Gonsalvo de Cordova.

GUIANA (British).—The derivation of this word is obscure and debated. It may be (1) an Indian word signifying "wild coast," or (2) native waimi-guamia = "river, fountain."

HEBRIDES, NEW.—So called by Captain Cook in 1774, doubtless with reference to the Hebrides off the West Coast of Scotland.

HEJAZ (Hijaz) means "separating." It is the name of the district from Medina in the North to Taif in the South, which separates the inland province of the Nejd from the coast district.—Stamp Collecting.

A special set of stamps issued in Newfoundland in 1897 with the dual object of commemorating the 400th anniversary of the discovery of the island by Cabot, and the Diamond Jubilee of Queen Victoria.

Return Letter Stamps

Gibbons lists certain labels under this heading which were used in Norway round about the period 1872. That they were stamps in the strict sense of the word seems improbable. They would appear to be labels, officially used certainly, of about the same interest as the "officially sealed" stickers used in many countries on packages accidentally broken open in the post. These particular labels are frequently met with in old collections so it's perhaps as well to describe them. They are of a particularly unpretentious appearance and consist of a frame lettered as follows:—"Som Ubesorget (or Uindlost) aabnet af Post-Departementet." The first variety, lettered "ubesorget" was used on letters which had to be returned to the senders as they could not be delivered for some reason or other. The other kind, lettered "uindlost," were used on letters which had not been called for and were returned to the senders after a certain interval. As collectible varieties the interest of these labels to the general collector is nil.

Private Stamps

Spain and Portugal are the only countries contributing to this group of special labels. In the case of Portugal Scott only lists a stamp for the Red Cross Society. This is inscribed "Sociedade Portuguesa da Cruz Vermelha—Porte Franco." In addition to this, Gibbons lists the private stamps issued for Civilian Rifle Clubs. These are inscribed "Uniao dos Atiradores Civis" and a different color combination was used each year from 1899 to 1910. In 1910 a special stamp was issued for the use of the Geographical Society of Lisbon and in 1911 a new edition of this appeared with the Royal crown omitted. In 1904 a special private stamp was issued for the National Aid Society for Consumptives, this being inscribed "Assistencia Nacional Aos Tuberculosos." All these varieties, while interesting, can very well be left to the specialist.

Junior Dictionary

Barwani.—A native Indian state in central India, near Indore. It has an area of 1362 square miles and its capital is also Barwani. Stamps were first issued in 1921 and they bore the portrait of the ruler, Rana Sir Ranjit Singh Ji.

Batum.—A Russian seaport on the eastern end of the Black Sea, which has had a checkered career. As a consequence of the World War it was occupied at two different times by an Indo-British army. On the second evacuation it was given over to the Georgian Republic. Stamps were issued in 1919. Subsequently under British military control, these stamps were surcharged "British Occupation." They became obsolete with the withdrawal of the British military detachment in February, 1920.

B. C.—These letters on stamps of the Indian native state of Charkhari are an abbreviation of "Bundelkhand Central," a great region of central India made of some thirty of the native states and one of which is Charkhari.

Beecham's Pills.—On the reverse side of New Zealand stamps of 1892, may be found advertisements of various commodities, such as Beecham's Pills, Fry's Cocoa, Sunlight Soap, etc. These resulted from an arrangement made by the New Zealand P. O. Department with an advertising firm in Wellington for the right to use the reverse side of postage stamps and telegraph forms. For this privilege the sum of £800 per year was paid. Some twenty millions of stamps were thus printed, but the experiment was short-lived. The contract for one year was not renewed.

Besa.—Stamps of Albania with this surcharge were so overprinted that they might be regarded as genuine to distinguish them from previous spurious issues. Also a Benadir currency value equal to ½c U. S.

Blagoveschensk.—A town in Eastern Siberia where stamps were issued in 1921.

B. L. P. (Busta Lettera Postale).—These letters on stamps of Italy stand for "Postal Letter Envelope." The stamps are supplied at a discount from face value to charitable organizations that are aiding the war wounded, and are used exclusively on special envelopes furnished by these organizations and containing advertising matter.

Bloater.—A word of reproach for a stamp collector who covets and takes possession of every stamp that he can lay his hands on. Shades, papers and perforations are eagerly absorbed and padlocked for safe keeping.

B. N. F. Castellorizo.—This surcharge on French Levant stamps means "Base Navale Francaise" and "Castellorizo" the island where the stamps were used.

Junior Glossary

A. & T.—These letters, overprinted on French colonial stamps of the "Com merce" type show that such stamps were intended for use in the settlements of Annam and Tonquin.

Abbreviations.—Many well-known philatelic terms are more often than not written or printed in an abbreviated form. The ones most usually met with are:—

Imp. or Imperf. for Imperforate.
Mm. for Millimetre.
Perf. or Pf. for Perforated.
Roul. for Rouletted.
Wmk. for Watermark.
Acores.—The Portuguese form for "Azores."

Adhesive.—A term applied to ordinary postage stamps which are intended to be stuck on postal packets, in contradistinction to stamps printed upon envelopes, postcards, newspaper wrappers, etc.

Albino.—An entirely colorless impression of a stamp produced by the process of embossing.

Alexandrie (Alexandria).—Shown on stamps for the French Consular Office established at that port.

ANATO IKH POMY IA.—Greek characters for "Eastern Roumelia."

B.—This letter overprinted on various Straits Settlements stamps shows they were intended for use in Bangkok.

Bayern.—The German form for "Bavaria."

B. C. A.—These letters overprinted on certain stamps of the British South Africa Company (Rhodesia) indicate that they were for use in British Central Africa.

Re-Cut Dies

Re-cut is sometimes used to denote re-engraving, but its use in this connection is not strictly correct. It would, perhaps, be better to refer to re-cutting as the actual work involved in altering a plate or die and re-engraving to denote the finished article.

FIVE YEAR HONOR CLUB

Paul Ziegler, Elgin, Ill.
Harry Kaufman, Lynn, Mass.
Mrs. R. L. Banks, Albany, N. Y.
Thomas I. Brown, Red Bank, N. J.

Here is a goodly list this week of applications for membership in our Honor Club. The number is ever increasing and we shall soon pass the eight hundred mark. A letter received from one of the four is typical of many that we receive, and we are taking the liberty of printing Mr. Brown's tribute. He writes us as follows:—
My subscription is about to expire.
Instead of joining the yearly army
I have advanced me into the Five Year Honor Club for which I enclose a crisp Dollar Note.
The weekly visit of the NEWS is a most welcome one. There is so much interesting matter that one never fully tests the contents of one copy before the more recent number arrives."

THE MANAGING EDITOR.

TRINIDAD

We have much pleasure in announcing that we have just purchased the magnificent collection of the stamps of Trinidad, formed by S. A. Brown, Esq., F.R.P.S.L.

This is a first-class specialised collection, in which great attention has been paid to condition, the great majority of the stamps being exceptional in this respect.

All the Britannia issues are lavishly represented and many scarce blocks, strips and pairs are included. The range of shades is magnificent.

The later issues are also fully shown.

The Catalogue value of this collection is over $10,000.

Approvals can be sent, or want lists filled.

Other special collections recently bought include NEW ZEA-LAND, IRISH FREE STATE, S. W. AFRICA, EGYPT, and RHODESIA.

COLLECTORS CLUB BOURSE

By O. G. REICHEL.

The first Collectors Club Bourse was held Wednesday eve March 23 at the Club rooms at 51 West 48 St., N. Y.
City. The event was nobly supported by the members, and the attendance, about fifty, was the largest for some time past;
in fact, the capacity of the room was taxed to such an extent that for the succeeding meetings another room will be provided for the overflow. Considerably over $1,000 was exchanged for stamps.

The Bourse Committee, consisting of Major Camp, and Messrs. Bartels, Kon-wiser, Reichelt and Bach, arrived early and set about arranging for a number of tables to accommodate the dealers and collectors, assigning the places as the members arrived. The clock had not yet struck eight when our worthy president, Mr. Lindquist, called to the Committee's secretary to make note of the first sale.

Among the visitors were Dr. Peliken, Mr. Robinette of Washington (successor to Mr. H. F. Colman, the well-known Washington dealer), Mr. Betrix of East Orange, Mr. Tagle, Mr. Helwig and others.

No small credit is due the dealers who made it a duty to come, bringing along some items to make things interesting;
among these may be mentioned J. Murray Bartels, Sydney F. Barrett and Eugene N. Costales of the Economist
Stamp Company, Hazen Hyde of Percy
G. Doane's Office, the Burger Brothers,
Elliott Perry (himself), H. C. Myer, A.
Krassa, Chas. J. Phillips, Geo. B. Sloane, Edward Buser, Albert H. Goetz, Marshall H. Hancock, Hugh M. Clark of the Scott Stamp and Coin Company; while among the others of the Club were noted present: A. E. Pade, C. M. Ams, Frank Crane, J. S. Rich, George Brown, Chas.

Curie, Theo. E. Steinway, O. G. Reichelt, Harry M. Konwiser, W. B. Rufe, G. W.
A. Camp, H. L. Lindquist, A. W. Vogt, P. F. Bruner, R. C. Bach, Prof. E. Hausmann, Carl Reinschild and F. F. Greeley.

In closing it is interesting to observe that there was a great variety of stamps on hand—those for the seeker after rarities, stamps for the general collector, and stamps for the collector looking for the more moderate-priced stamps—in a word, stamps for everybody.

WHAT PHILATELY TEACHES

By E. M. APPLEBY.

On May 6, 1840, when the first postage stamp was sent out by London's Post Office, how little did Sir Rowland Hill, the great originator of the penny postage stamp—with the portrait of a woman on it, the good Queen Victoria—imagine, that, so soon stamps would be used all over the world.

Edward Henry Carbould, the son of the artist of the Penny Black, made a water color painting for the Duchess of Kent, to present to her only child, on the event of her coronation in 1837, from which so many beautiful stamps were engraved for the British Empire.

Today we are familiar with all the reigning powers and republics of the world, from our wonderfully engraved stamps.

Newfoundland has an intensely interesting story of her country, people and animals, and of the Great War, in which her noble sons fought so bravely.

Canada, too, has a Royal picture gallery, so well portrayed, that for all time her stamps will be a record of her great rulers.

The Sower Lady, adorning the French stamps, so famous for gracefulness, was the last work of Louis Oscar Roty, who died in 1911.

Mail carried by pigeons, from Auckland, New Zealand, to Great Barrier Island, was called "Pigeon Post," a three cornered stamp with a pigeon in flight was used on this route, often too stormy for regular vessels to land.

The first pictured stamps were our U.
S. Columbian issue of 1893, rapidly introduced into other countries, teaching us geography, history, art, industries and all sorts of improving charms, combined with rest and pleasure.

Therefore, our interest and admiration for great men, women, and other countries, grows daily in our stamp collecting.

UNITED STATES

Postage and Revenue

While I hold one of the finest, if not the best, stocks of the postage stamps of the United States in the hands of any professional and solicit want lists from the serious collector, nevertheless, right at the present time I much prefer to buy rather than to sell. While I want anything worth while and superb in the postal and revenue issues of the United States, I more especially desire:—

- (1). Mint singles and mint blocks, 1847 to 1880.
- (2). Mint blocks, 1881 to 1900.
- (3). Bureau errors, including part perforates, inverts, etc.
- (4). Fine early covers.
- (5). Revenues—inverted centers.

The highest cash prices will be paid for such properties and these items are desired whether in small lots or in substantial collections. I do not ask for properties upon consignment but am pleased to purchase for prompt cash.

If you are thinking of selling your collection or duplicates, please communicate with me.

Washington Notes

On my return from a short vacation in Florida, I find that a number of new things in a philatelic way have taken place during my absence.

On March 24th there was placed on sale at the Philatelic Stamp Agency in Washington the new 5c blue Roosevelt and 7c black McKinley with the new compound perforation 11x10 1/2, the product of the rotary press. These two varieties were issued previous to this date in a precancelled condition but this was the first sale of these stamps unused. To date I have seen the 1 1/2c, 2c, 3c, 5c, 7c and 10c perforated 11x10 1/2, although the first denomination is known to date in precancelled condition only.

Governor Alfred E. Smith of New York has sent to the Postmaster General a personal letter endorsing the request of the American Legion and the Rome and Utica Council of the Boy Scouts of America, for a special issue of a 2c stamp to commemorate the first display of the Stars and Stripes in the face of the enemy. This event we are told occurred on August 3, 1775, at the defense of Fort Stanwix, whose site is now included in the city of Rome, N. Y. The 150th birthday is to be celebrated on Flag Day, June 14th.

Attached to the Governor's letter were copies of correspondence which had passed between the Executive Chamber and the White House on the subject, as well as documentary evidence to authenticate the assertion that the battle of Fort Stanwix was the first occasion on which the flag bearing thirteen stars was unfurled before the enemy.

The Governor also attached a copy of the concurrent resolution adopted by the New York Legislature calling upon the Postmaster General for a hundred million issue of commemorative stamps. Numerous historical societies in the vicinity have joined in the request. At this writing the Postmaster General has not definitely decided as to what is to be done but there is every likelihood that a special stamp will appear for the occasion. It is believed that it will be issued early in August, around the same time as the 2c Battle of Bennington variety appears.

We recently mentioned that the Chamber of Commerce at White Plains, N. Y., had requested an additional supply of the White Plains variety and they were in hopes that there would be a reprint of sufficient quantity to take care of their request. The Department was able to send them a considerable number of stamps, which they had on hand and under the circumstances, there is no likelihood of a further quantity being printed. In the case of the small sheets for the International Philatelic Exhibition, I am advised that a total of 107,400 were distributed from the Bureau.

Future Delivery and Stock Transfer Stamps

I am in receipt of a communication dated April 7th and signed by R. M. Estes relative to the possession by stamp collectors of revenue stamps surcharged "Future Delivery" and "Stock Transfer."

In his letter he states—

Concerning Decision 3976, "This Treasury Decision does not relate to cancelled stock transfer and future delivery stamps in the possession of stamp collectors where such stamps have served the legal purpose for which they were originally intended and the documents to which they were attached are no longer in existence or are to be destroyed."

The Treasury Decision referred to applies only to the distribution and sale of unused stock transfer and future delivery stamps.

Air Mail Notes

First day covers from Ponca City, Okla., on the Chicago-Dallas contract air mail route have arrived cancelled "Apr. 4 10:30 A. M." The Ponca City office precancelled most of the stamps used on this mail and this cancellation appears in both red and black. Some few stamps bear the oval cancellation, "Ponca City, Okla." To each cover was applied the usual first day cartwheel found on contract mail and some of these are in green and some in violet.

Those from the Chicago office addressed to Ponca City, bore the black Chicago air mail cancellation on the front of the cover and were backstamped with the Ponca City contract mail postmark.

Under date of March 29th, the Postmaster General announced that he had selected Spartanburg, S. C., as the intermediate city between Greensboro, N. C., and Augusta, Ga., for the regular air mail stops on the new air mail route between New York and Chicago.

INDEPENDENT STAMP CO.
 1716 South 27th St., Omaha, Neb.

Great pressure was brought to bear by citizens and business organizations of Greenville, S. C., and Charlotte, N. C. as well as other cities along the line of the proposed route to have their home town designated as the air mail stop. Delegations came to Washington to present the claims of the various cities and considerable photographic and manuscript material was filed at the Post Office in support of these claims.

The Postmaster General pointed out that Spartanburg was finally chosen because it was practically midway between the other two stops and because of its excellent railway connections with the surrounding territory. We are told that a close check-up revealed that a greater number of potential mail users will be brought within range of the air mail service, through connecting railway line with the stop located at Spartanburg than at any of the other cities.

The papers here of late have contained numerous notices relative to the airplane flight from New York to Paris. Definite arrangements have not as yet been made but no doubt mail will be carried, whether officially or privately, cannot say. In either case it will be of great interest to the air mail collector.

Mr. Percival K. Stone, has just sent me a clipping from the New York World upon the subject.

I wish to thank Rev. T. O. Perri also Messrs. Herman W. Boers and Thomas P. Martin for first day covers Philippines.

I have recently been shown the current issue 10 peso green perforated 11, on unwatermarked paper. The copy inspected is a used one, which was recently sent from the Islands, and I am not in a position at this time to state when the variety first made its appearance. The balance of the series has been known for some time.

We recently furnished a detailed list of the number of commemorative Legislative stamps ordered by the Philippine Government from the printers. Deliveries have been completed and the run are slightly in excess of the original numbers due to the fact, of course, that stamps in excess of the orders are always made, so that any waste can be properly taken care of. The quantities certified by the Acting Director of Posts as having been issued are as follows:

| Denomination. | Quantity. |
|-------------------------|-----------|
| 2 centavos, | 502,550 |
| 4 " | 304,400 |
| 16 " | 203,750 |
| 18 " | 103,950 |
| 20 " | 103,450 |
| 24 " | 103,350 |
| 1 peso, | 11,050 |
| (SURCHARGED "OFFICIAL") | |
| Denomination. | Quantity. |
| 2 centavos, | 90,500 |
| 4 " | 90,450 |
| 18 " | 70,000 |
| 20 " | 70,250 |

I wish to thank Messrs. Walter Bruggemann and Newton C. Comfort for this information. Mr. Comfort writes that not only the supply of the 1 peso has been exhausted but the supply of the centavos as well. He further states that the quantities of the remaining denominations are small.

BELGIAN CONGO.—New Series. According to M. Victor Gisquiere in La Revue Postal, the Belgian Government has decided to replace the present series with a set depicting various celebrated Belgian colonists. It is suggested that Leopold II, Thys, Coquilhat, Stanley, Livingstone, Janssens, and Commandant Lemaire will probably be amongst those illustrated.—Philatelic Magazine.

BULGARIA.—Whitfield King & Co. advises that they have frequently received a 10s in red and grey green similar in design to the A9 type but with a centre ground of green.

CHILE.—The Valparaiso Correspondent of the Daily Mail cabled on the 25th ultimo as follows: "For the air-mail service between Valparaiso and Santiago, which is about to be inaugurated, the Government has authorised the issue of special stamps. Meanwhile a 10 cents stamp which was prepared for the Maipu Centenary but not put into circulation will be used and surcharged."—Philatelic Magazine.

CUBA.—Whitfield King & Co. inform us that the 10c brown, perf., watermarked star has been placed on sale.

EGYPT.—Mr. R. Roberts has shown us a new set of postage due stamps placed on sale on the 18th of last March, watermarked multiple Crown and crescent, perf. 13 1/2. The values and shades are 2m grey, 4m green, 5m brown, 8m purple brown, 10m deep red and 30m violet. The latter value is of large format 22mm x 27mm.

LIBERIA.—Whitfield King & Co. have shown us the 1c green and black, 1918 issue, with the surcharge "two Cents" in red. They also add that in their consignment of these stamps they found one sheet of 50 with double surcharge.

LITHUANIA.—Whitfield King & Co. report that the Basanovitch Mourning stamps, 15c claret, 25c blue, 50c green and 60c violet have been received. Each stamp is surrounded by a black border.

NEW YORK, N. Y.

PERSIA.—The Economist Stamp Co. send for chronicle a copy of the 12ch red orange in the new design.

Air Stamps. Champion's Bulletin chronicles 1, 2, 6, 9, 10, 13c, 1, 2, 4k stamps of 1909, overprinted with an aeroplane, Poste AERIENNE, and an inscription in Persian.—Philatelic Magazine.

POLAND.—Whitfield King & Co. submit for chronicle a new 20 groszy stamp in a claret shade bearing the likeness of Pilsudski.

SAAR.—Another value of the new pictorial set has been received from Whitfield King & Co. This time it is the 50c brown lilac, with a view of Tholey Abbey and the Schaumberg.

SAN MARINO.—Champion's Bulletin chronicles the following provisionals, authorised by a Decree of March 4th: 1.25 on 1 lire, orange and black (40,000); 2.50 on 2 lire, lilac and black (25,000); 5l on 2 lire, lilac and black (15,000).—Philatelic Magazine.

UNION OF SOUTH AFRICA.—During the first week of March the 2d, 3d, 1s, 2s 6d, and 5s pictorial stamps were brought into use. They are printed throughout from engraved plates, the 2d, 3d and 1s being in sheets of 120 (two panes of sixty, side by side), and the 2s 6d and 5s in sheets of sixty.

All the above are printed in English and Afrikaans alternately and are watermarked multiple Springbok's head. Save for the inscription "Bradbury, Wilkinson & Co., Ltd., Engravers, New Malden, Surrey, England," in the bottom margin, the margins are devoid of markings of any kind.

Of the same shape as the 1s, 2s and 5s. Malta pictorials, the newcomers are bicoloured and quite handsome in appearance.

2d, Union Buildings, Pretoria; frame brownish-mauve; centre grey.

3d, Groote Schuur (official residence of the Prime Minister, bequeathed to the S. A. nation by the late Cecil J. Rhodes); frame scarlet; centre black with horizon in scarlet.

1s, Arms of Natal (pair of guns in front of the Drakensbergen); frame bright blue; centre light brown.

2s 6d, ox-wagon inspanned; frame brown; centre green.

5s, ox-wagon outspanned; frame green; centre black.

All worded SOUTH AFRICA-POSTAGE or SUIDAFRIKA-POSSEEL and value, which is invariably in figures only.

Supplies of the 10s value are expected in Pretoria any day, and it is understood that this denomination will have, within a brown border, a picture, in light blue, of Table Bay (Cape Town).

Mr. Robertson, Editor of the South African Philatelist, to whom we are indebted for these details, is semi-officially informed that the plates used to print these new stamps are now in Pretoria. This means that further printings will be made by the Government printer.

The pictorial 1/2d and 6d stamps, printed in Pretoria, are now on issue, and are very similar in appearance to the Waterlow productions. The printing of the 1/2d is heavier and that of the 6d lighter than the Home product.

Relative Rarity and Catalog Prices

The prices quoted in the leading catalogues of the world are of the greatest interest to all stamp collectors, as it is by these, to a more or less extent, that they, practically, do all their buying and selling.

I have been keenly interested in this subject for over thirty years as, since 1890, I had sole charge of the catalogues of Stanley Gibbons, Ltd., as far as the prices of the 19th Century issues were concerned.

Pricing a new edition of a catalogue of the world's stamps is by no means "child's play." Speaking for myself alone, I can only say that this work used to take up about four months of my time every year a new edition of our catalogue appeared.

New prices were generally based chiefly on supply and demand. When it was found, from an examination of the stockbooks, that certain stamps were selling freely, these were advanced in price, and when on the other hand, it was noticed that stamps were not in demand, then these were reduced in price in order to stimulate sales.

To a very small degree the prices at auction were noted, because at the auctions many stamps came up in the course of the year that were not in our stockbooks. Auction prices as a rule, however, were not much used, as from long experience we know how fictitious such prices were, as so many factors had to be taken into consideration.

In common stamps prices were fixed almost entirely on a scale based on wholesale cost prices. For instance, stamps costing 3s6d per hundred or less, would be priced at one penny each. Stamps costing from 4sh to 8sh per hundred would be priced two pence each, and so on.

Then again in fixing our prices for the coming year we had to take into consideration questions of fashion and likely demand. To make this point clear I note a few examples. About 1890 the London Philatelic Society were working on their West Indies book and all these were in great demand. In 1900-1905, the books on the African Colonies were in preparation and this caused a great demand for all these Colonies, particularly Transvaal. In 1905-07 great attention was paid to India and again in 1909-11 New South Wales was much collected while the books on these countries were in preparation.

Up to 1910 the stamps of South America were much neglected, except by a very few men with unusual good vision, like my friend, Mr. T. W. Hall, who built up a great collection when the stamps were almost a drug on the market. After my visit to South America, which resulted in the rewriting of catalogue lists and prices of great countries, like Argentina, Uruguay, Buenos Aires,

Chile, Paraguay, etc., this group became in great demand, and this popularity has continued to the present day.

Twenty years ago the stamps of the United States were in little demand, then Mr. J. N. Luff, in 1902, published his great work and collectors began to wake up, and here again men with vision of the future, like the Hon. Ernest R. Ackerman, began to form great collections.

The great boom in the general issues of the United States only started when men like Messrs. Stevenson, Ashbrook, Jacobs and finally Dr. Carroll Chase, began to publish their researches on the possibilities of plating many of the early issues.

There is another point that the men who try and fix catalogue prices have to take into consideration and that is the demand for stamps and their saleability in the country of origin.

For instance, before the Great War, 1914-18, Germany, Italy, France, etc., were all buyers of their own stamps and a great market existed in these especially in England and the United States, where a big business was done in exporting to various European countries.

All these things have to be studied by the men who attempt to price the few great stamp catalogues of the world. During the Great War it seems to me that a rather new and more scientific method began to be adopted. Messrs. Stanley Gibbons, Ltd., and Mr. David Field, were, I believe, among the first to publish in their special War Catalogues lists of the number of stamps issued, as far as could be obtained, and based their prices to a great extent on these figures.

In the following article I want to be distinctly understood that I am not criticising any catalogues or the prices in any catalogue, in any unfriendly spirit, but I do wish to put certain facts before my fellow Philatelists in America and to see if I can help the catalogue makers, in a small way, to form what I may call a more scientific basis for their prices.

During the last twenty years, through the researches of such men as E. D. Bacon, L. L. R. Hausburg, R. B. Yardley, M. P. Castle, Charles Lathrop Pack, John N. Luff, Bassett Hull and many others, we have now available, in many of the early issues of postage stamps, the actual numbers printed and often the numbers really used.

A careful study of these numbers should enable us to form a far more reliable guide to real rarity than any catalogue can give us. After all the Gibbons catalogue price is usually only the personal opinion of value, of one, or maybe two men, in that firm.

The thinking collector and the men who have built up great collections can afford to ignore catalogue prices and form their own valuations, because their knowledge of relative rarity is much greater than the knowledge the catalogue makers possess.

In the following remarks when I speak of catalogue price I shall always refer to the Scott Stamp & Coin Co.'s catalogue, unless I mention any other for a special reason.

When we come to consider relative rarity as based upon the numbers printed and then endeavor to use these figures to establish a market value, we have to take another factor into very serious consideration, that is "Public Demand."

It would be absurd to compare numbers issued and relative prices of, say, United States 1867-1870 and Jammu and Kashmir of the same period. Many of the Jammu are great rarities and were issued in very small numbers yet the demand for them is so small that their selling value cannot be compared with the real market value of United States stamps of the same period, that were issued in numbers probably a hundred times as great.

I think that from these opening remarks I have shown that the man who sets out to price a catalogue of the world's stamps, has a job of really stupendous magnitude and we should all do what we can to help by constructive criticism, and be very lenient to slight faults, which must occur in works of this size covering every part of the world.

I propose to take a few countries of special interest to American and Canadian collectors, where we have reliable figures of the numbers of stamps printed or used, to compare these and their prices in the catalogue with one another, and in some cases with issues of other countries where such comparison seems fair or justifiable.

The first group of stamps I propose to deal with is that classed under the term British North Americans, comprising Canada, Newfoundland, New Brunswick, Nova Scotia, Prince Edward Island, British Columbia and Vancouver Island.

To save constant references I would say that the figures I quote are taken from the best published authorities with which I am acquainted, such as abstracts from the account books of Messrs. Perkins, Bacon & Co., published by Mr. E. D. Bacon in the London Philatelist, C. A. Howes' volume on Canada and Handbooks by Poole, Melville, Jarrett, etc.

CANADA.

The most famous stamp of Canada is certainly the 12d black. This is catalogued $1,250.00 unused, $1,000.00 used. 51,000 were printed, of these 1,510 were issued to postmasters, and the remainders were destroyed.

I want to compare this with stamps that are equally popular and in as great demand. The Cape of Good Hope, Woodblock Errors.

The 1d blue, quoted, $1,250.00 used.

4d red, 1,250.00

Of the 1d blue error it has been estimated by Mr. M. P. Castle that 158 can have existed and of the 4d red, 342 existed. These figures show that the catalogue prices for the "errors" are quite out of proportion, especially as compared with the 12d Canada. If the price of $1,000.00 for the used 12d is market value, and I think a good copy today will bring about that, then the

Cape "errors" should be priced at least 1d blue, $3,000.00, 4d red, $2,000.00

Is the Canada 12d priced too high, or are the Cape "Errors" quoted too low?

We will now consider the numbers issued of the remaining "pence" issues. According to the records the numbers issued were:

| | | |
|--------------|------------|---------------|
| 1/2d Imperf. | 3,389,960. | Perf. 789,440 |
| 3d " | 3,100,000. | " 428,700 |
| 6d " | 350,478. | " 52,422 |
| 7 1/2d " | 82,410. | |
| 10d " | 141,000. | |

The first thing that strikes one on looking at these figures is that more 1/2d stamps were issued than 3d's, but the 3d is common and the 1/2d scarce. The reason is that the 1/2d was used on newspapers and periodicals chiefly, and the wrappers of these would be mostly thrown away. The 3d was used on letters and many firms filed the letters in the covers and large quantities of the stamps were thus saved.

I want next to compare the prices of the other three values, taking always the commonest or lowest priced variety and dealing with used only.

6d, $35.00; 7 1/2d, $60.00; 10d, $45.00.

The 6d is a fairly common stamp in America as it was the standard rate on letters and a considerable number have been found here. I think the 6d is overvalued at $35.00 and the 7 1/2d and 10d much undervalued. It is not a difficult matter to get together 50 or 100 of the 6d but in the same period one would probably not be able to buy half a dozen 7 1/2d, or a dozen 10d.

On relative rarity today I should value fair copies:

6d, $25.00; 7 1/2d, $80.00; 10d, $55.00.

The perforated 6d is a rare stamp, what has become of the 52,422 printed I do not know, but very few copies are seen now-a-days. It is priced $85.00 or 2 1/2 times the price quoted for the imperf, while the figures show it is nearly seven times as scarce. In practice it is double or treble as scarce as that. If we value the imperf at $25.00 the perforated should be $125.00.

THE 1859 ISSUE.

| Numbers Printed. | Used | Prices. |
|------------------|------------|---------|
| 1c, | 27,475,450 | $.75 |
| 2c, | 910,500 | 6.00 |
| 5c, | 39,792,172 | .40 |
| 10c, | 5,799,698 | 2.00 |
| 12 1/2c, | 3,176,632 | 1.50 |
| 17c, | 599,999 | 3.00 |

The 5c is a common stamp and must be overvalued at 40c. I think 20c for good copies is ample. The 1c used largely on periodicals is a good deal scarcer and worth about 40c. The 10c is one of the most extraordinary stamps for colors and shades and any specialist can easily use 100 copies and this causes a demand out of proportion to the number issued. Ordinary shades well worth price quoted. The 12 1/2c is priced less than the 10c, although it is rarer. It comes in only three major shades and collectors do not want too many copies, but it is scarce over here and much commoner in England.

There are now left two stamps I find much undervalued, the 2c and the 17c. The 2c on figures printed is over six times as scarce as the 10c but is only treble the price of that stamp. The 2c was little kept, it is quite scarce on

Look--1847 Issue U. S.--Look

Are you unable to spend $45 for superb pair of U. S. 1847 issue, the 5c and 10c used? This is about the price for a 10c guide, wide margin outfit.

Now for only $15.00 I will fill the spaces in your album with a complete set of bright, lightly cancelled copies, only drawback they are cut close—but they are good space-fillers for small amount of money. If you wish them superb, $40.00 for the pair, good margins on these.

WHITE PLAINS "DOT" VARIETY

This will be one of the rare minor varieties of U. S. stamps. Only 6250 were printed and no doubt many of these were used on mail at the Exhibition. The dot appears over the first "S" of States on the ninth stamp of the SW pane of 25 of plate No. 18774. I offer the Exhibition pane of 25 with the dot variety for $3.00.

The most undervalued stamp is certainly the 12 1/2c. This is quite scarce in Canada and no stocks seem to be anywhere. The large 5c is getting to be a rare stamp and is a good buy at present prices.—Philatelic Classics.

SOWING THE SEEDS

Mention has been made of the West High Tatler, published weekly by the journalistic class of West High School, Des Moines, Iowa, for the part that it is playing in removing the bushel from the philatelic light and we again commend the service done by Mr. DeWitt C. Sprague, the faculty adviser, in recognizing the news features of our pursuit. The St. Patrick's day number, with its article on Ireland, illustrated by a real half-penny stamp of that country, was a hit and as an encore, further articles on Irish stamps have been appearing in the Tatler, which, by the way, can hold its head up in any journalistic society. Here, for instance, is the manner in which the last issue of Ireland is handled:

"The remainder of the four permanent designs made their appearance from February 2 to March 17. These designs and designers of the Irish Free State stamps are:

1. Map of Ireland, Mr. James Ingram, Glasnevin, Dublin.
2. Arms of the Four Provinces, Miss M. Gilling, School of Art, Dublin.
3. Celtic Cross, Miss Lily Williams, Ranelagh, Dublin.
4. Sword of Light, Mr. J. J. O'Reilly, Westmoreland St., Dublin.
5. Pictorials, Professor Atkinson, Dublin.

The artist of the third stamp also designed the Celtic Cross 'Sinn Fein' stamp that was used for propaganda before the European war. Recently this was again published in commemoration of the 'Irish Rebel and Civil' wars.

The first mentioned, the 'Map' is used for lower values. The design of the second stamp contains the coats of arms of the four provinces. Several stamps of higher values will be decorated with pictorial designs, representing important scenes in Dublin.

The 'Sword of Light' is an ancient Gaelic device (An Claidhean Soluis), and first appeared on the emerald green halfpenny stamp. This sword is an emblem of Progress and Learning. The stamp was issued on March 17, 1923. Its publication commemorated the 1,500th anniversary of the Patron Saint's Missions and first teachings of Christianity in Ireland and western Great Britain (A. D. 423)."

the book are many illustrations of the rarities contained in the sale, but a supplement of 40 pages made up entirely of illustrations is particularly deserving of mention. We congratulate this firm upon this most auspicious opening of its auction business.

A. E. PADE of New York is off for his native country, Denmark, whence he will return about June 15.
Mr. Pade is well known as a specialist in Denmark and will no doubt find time to do a little hunting for number ones and other rare things.

WE welcome to our columns a new advertising firm, the Braddock Stamp & Coin Co., Braddock, Pa. August
Bamford is the manager of the company.
Their announcements will doubtless appear regularly in our columns.

WE are indebted to an old subscriber,
Hans Ueberall, for a card issued in connection with the big stamp exhibition at Chemnitz, March 27 to April 3.
Postage upon the card is paid by the new 15pf airmail stamp just issued and there is also a special exhibition postmark.
It is an interesting combination.

WE are indebted to Benj. Cadbury and E. H. Spangler for the McCain article, "Rare Old Stamps," published in the Phila. Bulletin of April 13.

WE have received a clipping from the Yonkers Statesman of April 9, which consists of an interesting stamp story with special mention of George Herzog of that city, who is an ardent stamp collector. The story is accompanied by a picture of Mr. Herzog.
(Clipping from Robertson Angel.)

C. N. BLACK, 448 W. 22nd St., New York City, is unable to secure replies to letters mailed to C. L. Smith, Santa Monica, Calif. Letters are returned marked "removed, left no address." Interested parties will communicate with Mr. Black.

The "Henry Schinzel" Collection OF 19th Century Stamps

This fine collection is being entirely re-arranged in my new approval books and re-priced at rates that will effect quick sales.

The following books are now ready, and can be sent to serious collectors who wish to purchase choice stamps at reasonable rates. In order to give some indication of the class of stamps in each book, I add the value.

In many of the British Colonies there are good and medium 20th Century stamps.
As I do not hold these as an investment for my funds, I have priced them all at half Scott's catalogue and less to clear them out.

THE LAY OF THE RELIABLE HINGE

By SIDNEY BIRD

In the days of the lambent long ago
When life had a roscate tinge,
A friend of mine, let's call him Cline,
Read an ad for a peelable hinge.

Cline was a guy who rolled his own
With scissors and passe-partout,
Or he whittled up labels of Denison brand
The kind with the stick-tight glue.

But the pride and joy of his honest
Was a perforated confection,
A hell-bred hinge that came in sheets,
Alleged to be near perfection.

These limbs of Satan were built to
They were greased with a pungent mixture
Of sassafras, solder, and sandarac,
That made them a permanent fixture.

Only a jimmy could pry them off,
A dynamite jar them loose,
But once removed, what was left of a set Wasn't even a poor excuse.

So Cline gave a cackle of gushful gle
And his chest swelled up with pride,
But the firm went bust ere his order came
And Cline got sick and died.

All this was back in '92,
When horses wore hats and fringe,
A matter of 35 years or so,
But we still lack the peelable hinge.

WELCOME

Two numbers of the journal card
"Philatelic Classics" have been issued Mr. Charles J. Phillips of New York and while he is modest enough to call his publication a house-organ, his estimate does not impair the extraordinary merit of the reading material in its columns.
It need not be repeated that the experience of Mr. Phillips makes his opinions of importance and his philat-erudition as applying to the issues of 1880 gives authority to his pronoun-ments. Mr. Phillips is not seeking a general circulation for his journal which is intended to serve as a personal circular, as it were, for his clients. Mr. P-Phillips' views on the future of the eye issues, relatively speaking, are preserconvincingly in his paper and we are pleased, indeed, to have this able exponent of the classics of philately express himself so interestingly in print. We privilege that we have of quoting from the journal or using its material in the WEEKLY is one that is not lightly garded; and we shall not sleep on it.

CANCELS AND OTHER ITEMS

By SEVARD.

Philately has a little publicity in "Ask Me Another", for the question is aptly put "What is a stamp collection called?"

The regulation for cancelling pre-cancels states that the postal marking should contain five lines to distinguish it from the four line bar marks. We have catalogued fifteen users of the special postal marking for cancelling pre-cancels. The Farmers and Merchants National Bank of Los Angeles seems to favor cancelling their own pre-cancels on bulky letters, which method, we hear, is of great saving to the post-office. Experiments are always worth trying.

Major Hoople came home after a week's absence and he alibied to Martha that he had been to a philatelic convention, to which Martha notes the new shade of carmine-rose at the tip end of her vagrant's nose. If one is not badly mistaken, we can say positively we saw Major Hoople on the top deck of the General Meigs behind the smokestack one very evening last October raucously narrating bunk stories on Chilean stamps to a certain Mr. Melville, but then, one can't always be sure. Philatelic conventions are what you make them, and we hope many, many Major Hooples will come to the next one.

"Let's Go" slogans are to the fore again, and slogan collectors might as well get them while they may. He who will not when we may, When he will, shall have nay.

City Hall Station, New York, has a handstamp variety showing the legend "C.H.Sta." with a star in the small circle in the auxiliary mark. This is the usual 25mm duplex.

New York is also using a machine registry cancel in magenta ink. These will be noted mostly on the backs of the 17c meters, or maybe you don't get dividends.

The new perforations are eliminating our platen initials, and we will miss our friends "A.B." and "C.V.DeB." They were always hanging around the corners.

One day I chased a beautiful butterfly for miles and miles, and finally caught it. When I got it home my mother told me it was wrong to kill them, and that I couldn't keep it. And I felt very badly about it all especially after having chased so much and tired myself to get something which I wanted for my collection. Those days are gone truly, but what shall I do with all my nice Stock Transfer stamps now? I remember the next butterfly I caught, I sneaked in the back way.

Who remembers the old postal money orders? Weren't they big? And the old C.O.D. tickets? And those old registry coupons? Have you still got that one the clerk gave you when you sent a thousand Babbitt soap wrappers for that genuine horseshoe ball—the one that was egg-shaped when you hit it?

A Rare War Provisional

TOGO Scott's number 173. There is only one unused copy known and that is in a collection in England where it isn't likely ever to come out. There are six used copies—the total issue being seven copies. About twice as rare as the Post Office Mauritius, which list 12 to 15 thousand each. I have a lovely used copy out of a very famous English collection, the price of which is

H. M. MacLEAN

BROCKVILLE, ONT., CANADA

SENATOR KING perhaps got his idea that our intervention in HAITI was a brutal outrage from looking at a collection of those weird products perpetrated in 1917-19 during the U. S. regime. (Scott Nos. 245-308). Certainly no American collector should be without a few of these funny things, the like of which will probably never occur again in philatelic history. Why we do not recognize the fact that Haiti since 1915 has been under U. S. Marine Occupation is one of those political mysteries. Anyhow, we took charge in 1915 and still seem to be there, and the stamps are related to U. S. issues as closely as those of Johore or Kelantan are to those of Britain.

25 of these peculiar stamps (Cat. $5.48) for a $2 bill. It will not bring you bad luck as these things have a future.

ALSO, while we are on the subject of Haiti, we'll offer No. 262 (Cat. 2.25), $1; 268 (Cat. $1.50), .75; 269, ditto; 273, ditto; 280, ditto; 291 (Cat. 2.50), $1.

All unused and perfect.

ALSO, a few N-1100 (see previous ads) and 2022 left. When these are sold out we shall make no more packets. Too nerve racking—So order "soon or not at all, we don't much care."

P. S. We have other Haitis, too.

P. S. Again. Anything you don't like, you return and your money is restored. Good-bye till next week. Ad-writing is amusing, when you're in the mood.

EDITORIAL

Interviews with Mr. H. A. Diamant, St. Louis, and Mr. R. H. Eilers, St. Louis, afford a basis for the statement that the idea of an exhibit at St. Louis during the convention of the American Philatelic Society there has not been abandoned. Just what the scope of the exhibition will be has not been determined but the present disposition is to signalize the occasion by a display of some kind. St. Louis has a very large proportion of collectors among the young people and if an exhibition were made that was designed especially to arouse their ambition, practical good would follow. An exhibit intended to meet the expectations of the confirmed philatelists naturally would be a horse of another color.

Writing from Shanghai, China, under date of March 23, 1927, Mr. Theodore Siddall says: "You have been reading the papers most likely and heard how the post office here has gone on strike. The Dollar Company is taking letters to the United States while the post office is not working; and so I am sending you a cover in care of the company, if it is of an interest to you. There may be some surcharges as a result of the present upset but at the moment there is no need of stamps because there is nobody in the post office." The cover that Mr. Siddall sends bears ten cents in Chinese stamps obliterated by a special postmark that is not decipherable. Mr. Siddall says that his home is full of missionaries from up country, all of whom are Americans; and he adds: "Had some fighting in a street about one hundred yards from my dump, yesterday afternoon. . . It is desirable to keep the Chinese soldiers outside of town as some of them have been promised a chance to loot Shanghai should they capture it but the

From Mr. Frank L. Applegate, Medford, Oregon, we have received the communication from R. M. Estes, deputy commissioner, treasury department, from which we take the following definite statement regarding the question of handling used stock transfer and future delivery stamps in a collecting sense, thus driving the final nail in the coffin of our fears: "Treasury Decision 3976, however, does not apply to legally canceled stock transfer or future delivery stamps which have been procured in a legal manner, such as the purchase of canceled stamps which have been detached from documents, the retention of which is no longer required, and are to be destroyed. The regulations do not prohibit the purchase of such stock transfer and future delivery stamps by or from stamp collectors."

Anticipation is succeeded by realization and the new Greek set is here at last, the complete set having come from Mr. P. J. Drossos, Athens. "The mingled beauties of exulting Greece" are well shown on these stamps that have been awaited for so long a time and the series is a portfolio of the glory that was Greece and the spirit that is Greece.

It is known that many of the post offices in this country were never supplied with any of the ninety cent stamps of the 1869 issue and that as a consequence, stamps of a lower denomination were used, necessarily, in place of a ninety cent, when otherwise the bi-colored Lincoln would have been used. Some time ago, a letter was received from a correspondent who asked if there was a list of the post offices to which supplies of the ninety cent were sent. We do not believe that statistics of this kind have ever been published and we doubt whether they are available at this late day.

The growth of attention given to stampless covers, bearing various postal markings, characteristic of the service of pre-stamp days suggests that consideration be shown such covers in a practical way. One of the questions that is asked most frequently concerns the status and value of these pieces; and years ago it was to be said that they had no philatelic value. This statement must be revised as it is evident that covers of the kind have attained a foothold on solid philatelic ground. If some pioneer would attempt a systematized catalogue of the items, with tentative pricings, a progressive step would be made. Beginning with 1800, for instance, the "Paid," "Collect," "Ship" and other covers could be classified, even roughly; and as time proceeded, the polishing process would be

We suppose there have been no recent biographies of Buchanan that embrace the information desired.

In "Vanity Fair," Deems Taylor contributes an article, "On the Track of Object of Virtue. A Few Remarks about Collectors and—To Hear Them Tell It—Their Finds," in which he remarks: "The man who collects works of art in the spirit of one who collects postage stamps hardly deserves to be called an art lover." There he blows. Why lug in stamps as the horrid example? What's he driving at? Commercialism? Or does he contend that the philatelist lacks that sensibility to appreciate art? The parallel is an unfortunate one as we do know that appreciation impels not a few of the best collectors to interest themselves in postage stamps; and art magazines have placed themselves on record as recognizing the artistic appeal of many postage stamps.

We hear much about the tendency that sometimes is apparent to commercialize collecting and it is true that good many collectors succumb to the profit possibilities of stamps in a trade

Boy Scouts Organize Stamp Club

The Boy Scouts of the Homestead, Pa., district have organized a stamp club and have elected officers and are holding regular meetings. The club is sponsored by Frank Horton, Scout Executive, and J. P. Penning, a stamp collector of the steel mills district. Anything of interest to the boys may be sent to J. P. Penning, Box 31, Homestead Park, Pa., especially sample copies of papers and circulars or price lists.

Origin of Countries' Names

(Insert in Your Album.)

HELGOLAND.—According to Norse mythology, Forseti, son of Baldur, and god of justice, had his temple on the island; and the goddess Hertha also had a temple here, which was visited by our forefathers, the Angles, from the mainland, in consequence of all which the island was named Heiligeland = "Holy land." This is evidently a derivation invented to suit the name when the true meaning of it was lost. It most likely was from Halligland = "land of banks which cover and uncover," referring probably to the way the shore was wholly hidden by the flowing tide, and exposed by the ebbing.

HONDURAS (British).—This name is Spanish and means "depths," referring to difficulties in finding anchorage.
INDIA.—This is not a native name for the land. The origin of it is sindhu = a "river," a "protection," from the Sanscrit root sidh = "to ward off." The plural sindia losing the initial s on the journey reaches us as India. Travelling through Persia, where an initial s becomes h, the word becomes, and reaches us as, Hindu. The river referred to is, of course, the Indus.—Stamp Collecting.

Re-Engraved Dies

Either the die from which the plate is made, or the plate itself, may be re-engraved, and stamps so produced are distinguished as being from (1) a re-engraved die or (2) a re-engraved plate. When a die or plate becomes worn by continual use so that impressions from it are not satisfactory, some or all of the lines of the design have to be re-cut or re-engraved. As a rule the alterations made are sufficiently marked to be noticeable in the finished stamps so that it is possible to identify them from impressions in the original state. To be strictly accurate a die rarely becomes sufficiently worn to require re-engraving from that cause alone. Dies are re-engraved with the idea of strengthening various parts so that certain lines in the design will show more plainly in the printed stamps. Thus in the first 1d stamps of Great Britain the shading round the eye, etc., was a little too faint so the die was re-engraved with the object of more strongly defining this shading. The 1c, 3c, 6c and 10c United States stamps of 1881-82 furnish excellent examples of the differences made by re-engraving the dies. If these are compared with the original designs it will be found that considerable alteration has been made.

These are numerals with color lines above them chiefly found in connection with the 2c value of the 1st issue of the United States. These called "caps" are simply due to defect transfer rolls.

Junior Dictionary

Bourchier Issue.—A set of stamps issued by Bulgaria in 1921 was called the Bourchier commemorative issue. It honored the memory of James D. Bourchier who had been a Balkan correspondent of the London Times many years and died in 1920. His service during the world war caused him to be greatly loved by the Bulgarian people. Two portrait designs of Bourchier are shown on the stamps. Another stamp shows the Rilo Monastery where he was buried.

Burgenland.—A portion of Western Hungary which under the terms of the World War peace treaty was awarded to Austria and given the new name "Burgenland." The transfer occasioned bad feeling on the part of Hungarians, bloodshed followed.

Cabildo de Panama.—This inscription on the 10c, 1921, Panama stamp means "Town Hall of Panama." "Cabildo" literally means the corporation of a city or town, but the name is also applied to the place where the meetings are held.

Caminho de Ferro.—This inscription is found on the 15c, 1918 of the Mozambique Company, the design of which is a stationary railroad train. The word means simply "railroad," in Portuguese.

STAMPS SOUGHT BY KING GEORGE

(Clipping from Cecil F. Blogg)

LONDON, April 2. — King George has formed the habit of reserving Friday evening to poring over his stamp collection, according to those in the inner circles of British philately.

He now has, it is believed, the greatest stamp collection in the world. King George is a rich man and he could pay, if he liked, almost any sum in reason for some rare stamp which he really wanted, but his "outside limit," according to close observers of the stamp auctions, is around $7,500.

Anything more than that, it is said, draws a negative shake of the royal head. The king is known to have said that all he wanted was a gentleman's collection, not a "plutocrat's."

His personal collection is confined solely to stamps of the British empire.
His ambition as a philatelist is to get the first complete collection in the world of all the stamps issued in Great Britain, each and all the dominions, the various colonies, protectorates, and since the great war—the mandates. These are the only stamps he will buy.

When he started out as a midshipman in the British navy he collected the usual miscellaneous assortment but when,
through the death of his elder brother, the Duke of Clarence, he realized that he was destined to succeed to the British throne, he sold his job-lot of stamps and began almost immediately laying the foundation for the greatest collection in the world of stamps issued within the British empire.

However, he has received from other monarchs in other lands some very rare stamps. Several of them, in fact, far exceed in value anything in his own conscientiously gathered British collection.
These "alien" stamps are separately catalogued in distinctive portfolios, but the king does not regard them as in any sense part of the remarkable collection which he intends to leave to the world.

Very few people have ever been privileged to glimpse the king's collection in its entirety.

Whenever there is an international stamp exhibition in England or abroad
the king always sends several portfolios which, he thinks, would be of special interest to lovers of stamps, but at no time has he ever placed his entire collection upon public display at one time.

It has been suggested that he plans to do this in 1940, which would be the centenary of the first postage stamp in the world, that of the famous "black penny stamp" in Great Britain, put through by the great-grandfather of all philatelists, Rowland Hill, known to English history as the father of the "penny post."

He has a well known dealer on the Strand who is commissioned to send up to Buckingham palace any stamps which he thinks might fill a vacancy in the king's collection; he also has the assistance of an expert, officially designated as

UNITED STATES 1 1/2c Provisional Envelopes

The Scott Company have provided spaces in their albums for all of the interesting 1 1/2c Provisional envelopes mentioned in their catalogue. The provisional albums provide spaces for the one or two varieties that have been discovered since the catalogue was issued.

At the present time, I can furnish every variety listed and recognized by the Scott Company and will be pleased to receive want lists in accordance with their catalogue.

Now that the 1 1/2c on 1c green on unglazed ordinary kraft paper has been listed as a separate variety, it means that the collector will not be able to substitute this stamp for the rarer one on glazed paper, which has been listed from the first.

There was only one lot of the glazed variety, Scott's 2730, and there has never been more found in any city. It was thought to be common at first, due to the fact that it was available on the unglazed paper. I can furnish the glazed variety in entire unused condition at $1.00. It is likely to be one of the scarcer varieties.

Don't forget that I can furnish any of the others now cataloged.

1 1/2c Provisional Envelopes

A number of months have elapsed since I published a list of the whereabouts of special dies for overprinting the 1c envelopes with the new 1 1/2c value. I learn through the courtesy of the Third Assistant Postmaster General, that the following number of dies have been moved in accordance with the schedule given. From this list it will be seen that some of the 1c envelopes are still in stock and are being utilized by being overprinted.

New Revenue Variety

Mr. George P. Smith has shown me a block of four of the current 20c carmine Documentary, Scott's No. 4232, in which the two right hand stamps of the block are overprinted "STOCK TRANSFER," while the two left stamps are without surcharges. The surcharged varieties show the current overprint as found on number 4421.

Unusual Local Cover

It is unusual to find the local stamps of the earlier days on the covers in any other manner than in single form. Mr. Eugene Klein has recently run across a very unusual piece, wherein five of the Blood's Dispatch varieties are found the same cover. The cover, in addition to the regular Blood's cancellations shows a special cancellation with circle reading, "BLOOD'S DISPATCH SPECIAL MESSENGER." The letter is addressed to Philadelphia bearing date February 16, while the five singles arranged in the form of a cross and of the "One Cent Dispatch" type black.

Faked Cancellations

Collectors are especially warned to beware of special or fancy cancellations found on many of our early stamps. I have just seen a copy of the 10c with black U. S. Express mail cancellation of the New York type. The work of producing the cancellation was so that it had passed through hands of those well posted upon the subject. Close examination, however, showed copy, which by the way bore date June 30th, to have been a pen cancellation variety cleaned, with the black cancellation painted in by hand. The work so clever and the mixture of ink so wonderful, that it was no doubt done by a professional, well versed on the subject.

BRAZIL.—Stanley Gibbons Monthly Journal informs us that a special set of stamps is to be made in August in honor of the Centenary of the foundation of the Brazilian courts of justice.

BR. BECHUANALAND.—Mr. R. Rolfe has shown us the 6p stamp of Great Britain with the usual surcharge for use in this colony, on the new waternote paper. It is the ordinary paper and the chalky surface.

BRUNEL.—Whitfield King & Co. for chronicle a copy of a new printing of the 12c, Scott's design A2. The color compared with the original issue is much lighter shade of blue.

"Mr. E. L. Angeloglou kindly gives us the numbers printed of recent issues, Navigation Congress, 5m, 300,000; 10m, 200,000; 15m, 200,000; Cotton Congress, 2,000 more than the above quantities of each value. Both these sets are now obsolete and selling at a premium. Huge quantities have been sold to America. The 50pi, King's birthday stamp, is now hard to get in blocks, as sheets are cut up into strips before issue, in order, it is stated, to prevent forgeries of the Port Fuad issue. How this will prevent forgery we are not told. A new design will shortly appear to commemorate the International Statistical Congress. We presume the design will consist of multiple figures of value, with watermark in columns."

GAMBIA.—Stanley Gibbons Monthly Journal report that the latest supplies received by their publishers from the Colony seem to have a rather yellowish gum which affects the appearance of the paper to some extent. The new 4p script is an outstanding example.

IRISH FREE STATE.—Three of the best known of Dublin's many famous buildings—the General Post Office in Sackville Street, the Four Courts, and the Customs House, all of which are in course of reconstruction—are to be the distinctive marks of several varieties of Irish Free State stamps which will shortly be issued.

The Irish Times of March 26th (cuttings from which have been kindly sent us by Mr. Sidney Harvey and A. T. Newham) says:—

"The designs will be contained in the 2s 6d, 5s and 10s stamps, which, it is hoped, will be on sale within a few months time. It is understood that copies of old engravings of these buildings will be used for the purpose.

At present the 2s 6d, 5s and 10s stamps used in the Free State are the British issues, which are overprinted 'SAORSTAT EIREANN'.

When the new stamps are made saleable the entire list of stamps issued by the Free State Post Office will be of distinctively Irish character."—Stamp Collecting.

JAPAN.—Mr. R. Roberts sends for chronicle the 10s blue, in the new type, watermarked horizontal wavy lines, close together.

NEW ZEALAND.—Whitfield King & Co. advise that the 1sh, King George, Field Marshal design, has been overprinted "OFFICIAL" in the usual manner in black.

SAAR.—Whitfield King & Co. send copies of the 80c, in the new series. The color is orange. Also the same correspondents have shown us the 30c and 50c, of the same set with the surcharge "Dienstmarke." The former in red while that of the 50c is in blue.

SPAIN.—Whitfield King & Co. have shown us copies of the 25c, type of Scott's A49, but from Die 2. We note that the background for the portrait in the new printing is not so deep a shade as heretofore and also that the horizontal lines in the background of the panels to the left and right have been strengthened. The new die stamp is also of a brighter shade than previously.

S. W. AFRICA.—Our valued colleague, Mr. J. Robertson, writes from Johannesburg (March 9th):—

I am semi-officially informed that the Government printer, Pretoria, is at present overprinting the new pictorials described in the accompanying letter "SOUTH WEST AFRICA" on English stamps and "SUIDWES AFRIKA" on Afrikaans adhesives.

Supplies of the London printed 1/2d and 6d pictorial Unions overprinted "SOUTH WEST AFRICA" on Afrikaans stamps and "SUIDWES AFRIKA" on English stamps have been dispatched to the Protectorate. This type of overprint was caused through an error, and will not be repeated. The mistake arose through the printer responsible starting off with an Afrikaans overprint instead of an English one when making up a forme.

The new postage due design of the Union will be utilized for S. W. Africa. The overprint will be in English and Afrikaans—English on English stamps and Afrikaans on Afrikaans labels.

A correspondent informs me that he has a pair of the 1d pictorial (transposed overprint) with watermark inverted. The only other inverted watermark known in S. W. African stamps is on the 5d Type 1.—Stamp Collecting.

A NEW CUBAN STAMP

By WILLIAM H. AVERY

"The council of Secretaries recently authorized the Secretary of Communications to order 2,000,000 25c stamps to commemorate the 25th anniversary of the Independent Cuban Republic. These stamps will be placed on sale May 20th and they were ordered by cable from the Canadian Bank Note Co. of Ottawa, Can., which concern has offered to print these stamps at a very modest price, and under such conditions, that their offer was never bettered by any other concern. Considering the limited quantity of this issue, it is quite certain that they will not last long. We are taking pleasure in bringing this novelty to the attention of the philatelists of the world."

This translation from a local paper is as near to the wording of the Spanish text as I can make it. I wish to add, that according to my information, the quantity ordered was not two, but three million, and, of course, my offer to your readers stands good on these stamps, while they will be obtainable at the P. O. If you care to inform your readers of this novelty, you are welcome to state, that the stamps will be supplied at face, but please remind them, that they have to send in the amount (25c for each stamp desired, plus postage). If anyone happens to forget to include the postal charges, it will not be my fault if he don't get his stamps.

This will finally set to rest all former rumors about the commemorative set to be issued this year. A European paper a few months ago even went so far as to publish an account of a set of five values about to be issued. While there would be several reasons for an issue of various commemorative sets this year, the only thing definite up to this moment is the above, and I don't believe there will be any more. The present Government is inclined to be very conservative, although of the Liberal Party, and besides, they claim that they have not the money available for the necessary plates, etc.

Airpost Collectors' Chronicle

Chile.—Local newspapers announced that the first air mail from Santiago was due to arrive in Valparaiso early in February, but we have not yet received further details.

Estonia.—A change in the national currency is soon to be made, involving the issue of new stamps which, no doubt, will include a series for air postage.

Honduras.—We learn that the emergency air stamps are sold out. A second emergency issue has now been made, with the same design on the same shade of blue paper, but printed in deep red instead of indigo, and the stamps this time being imperforated. There appears to be a regular variety, "L" for "D" in "Honduras," in the last line of the inscription. This seems to occur in every sixth or seventh stamp.

Hungary.—Mr. Orvos Janos informs us that air mail stamps in the new filler and pengo currency have been prepared, and are expected to be very well produced, in artistic designs. These will be of two types, one designed by the well-known Hungarian artist, Prof. Eugen Haranghy. The one, in a vertical rectangle, will represent Mercury on the back of a flying eagle; and the other, in a horizontal rectangle, will depict an eagle lifting its wings in readiness to fly, and was made from the sketch of John Palinkas. The blocks will be engraved by Prof. Schirnbock, who although eighty years of age, is still an active worker, and who was responsible for the beautiful Jubilee and other series.

The stamps will, it is hoped, be ready for the opening of the spring airmail services.

Japan.—Covers carried on the new services of last year between Osaka, Tokyo, Fukuoka, Oita Takamatsu and Imaharu are now being received. Dates may be checked by reading the numerals on the postmarks from right to left, the first (right) being the day of the month, second (centre) the month, and the third (left) the year of the reigning emperor. On the accession of the new emperor, at the end of last December, the last numeral "15" was substituted by "1."

Italy.—On the first flight of the Rome-Venice service, only 2,700 grammes of mail were carried, we are advised by Mr. Guido Martini. This new, regular service was commenced from Rome on February 1st, but bad weather forced the machine to return to the capital, the first successful flight being made on February 10th. In consequence, part of the mail was postmarked on the 1st, and the remainder on the 10th. At Rome, a special departure postmark was applied in red. It was inscribed "Roma Centro Posta Aerea" and date. The mail was backstamped in black, at Venice, on February 11th. The new value of the air stamps series, 1 lira 20, was issued last month.

Kenya and Sudan.—The first mail from Kenya, in a Fairey seaplane piloted by Capt. Gladstone, left Kisumu on February 15th. It consisted of 120lbs. of correspondence and newspapers, and at

H. A. ROBINETTE (SUCCESSOR)

WASHINGTON, D. C.

Khartum it was transferred to R.A.F. machines and flown to Cairo, where it arrived on the 20th, a saving of about 15 days over the time taken in land transport. The total postal fee was 70c per 1/2oz. An official blue-green air label was used, and all letters received the official first flight cachet we illustrate (No. 35), this being applied in red. Most of the correspondence appears to have been postmarked at Nairobi or Kisumu, the latest date being 11 a. m. of the 15th, at Kisumu.

The next experimental mail from Kisumu unfortunately came to a premature end, the machine being so seriously damaged soon after it started that it became a wreck, though no lives were lost, and the mails were saved after being submerged.

The British Postmaster-General announced that the regular air mail service would commence in March, and that the first mail from England would be collected in London on March 10th. Since then, however, the machine was lost, and it is now announced that the service has been indefinitely postponed, or abandoned, though the presence of Sir Sefton Brancker in Kenya may result in a more satisfactory decision.

Norway.—The Dornier—Wal flying boat used by Amundsen in his attempted flight over the Pole, in 1925, accomplished the first experimental mail flight across the North Sea early last month. Owing to inclement weather and other difficulties the first attempt had been postponed since early February. The route lies between Horten, Christianssand, Cuxhaven, Amsterdam, and Harwich. It is to be subsidised by the Norwegian Government and organised by the Norwegian Aero Club.

Mail was carried on the first attempt, the postal fee of 1kr 30 being defrayed by ordinary stamps. The official air label was brought into use, and a special machine cancellation (illustration No. 34) was applied. Most of the mail appears to have been backstamped at Harwich on March 7th.

Lithuania.—200 copies of the current 60 centu air stamp were issued in error with centres inverted last year. As the ordinary air stamp of 1919, of which 200 also were issued, is catalogued at £10— and is hard to get at that price, it would seem that the error is to be had at a very reasonable price at present, especially as there are more collectors of Lithuanian stamps than of Colombians. Many stamps have appeared with air post overprints inverted, but we believe this to be only the second variety to appear with an inverted centre, the first being the well-known U.S.A. 24c, catalogued at £150, of which 100 copies were issued.

Persia.—In connection with the opening of the air service to Baku, provisional air mail stamps are reported by Stamp Collecting. These are the issue of 1909 with an overprint representing an aeroplane and Persian and French inscriptions.

Switzerland.—During the "Pestalozzi" aviation meeting the first mail flight from Brugg to Yverdon was responsible for the carriage of a record quantity of mail, numbering 22,000 letters, cards, etc., and 5,000 registered pieces. The official obliterating cachet is illustrated (No. 36), but two other types of private cachets were also used, and a circular reception cachet inscribed "Centenaire de Pestalozzi, Yverdon" and date. Two vignettes were on sale for the occasion, one a rectangle (6,000 issued) and the other a large triangle (450 issued) according to Dr. Vogler. Special cards were also available, and in all the designs, on "cachets," vignettes and cards, children and birds predominate.

Uruguay.—Mr. A. H. Davis writes to say that after about 11 months of efficient service the Junkers airmail service between Montevideo and Buenos Aires has been abandoned as a financial failure.—Aero Field.

The above Newfoundlands represent a full lot recently found among some old letters. The stamps are mint and have never been hinged. The block of No. 26a was split up into blocks of 4 at the same time.

We have in stock fine mint singles of all the above, including No. 38, which we will supply at half catalogue.

This lot consists of single, or joined, letters. These letters are rather plentiful. This is just a small group of these various letters taken at random, and you will perhaps find a hundred types if your collection is large. These are all cut cork, or wood, and the machine made letters are not taken into consideration at all in this article.

No. 1 is out of the ordinary, as we seldom see an ornate gothic letter cut from cork and carefully framed with a series of small leaves, or ornaments, for this required much patience in the cutting. I have often thought that we are missing a lot of what would have been fine additions to our cancellation collection, owing to the care required in cutting, for doubtless many an interesting cut cork affair was almost completed, when the cutter's knife slipped and ruined what would have been something unique, and then the idea was not tried again. One little slip of the knife, and the cancellation was discarded.

You have probably seen No. 3 in part on stamps and possibly could not make it out. It is Mystic Bridge, and there are two different cuttings of this same MB, so if yours does not "match" this one, you have the other type, or there may have been more than two types. Then there is a VB made in similar manner, and the letters of about this same size.

No. 4 is perhaps an inverted shield. You see the cutter might have been a novice, and cut the "D" into the shield under the white bar without considering that when used it would appear inverted. I think this is actually what happened. Our last number ten (10) shows a case where this same thing happened, for the "backward" L is surely the initial of the town of Lebanon. In blue it makes a very attractive cancellation.

No. 5 is a very carefully executed bit of knife work, for the letter is about as perfect as could be made with a knife. There are several similar types of this, with many other letters.

No. 6 was in use a long time, and a part of the lower left broke away from the cork before it was discarded. No. 7 is one of those which were hard to cut—thin letters showing in color. It was far easier to make the letters so that they appear colorless, for then we have a good sized area of cork left, which prints in the color used. The small thin lines were unable to stand the hammering for a very long period, especially when the material was cork.

What a wonderful "contest" the P.O. Department could put out if they were to furnish each postmaster who wished, pieces of cork of uniform size, then told them to cut out a design that would be representative of their town postmark; other conditions. Everything seems to be changing with a view toward more speed. I believe that all the Governments will henceforth begin to make their stamps smaller and smaller, for more work can be turned out per day by so doing. It is only to make a splurge that countries give us a big stamp, and it is always to commemorate some event or other. In practical commercial work everything is minimized. Some collectors are already worrying about these metered mail things, wondering how long it will be before stamps are entirely done away with!

Do you ever ponder over what philately will be saying fifty years hence? Now this is something to wonder about! The airmail is becoming a real factor in carrying on the business of a nation. They do not like to lug excess weight. Probably light weight envelopes will be furnished, embossed without color, for ink is heavy stuff. The paper will be tough and light. Some type of cancellation without the use of ink will be in vogue probably. Then those collectors will look back on the days when us pioneer collectors were all trying to save postage stamps, and they will not be worrying about sizes of perforations, and watermarks.

How To Arrange Specialized Collections—This is a question that is handed to me about once a week at least. Of course the only answer is to suit the individual's taste, and this is largely governed by the material he has at hand.

However, here is something that you might cut out of the WEEKLY, and keep it near by for your own use whenever necessary. In the issue of MEKEEL's for Feb. 21, 1927, is an ad by the Scott Co., which is a handy compendium for any collector who specializes. You may have read that ad, it continued for several weeks, and wished that you had some, or all, of the items enumerated. Well, you can gain a lot by referring to this very fine check list of 71 headings. Read thru this list carefully first. Then go over it item by item, checking off the items that you have, which come under a heading. Those which you may have you keep a record of accurately for mounting. If you have any not mentioned, a doubtful surmise, give them a separate heading.

To analyze this list a bit, we see at the start, "Demonetization." Now you know what that means, stamps not recognized for postage, and you will do well if you can begin your collection with one of those 3c 1857 covers bearing inscription "Old Stamps Not Recognized" or some similar printed inscription across the face of the cover. This is sometimes applied in mss. and that will do very nicely too.

The "Henry Schinzel" Collection OF 19th Century Stamps

This fine collection is being entirely re-arranged in my new approval books and re-priced at rates that will effect quick sales.

The following books are now ready, and can be sent to serious collectors who wish to purchase choice stamps at reasonable rates. In order to give some indication of the class of stamps in each book, I add the value.

In many of the British Colonies there are good and medium 20th Century stamps. As I do not hold these as an investment for my funds, I have priced them all at half Scott's catalogue and less to clear them out.

Don't look at that "6 Pages" in the you'll be tickled to get one page, I know. You might get a cover with a 3c '55 it, and in addition a 3c 1861 pasted on it, they are nice too.

I'll bet that several of you have cut a copy of this list for mounting your collections. You will note that the sequence of these items is arranged with much thought, and that there is a certain amount of continuity in the relation each class to the ones which join it. There is the list for you to benefit by and you will save a lot of time and trouble.

Suppose for example that you do collect 3c 1851s and 1857s; but wish to mount all your 3c 1861s, stamps of covers both. Go right ahead and follow the list. You can get all of the three items if you are fortunate enough. Bisects of this stamp do not come much. Then you hop down to Class 7. Assume under a few certain conditions envelopes went through the mails marked "Paid 3" during the '61 period; but with much frequency. Of course you can stick a "Soldier's Letter" in for they were permitted to go with stamp.

Item 16, the Town Pmk. in Queen's Manner is a curiosity. The only one with which I am familiar was used from Sandy Spring, Md. The peculiarity consists in the pmk. having no month abbreviation as we are accustomed to see instead of having Mar. 17, this reads "3 Mo 17," the months not being named but numbered.

When you get down to 45 in this list you can begin to do a real wholesale of mounting. Lots 51 and 52, Canada and Worcester, do not show much in cancellations in the '61s, so you can enter your Waterburys, etc., etc., he. Don't forget your shades. Then you have a class that is full of oddities, grills.

Don't be downcast if it takes you three or four days, or weeks, or months, to group your items into presentable form. Art is long, and time is fleeting.

REVIEW

Several months ago, we received from J. C. Auf der Heide of Hilversum, Holland, a number of pamphlets which are worthy of general philatelic recognition and which indicate that Mr. Auf der Heide's Postzegelhandel has attained prominence as a publication office. "Christelijke Inspiratie in de Philatelie," study of the designs incorporated in postage stamps having a religious significance is a pamphlet copiously illustrated and evidently carefully written by a number of competent students, who have approached their novel subject with the proper feeling. While the text is in Dutch, the illustrations allow of a good understanding of the themes; and it is noticeable that not a few of the European countries have contributed largely to the work in their later issues. The United States is represented by the one-cent Oaha, 1898, showing Father Marquette. The book makes a secure place for itself in our varied literature on stamps, and the merit of dealing with a salient part of the stamps that come under review.

Première Émission des Pays-Bas" (182-1863) is in French and is by Fernand Serrane, but the stock of this book has been bought by Mr. Auf der Heide. The work is a thorough inquiry into the plates, retouches and shades of this interesting line of stamps and the postmarks and essays are considered as well. The treatise presents the issue in all its phases and no doubt it is a thorough examination of the stamps and their suggestions. The specialist will especially be appealed to by the minuteness of the scrutiny of the stamps. Price: 16 francs.

"Stempels en Postzegels," is by Mr. Auf der Heide himself, and we suppose that its outstanding feature is the list of numbered Dutch offices, 1 to 259. A great variety of postmarks and obliterations of the Netherlands from 1781, have place on the pages of the pamphlet, which, as a work of reference, must be set to be appreciated fully.

The fourth pamphlet is a sort of guide to collecting and pictures stamps that can be identified by the foreign words they bear; and there is information about watermarks, perforations, reprints, accessories, etc. The value of this elementary work is admitted and shows that the Dutch beginner is well taken care of in his first steps.

METROPOLITAN STAMP CO., 1482 Broadway, N. Y. CITY

AN OPEN LETTER TO AN A. P. S. MEMBER

By TOM V. BINMORE, A.P.S.
Sec. A.S.D.A.

Under the heading of "A Lust For The Almighty Dollar," MEKEEL'S WEEKLY prints your letter with reply. Both of these mention the A.S.D.A., I feel free to give you our side of the picture.

We stamp dealers, publishers and sales managers, whose livelihood more or less depends on the continuity, safety and profit in the sale of postage stamps and accessories, perhaps view matters of credit with more concern than does a membership or executive of a National Society, composed chiefly of those to whom stamp collecting is but a side issue, a pastime in life. Therefore we collect and mutually disperse information bearing on the credit standing of present or prospective customers. This is done in the same legal form as in any trade organization, and has been found necessary. The methods of selling stamps and accessories make it imperative to deal only with those who are safe from the standpoint of credit.

Most of us, in fact, are also members of the A.P.S. We accept the theory that it is the American Philatelic Society. We are prepared to believe that, before admitting a member, proper investigation of his responsibility is made; that when he becomes unsafe to deal with, his ability to use the background of an A.P.S. membership shall be withdrawn.

But I regret to state we have not found this to be the case. As Secretary of the A.S.D.A. I am known to have the most complete records dealing with credit. I took office in October, 1926. I have yet to receive an official inquiry from the A.P.S. (or in fact, from any organization other than the Collectors Club, the Rutherford and Saturday Afternoon Clubs) as to what information I might have affecting the credit of an applicant. I have yet to be asked for information on a member under charges or threat of charges. The Sales Manager keeps in touch with the A.S.D.A., he, like the Secretary, is a member. But neither has, as I understand it, any responsibility in the matter of membership.

The A.S.D.A. does not attempt to tell anyone what to do, beyond insisting upon ethical conduct among its members. We have no interest in the internal affairs of yours or other collectors societies, except that you find we come across on every call made, we stand ready to help you when you are ready. We offer you, on credit matters, as we offer our own members, simply advice based on substantiated evidence. To lean further backward, as members of our A.P.S. as well as yours, we have not till this date approached the A.P.S. with any suggestion of proffered help. We might well be asking that the A. P. S. investigate as thoroughly as we do.

But we prefer to let the substantial safe and stable element ask your leaders just what A.P.S. membership does mean, if a large body of sellers decline to take this as evidence of a clean record. I have complaints from an A.P.S. member on this. No one is thick enough to ask any membership society to guarantee its members. But the question which neither you or MEKEEL'S have hit is Do You investigate by recognized methods?

As I said before, the A.S.D.A. stands ready to help the A.P.S., with no proviso. The request must come from you. You will be judged in our minds on the results. You as an A.P.S. member or officer have allowed our leading publisher to question your sincerity; your answer by default.

MR. WALCOTT EXHIBITS TO B. P. S.

The Boston Philatelic Society at its monthly meeting April 19, had the pleasure of viewing the magnificent collection of Confederate Stamps shown by George Walcott of New York. He began from the very earliest, an envelope with the card "Dealer in Negroes," following with the provisional handstamped envelopes, and the adhesive provisionals, both books full of wonders, and then the volume of 10c rose, in every conceivable form, all three plates in a remarkable state of completion. Several blocks, and an array of covers all in the pink of condition. He also exhibited his collection of 5c buffs of 1861. All are without peer. A delegation from the R. I. Society came up from Providence, including Judge Robert S. Emerson.

A dinner at Young's was tendered Mr. Walcott by the two Societies, which was a credit to this famous Hostelry. Mr. Walcott's courtesy, geniality and genuine philatelic enthusiasm will long linger as a cherished chapter in the life-book of the B.P.S.—B. L. DREW.

EMBARGO RAISED

The Treasury Dept. at Washington announces that its recent decision 3976 relating to the sale and distribution of stock transfer and future delivery stamps does not relate to the canceled stamps that "have served the purpose for which they were originally intended." Our columns are therefore opened to the advertising of these stamps.

EDITORIAL

The debate on the question of the philatelic propriety of commemorative issues dies down only to flare forth again, and we dare not ignore the opinions as expressed by correspondents who have been giving the subject real consideration, judging by the sage observations that they register with us. One of our oldest and most estimable readers says that while he deprecates the "facility with which these stamps are issued" because of his belief in the traditions of collecting as he absorbed them, he thinks that the opponents of the issues do not realize that times have changed. He says that "the old days" have departed and that new ideas prevail, which bespeak a welcome rather than a rebuff for new stamps, even though postal necessity does not bring them forth. Another reader, Mr. George E. Terbush, Chicago, says that one point in favor of the special issues is their "definite character" and that inasmuch as so much attention is given to small differences in U. S. stamps, with the resultant multiplication of varieties, the outright varieties as exemplified by the commemoratives should not be condemned.

From Dr. E. Diena, Rome, we have received a copy of the newspaper, Il Meridiano, Rome, dated April 11, 1927, containing an illustrated philatelic department, Rubrica Filatelica. Much space is devoted to an account of the second philatelic exhibition in Rome with a picture display, in part. The exhibition is divided into five classes, with the stamps of Italy, Italian States and Colonies, the prevailing theme. There are many rarities shown and it is evident that the display made an impression, thereby crediting the Italian Philatelic Society with an accomplishment of no mean order.

Through the courtesy of Mr. Harold C. Brooks, Marshall, Michigan, we have seen what evidently was a sample book of unused pictorial envelopes of the civil war period, carried by stationers for the purpose of securing orders that shows over one thousand varieties. While several of the imprints of the manufacturing firms are included in the book, there are others that are missing; and it is safe to say that there are some hundreds of designs that are not in this reference book, as it may be called today, when an increasing interest is being evinced in these envelopes whose historical suggestions, when used with stamps, are appealing varieties to a good many collectors.

On not a few occasions in the past have we been indebted to Mr. W. J. Stanton, Coronado, California, for cooperation of singularly interesting kind; and again, he comes to the front with a recital that is fascinating in its blending of philatelic and historical lore. Here is the document of absorbing interest: "Upon reading the 'Mystery of Stamp Plate' in the March 14th issue of the WEEKLY, referring to the discovery by Mr. August Dietz, Sr., of the electrolyte plate of the 'Two Cents' Confederate stamp, I recalled having read a decision of the United States Supreme Court, involving the question of contraband of war, referring to stamps, presses and plates of stamps of the Confederacy, seized as part of the cargo of a blockade runner. I do not know whether this decision has ever been printed outside of court reports, but it is interesting as stamp history. The 'Bermuda' was an English-owned ship, engaged in blockade-running during the Civil War, that was captured off Nassau, April 27, 1862, on a trip from Liverpool. She carried a miscellaneous cargo, a part of which consisted of munitions of war, and among other things, 26 boxes marked P.C. (Post Office Department?) filled with Confederate postage stamps, printing plates for postage stamps, presses, and 'com' plates with 400 dies for printing at the impression, 400 rebel postage stamps, also 200,000 letter envelopes and manyreams of fine white bank-note paper watermarked C.S.A. The 'Bermuda' was towed by her captor, the 'Merch' to Philadelphia, where she was libe and proceeded on as a prize in the United States District Court for the Eastern District of Pennsylvania and cargo sold. The decision of the court was appealed to the Supreme Court, the title of the case is 'The Bermuda'. It is found reported in full in the Wallace (70 U. S.) page 514. The report of the case covers 45 pages and very interesting as it contains copies of letters found on board, a list of the passengers, all of whom were prominent southerners and a description of the pictures found on board. When the vessel was captured, the captain, brother, by his orders, threw overboard two small boxes and a package, which he swore he understood to contain Confederate postage stamps. According to evidence, several of the passengers, artists and engravers engaged by Major Ficklin in Scotland. In a letter found on board, addressed to Mr. Morris, lithographer in Charleston, the writer, Straker, complains bitterly that the Confederate Commissioner (Major Ficklin) 'has been over here and has sent a lot of printers and engravers, presses and paraphernalia complete, which he obtained in Scotland' and after promising him order 'he then entrusted the order to another house.' This letter is dated February 12, 1862, and bears the head: Stationery Department, 80 Bishopgate Within, 26 Leadenhall Street, London. The report of the case states that the property was sold in Philadelphia under decree of the court. The date of the sale is not stated, but was probably held within three or four months after the order was made. Any one having access to the files of the old United States District Court in Philadelphia can write the concluding chapter by finding who purchased the plates and stamps at the sale. Files of the old Philadelphia papers of that date might throw much light on the matter. The litigation involved three cases consolidated and F

one, and the titles are Haigh, Claim-

Sand Frazer, Trenholm & Co., Claimtainly is a complete one and we shall venture any suppositions that may be difficult of proof. It is sufficient to say that Mr. Stanton's contribution to philaelic history is one of the utmost interest al of no little importance, in view of the possibility that it may dovetail into further details that may be forthcoming, as to the whereabouts of the plates mentioned.

In the foregoing description, mention is made of the reams of fine white bank-note paper watermarked C.S.A. that was the cargo of the Bermuda; and we remember that once before, this paper was under discussion. At the time, something was said to the effect that it was secured on a blockade-runner and it is known that specimens of the paper in question were to be had years ago, when little consideration was given to asides of the kind. In fact, we have before us a piece of the paper which bears the watermark, C.S.A. in double line capitals; rather, the sheet which measures sl and three-quarters by seven inches, shows the watermark twice in letters nearly seven-eighths inches high. No doubt, other collectors have retained these souvenirs, as they were deemed, at the time when they were available.

We regret that some of our readers in the flooded areas have been suffering from hardship and privation, and the report has been made to us that several stamp collections have been lost or ruined. One correspondent after describing his plight, says that it is mild in comparison to that of his friends in other towns. Philatelists are doing their share in subscribing funds for the relief of the flood sufferers, we know.

MELANGE:—

OUR attention has been called to the fact that a good way to mount covers is to use corner pieces, which can be obtained from any stationer at 10c per hundred. These have been mentioned before in the WEEKLY and in a letter to us, S. Chester Williams emphasizes their value.

CAN any of our subscribers send Irene Wilowski, 4243 Russell St., Detroit.
Mi.h., the present address of J. A. Wil-kowski, a stamp collector and dealer, formerly known in Detroit under the name of the McGraw Stamp Co.? Miss Wilowski is desirous of locating her tion desired.

ON April 28-30, the Penobscot Valley
Stamp Collectors Club of Bangor,
Me., held an exhibition in the Public Library. Stamps were shown by Prof.
George D. Chase and Prof. Mark Bailey of Orono, Walter B. Gould of Bangor and others. The exhibition was a marked success and was given much complimentary notice in the local press.

WE have received from the Metropolitan Stamp Co., 1482 Broadway, N.
Y. City, an 8-page pricelist entitled "The Metropolitan Bargain Counter." It can be secured for the asking.

IN the St. Louis Globe-Democrat Magazine for April 24, was a very fine page feature in which Henry A. Diamant and his collection were given good publicity.
The article bears the title "Henry A.
Diamant has been Collecting Stamps for Fifty-five Years." A Globe-Democrat staff writer is to be complimented upon the splendid feature. It will do philately a tremendous amount of good. Clippings from John D. McCullough and M.

THE second meeting of the Fort Worth (Tex.) Stamp Club was held April 15. A committee will report at the next meeting on the matter of by-laws and general organization. Election of officers will also be held at a later date. Tentative arrangements are being considered for the proper care of junior collectors in the club. Dr. F. Merrill, a prominent dentist of Fort Worth, exhibited one album from his cover collection. Dr. Merrill has been collecting since 1867, and this album contained many used copies of the famous Mulready envelopes of Great Britain with the early dates of their use. It also contained a number of early dated covers of the penny black and other English stamps appearing immediately thereafter.

THE Penobscot Valley Stamp Club of Bangor, Maine, held an exhibition in the Bangor Public Library, April 28, 29 and 30. A practically complete exhibit of U. S., including N. Y., St. Louis and Providence postmasters, together with ten frames of foreign stamps were shown. Old and air flown covers attracted considerable interest. The Bangor Club is prospering with a membership of forty-eight, and it is hoped to organize a junior branch.—W. B.
O'CONNOR.

ON April 21, a first contract air mail service became effective between leveland and Pittsburgh with a stop at Youngstown, O. Covers with markings of all three cities are at hand from Raymond V. Bahr, Albert E. Gorham and Harry A. Truby. Thanks for favors.

A. W. WHITTEN calls our attention to the recent stamp exhibition at Kingston, Jamaica. Several U. S. col-

WHAT do you think of a stamp club at the top of the world. A few nights ago with the Northern Lights flashing their beautiful colors across the sky and the thermometer reading around 10° below, a small party of stamp col-formed the most northern stamp club in the world, the "Arctic Philatelic Society."

JOHN N. LUFF EXHIBITS

We are informed by Mr. H. M. Kon-wiser that the exhibition of portions of the remarkable reference collection of Mr. Luff at the Collectors Club on April 20, 1927, made a profound impression. We do not wonder at this, because the studious inclinations of our doyen of philately in this country would be given free rein in a collection of the kind. A display by Mr. Luff is a card for any society and we suppose that as a director of the Collectors Club he wanted to help President Lindquist in his desire to make his administration a brilliant one.
The printed material was inserted in the albums much in the manner that stamps

Stamp News for the Juniors

Is there anything you want to know about stamps or stamp collecting? If so, write the editor. What would you like to see in this department? We have no way of knowing unless you tell us. Mr. Senior Collector, can't you give the boy collector about 50 words of encouragement along practical lines? Address your letter to the Beverly office.

Juniors—Please Note

During the absence of the Managing Editor in Europe, this page will be cared for by Editor Charles E. Severn, 713 Oxford Bldg., Chicago, Ill. He will render our Juniors any assistance that may be desired.

Junior Gossip

—Abraham Zebine, 6109 Wash. av. Phila., Pa., would like to trade U. S. stamps for Mexicans. Abe, who is 12 years old, sends us a bit of verse, and we are sorry that we are unable to use it.

—Peter Strand (13) sends us a bit of verse, which we are not able to use, but we appreciate his courtesy in sending it in. He asks us two or three questions which will be answered in due season.

—We are indebted to Harry Katz, president of the Beverly, N. J., Stamp Club, for two clippings. We are not able to use them, but we appreciate the courtesy.

—The Triangle Stamp Club has just been organized by some Juniors in Davenport, Iowa. Any local collector desiring further information should communicate with the president, John Killian Jr., 417 E. 12 St.

—On Tuesday, May 3, the annual open night of the East Orange (N. J.) High School occurred. The stamp club connected with the school gave a stamp exhibit in the library. We are indebted to George Pryor Enke Jr. for this information.

—F.B.M.—In the case mentioned by you, we feel that you are amply warranted in selecting stamps to the value of 17c from the approval selection sent you and returning the balance by registered mail.

—John Killian Jr., 417 E. 12 St., Davenport, Iowa, would like to correspond with any Juniors who would like to exchange stamps. He sends us a little essay on Bavaria, which we are not able to use, but we thank him for his courtesy.

Origin of Countries' Names

(Insert in Your Album)

Marshall Islands, named after Captain Marshall, who, with Captain Gilbert, explored them in 1788.

Mesopotamia.—It is a Greek translation of a native Semetic dialect. Two thousand years B. C. the territory was called Naharim, or Naharin. The plural of masculine nouns in such a dialect is rendered either way. Seraphim, or Seraphin, etc., is used by us. In the Bible the country is spoken of as "Aram-Naharaim," from Nahar = "water," or "river."

Chahi

The value in which most of the Persian stamps issued since 1885 are expressed. Prior to that date the coin was spelled "shahi," this being the English spelling, transliterated from the Persian. "Chahi" is the French spelling to accompany the French inscriptions. A chahi is the twentieth part of a kran and is worth about 1/2c in American money.

The Air Mail

(E. K. Emerson in N. Y. "Times").
We have flouted the dragon of Distance
And broken the shackles of Space.
We have challenged the crime of the plunderer, Time,
And hurled his defeat in his face.
We have elbowed the clouds of the dawning
And startled the wondering moon
With the arrowy speed of our cavalry's breed—
The foals of a driven typhoon.

We have skirted the storm chieftain's ambush
And breasted his volleys of sleet.
We have hurdled the peaks where he rages and shrieks
From raw rim to rocky retreat.

Alone—and yet ever attended—
We travel through peril and stress.
For we know as we ride that we have at our side
The shades of the Pony Express.

Municipal Service Stamps

The Kingdom of Wurtemberg furnishes us with a class of labels unknown elsewhere, called Municipal Service stamps. These labels are Scott's type O1 which are mixed up with the ordinary official stamps. These stamps are supplied by the post-office to municipalities for use on their official correspondence. The 5pf stamps are for use on letters irrespective of weight, while the 10pf are for use on parcels and money orders. The inscription on the diamond-shaped band in the centre of these stamps—"Porto Pfligtige dienst sache"—means "Service matter liable to Postage."

Casa da Moeda.—A watermark on the paper used for Brazil stamps since 1919. It is Portuguese for the "Mint" where the stamps are manufactured.

Castellorizo.—A small island in the Mediterranean Sea off the coast of Minor with a population principally Greeks and occupied by the French as a naval base Dec. 28, 1915. Ordinarily French Levant stamps from the French postal agency at Rhodes were used.

til June, 1920, when in quick succession three issues appeared consisting of French and French Levant stamps overprinted (a) B. N. F. CASTELLORIZO (b) O. N. F. CASTELLORIZO (c) O. F. CASTELLORIZO. The set appeared Aug., 1920, and soon after the French evacuated the island, where under the terms of the Versailles Treaty was transferred from Turkey to Italy.

Centenario Dantes A. D. MCMX.—September 15, 1921, Italy issued a set of three stamps to commemorate the sixtieth anniversary of the death of the greatest poet, Dante Alighieri. The values are 15, 25 and 40c and they bear the above inscription.

Paddie: "Dry, mon; they're parched. I've just had a letter from Mike, and a postage stamp was stuck on with a pin."

NORTH AMERICAN PHILATELIC YEAR BOOK

The stage has been set for some time to the appearance of Mr. William Butler's annual and high expectations have been realized among those who have been waiting the entry of the book. Without cavocation, it is to be said that the volume of one hundred and sixty pages carries great praise and it really is an exceptional production. Mr. Butler is well fortified with faith in philately to make the venture on the scale that he has and we wish him good returns in a material way. Perhaps the chief value of kind lies in the Directory of North American Collectors, including Central America and Hawaii, that was compiled by Mr. Butler, as we have the idea that he is as careful in the selection of names as addresses. There is nothing so stale and unprofitless as a directory that is comprised of obsolete addresses and names and is hopelessly. There are lists of stamp dealers in America and of the philatelic societies here and a feature is the 1927 catalogue of Canadian Precancelled Postage Stamps, by Frank S. Thompson, F.R.P.S.L., third edition. The value of this list, which is illustrated, is evident and we have heretofore had occasion to commend this catalogue when it appeared separately. The reading content is admirably chosen and of a character in keeping with a book whose use will extend over a period of time. Experienced writers submit their findings on subjects that are not of transient interest merely and the names of the writers make an imposing list; and while it is true that there is a concentration of attention on the issues of Canada, there is no other matter that engages the mind. Attention must be made of "Who's Who in North American Philately," which is a book that is well begun and if continued annually under the editorship of Mr. Butler, it will develop into a directory that will meet a limited demand, at least. All in all, the contents are substantial and show that the editor approached his duties with the intention of producing the best material to be had; and that he has succeeded is proved by the finished product, the book itself, which is copyrighted in both Canada and the United States. The North American Philatelic Year Book, compiled by William Butler, 1927 edition; published by Stamp Herald Publishing Co., Kitchener, Ontario, Canada: cloth bound, 1.50; paper covers, $1.00.

IRISH FREE STATE

The provisional issues of the Irish Free State are undoubtedly the "best buy" for collectors at the present time. London auction prices are rising from day to day and stocks are very hard to find.

We have been large buyers of Irish since the first stamps were issued and are, in consequence, able to supply at very reasonable prices.

Want lists, or requests for approvals, will receive our usual prompt attention.

DOMINICAN REPUBLIC

By HERMANN FOCKE, 82 Beaver St., N. Y. City.

In the latter part of 1910 there appeared in this Republic two postage stamps, which up to this day have not found their place in the catalogues, although they deserve their cognizance by collectors as much as any other regular issue, because they are distinct varieties of two other similar stamps issued in 1902.

I refer to the 50 centavos and 1 peso values in Scott's type A-18, which for lack of any further information, I will call counterfeits of the same values catalogued under Nos. 126 and 127.

Although the colours are similar to those of the originals, the entire appearance is so different that they can be very easily distinguished, when placed next to each other, in as much as the originals are in a clear and distinct print, whereas the counterfeits are blurred, or one might say "wishy-washy."

Other distinctive variations are:

| | Originals | Counterfeits |
|--|--|--|
| The rosettes in the upper two corners: | have eight distinct rays around a dot in the centre. | the rays are generally connected, particularly in the left rosette, forming 4 small triangles converging toward centre. |
| The lettering of the words Republica Dominicana: | is clear and uniform. | is very uneven, the R and E being generally connected at the base. |
| The words Dios, Patria Libertad in the ribbon at bottom: | are uniform and clear. | are quite uneven and blurred, the S in Dios and P in Patria are larger than the other letters, and the L and I in Libertad generally connected at the base, forming a U. |
| The 2 circles to left and right of Dominicana: | are even and round. | are broken and distorted. |

The perforation although the same as that of the originals, viz., 14 is not so clearly cut and quite irregular, thus the invariably perfect centering prevalent in the originals of entire issue is lamentably absent on these reprints, a well centred copy being a great exception.

These two counterfeits were in general use over the entire Republic until 1914, but nobody seems to know where they came from, although they appear to be of local origin, as the paper is of the same texture as that of the succeeding local issues from 1915 on.

1925-1926U. S. Provisional 1 1/2c Envelopes

The Scott Company list thirty-three varieties of the 1 1/2c Provisional envelopes and furnish spaces for these in either their main or provisional albums. Each and every variety that they list is separate and distinct, and does not depend upon a watermark, a die or a size for its difference.

At the present time, I can furnish a complete set as listed, entire and unused, at a special price of $150.00. The purchase of such a set will enable the collector to complete his collection of all varieties recognized to date.

If you are looking for the minor die varieties and sizes, I can also furnish these. For those who do not care for the more expensive envelopes in the series, I offer the following, all listed in the catalogue:

1 1/2c PROVISIONAL ENVELOPES

33 varieties complete$150.00
 22 varieties complete 10.00
 17 varieties complete 4.00
 11 varieties complete 1.50

If the above were purchased separately, prices would range from twenty to forty percent more.

ERROR 3c RED ON AMBER

The rarest 20th century envelope is Scott's #2667b, 3c red on amber. Less than fifty are known and the variety catalogues at $50.00. I can furnish a superb entire copy at $30.00.

If you are looking for any of the other 20th century envelopes, I am quite likely to have them on hand. As I do not endeavor to stock envelopes, I cannot furnish any of the earlier ones.

The chronicle of United States is edited by PHILIP H. WARD, JR., Box 4216, Germantown, Phila., Pa., who will also be pleased to pass on oddities and varieties of all U. S. stamps from 1900 to date. The foreign chronicle is edited by PERCY C. SMITH, 75 Electric Ave., West Somerville, Mass. Correspondents will please be careful to send their matter to the right address.

United StatesWashington Notes

The Postmaster General has decided to comply with the request of the Governor of New York, also other interested persons and societies, and will issue a stamp to commemorate the Battle of Fort Stanwix, at which time it is said the Stars and Stripes was unfurled in the face of the enemy for the first time. The stamp will undoubtedly be of a 2c denomination and consequently will be printed in red. It is thought that this will be issued along with the variety to commemorate the Battle of Bennington in the early part of August. Announcements will be made later as to where the stamps will first be placed on sale.

The Bureau of Engraving and Printing have changed over practically all of their perforating machines for use in connection with the perforating of the rotary print sheets, and all sheets from now on will receive the new perforation. The 1c and 8c have already been issued with the new perforation, 11x10 1/2, in precancelled condition.

The 10c special delivery stamp is to be made upon the rotary press and a special perforating machine has been installed to perforate this new variety. I cannot state at this time as to whether the 15c and 20c special delivery will appear in this form, but as the demand is not extensive it is quite likely that they will continue to print them via the flat plate presses. If there is an unusual demand for the 10c air mail, there is a possibility of this variety being printed on the rotary press, but as it would necessitate a new perforating machine and as such machines cost real money, the demand would necessarily have to be of sufficient size to warrant the change.

1851, 3c Double Print

In Scott's Monthly Journal for April, Mr. John N. Luff reports the finding of the 1851, 3c doubly printed. The variety which he describes is in used condition.

Air Mail Notes

On Thursday, April 21st, contract air mail route No. 11, between Pittsburgh and Cleveland via McKeesport and Youngstown, was inaugurated. As customary, each of these four cities used the large cartwheel contract air mail cancellation on first day covers. Pittsburgh applied the cancellation in magenta and in addition used a postmark outlined in the shape of the State of Pennsylvania and reading within three lines, "Pittsburgh Workshop of the World."

Cleveland applied their postmarks in a blue-black; Youngstown in magenta; and McKeesport in a purple. In addition to the contract air mail cancellation, Pittsburgh, Cleveland and Youngstown used the normal canceller. All covers are backstamped.

Pittsburgh and McKeesport covers are dated at 2 o'clock; Cleveland at 12 o'clock; and Youngstown at 12.30 P. M.

I wish to thank Mr. Orville C. Rittenhouse for his thoughtfulness in sending a cover from McKeesport.

Mail in Flood District

Mr. C. C. Bacon kindly sends several clippings from the South, relative to the carrying of mail in the flood districts. The Memphis Press-Scimitar of April 23rd tells us that two aeroplanes daily are operating between Memphis and Little Rock, carrying mail over territory where the floods have swept away the railroad tracks and made motor travel impossible. The first mail from Little Rock in four days arrived at Memphis on Thursday, April 21st, and the plane bringing the mail carried about 35,000 letters.

Why Don't You Take Larger Space?

So many collectors ask me this question because I only use about 2 inches of space. Now the reason is if I did use 3 times the space, I would have to add expense to value of my stamps.

I don't take collectors long to find who has the goods they are looking for. I have made a specialty of U. S. Conf. A. for ten years. I carry a nice line of stamps, blocks and covers in these. Since Jan. 1st I have sold 30 copies of 1847 U. S. and have plenty left. Every in U. S. Conf. and B. N. A. of modern priced specimens, and many of rarities.

Mr. Walter Bruggmann advises the sheet of fifty stamps of the 20c Legation series has been located in an emergency condition, and that the cover is in sepia-brown instead of the normal black. He states that this one sheet printed with the ink of the 18c stamp through error and that it was put to be destroyed. The sheet, however, are told, was mixed with other fine stamps and was sent to a post office in the province of Pampanga. At this office the sheet was cut up and sold the regular way. While there has been a hunt for the stamp that has been possibly widely distributed, Mr. Bruggmann writes that but seven so far have been located. I have not seen the variety and know nothing further than the information given.

CANADA.—In some of the philatelic journals it has been mentioned that further printing of the 2c on 3c stamp is likely, but we are able to contradict this, as we have received an official letter from the Post Office Department at Ottawa, informing us that it is not the intention of the Department to attempt a surcharge any further 3c stamps, as

THE PERFECT COLLECTION

CHARLES SIDNEY THOMPSON.

In the Journal of the American Philatelic Society one might have read recently a statement about as follows: "Why should I collect foreign stamps when I can't even complete my U. S.?"

It should be the most obvious thing in philately that it is an impossibility to complete any country except a few like the Ionian Islands, Maldives, and such dwarfs and brownies. A country having any philatelic pretensions is not to be completed by anyone with any reasonable amount of ease, even if the collector has unlimited means to obtain his desires, for the simple reason that many things of comparatively low catalog price are not readily obtainable, and require long chasing to capture.

An instance of this is afforded by the "Three Black Cretes," numbers 32, 33 and 34 of the catalog. One of these stamps lists $25 and two of them list $20 each. Surely one should be able to make connections with stamps that list merely $20 by the simple expedient of getting out on Nassau Street, let us say, and wig-wagging with a $20 bill, always providing, of course, that someone didn't run over him with a taxi, make a colander of him with an automatic, or sell him a couple of buckets of water instead.

As a matter of plain, unacquainted, unpolished, and unupholstered fact, such a fatuous proceeding would produce no results. The mere fact of sending want lists to various firms of greater or less prominence produces just about the same lack of results, because these $20 and $25 items are not kept in stock but turned over as fast as it is possible to get them—and the dealers are no more fortunate in getting them than the collectors.

For a dozen years the writer has searched assiduously for the three stamps above mentioned, and for ten of those twelve years he believed that genuine copies did not exist, for the reason that all alleged specimens available for examination in America turned out to be counterfeit, and it was not until two years ago that I succeeded in obtaining genuine copies of Nos. 32 and 34. No. 33 is still A.W.O.L. and seems likely to remain so.

Now, Crete is a small country, both geographically and philatelically, yet I have spent a dozen years and have not succeeded in getting a complete collection. The gentleman who complained that he couldn't complete his U. S. might have considered for a moment and added "I couldn't complete my U. S. even if I were a multimillionaire." And then he could add "If I live long enough I may be able to buy 'em from Artie's executors, and they'll sell 'em cheap because the money will be all velvet."

Seriously, there is no reason why anyone, even a multimillionaire, should attempt to complete U. S. (which simply cannot be done), or anything else. The way to philatelic pleasure does not lead across a bridge that is composed of complete spans, one-piece girders, or whatever it is they make a one-piece bridge of. Extreme specialization on one country is going to result inevitably in making that kind of a collector a perfect bore unless he exercises the most remarkable self restraint, and he is going to be perfectly bored if he does.

This being the case, it is time that someone pointed the way to the making of a real general collection, one that will give joy not only to the possessor thereof, but to his friends as well, whether collectors or no. And the proper kind of a general collection will enhance in value, as well, so that there need be no complaint that the financial side of the proposition, which bulks entirely too large, anyway, has not been given proper consideration.

The proper way to make a perfect general collection is to invest the first two dollars in a catalog, and the next whatever-you-are-able-to-spend in a good blank album. You won't need the album for some time, as your first business will be to become reasonably familiar with the catalog, and when you have done that quite a little time will have passed into the domain of yesterday. There are a lot of people who think they are familiar with the catalog—a lot of them are dealers, too, but it takes time and work to actually know even a fair amount of what is between the covers of a book of 1600 pages, all of which are filled with quotations. Don't delude yourself that you are going to become familiar with that much-maligned but necessary book under three or four months; you've got to do your Freshman work somewhere, and the catalog is where you do it. When you have a fair realization of the number of countries involved, and their names (last names will do) you are in a position to know how large a blank album you want to buy. And buy a good one while you are at it.

But you are not going to stick any stamps in it for a while. There is no reason why you should destroy or mar a lot of good blank pages while you are learning to arrange stamps. The way to do that is to use blank sheets of writing paper and bits of Bristol board, preferably colored, so that you teach yourself how to arrange a set of stamps symmetrically. And don't forget that the place that you start arranging a set of stamps is the exact middle of the page. If you remember this injunction, and arrange your stamps symmetrically, right and left, top and bottom, your album will not be twice as thick at the top as at the bottom when you get it filled, but the bulge, if any, will be exactly in the centre of the covers and will slope away equally toward the corners.

Having become reasonably proficient in arranging dummy stamps on some waste sheets, it is time to begin utilizing your knowledge of the various countries by purchasing complete sets of certain issues which you have selected, from the countries you favor.

Don't let anyone persuade you to buy a large packet with which to start: this is a delusion and a snare unless you want to collect hit-and-miss, and store up a lot of eventual grief for yourself. Don't let anyone sell you part of a set unless it is the part of it that leads up to the one or two high values. And when you have your complete set of Mesopotamian, let us say, park it on one page of your blank album, and spread it out sufficiently so that it covers the page. Don't feel sad if you have to put the stamps a couple of inches apart; they are individuals, and a proper amount of spacing is necessary to a real appreciation of their individual merits. Having got this set of stamps properly allocated, you will acquire a large amount of satisfaction by consulting your encyclopaedia or a book of travel dealing with the country, so that you come into the possession of a few facts which you can write up on a blank sheet and insert in your album with the stamps. This will take some time, of course, and a lot of people will stoutly maintain that this is work, while collecting should be pleasure. Very true, but pleasure is invariably the result of labor, either our own or that of some other person. We can't get pleasure for nothing any more than anything else, and the man who spends a little time and work on writing up his collection is going to enjoy it much more, and his collection will become more valuable, while it will not cost so much to make it, because he will not buy so many stamps. Quality is what counts, not mattress filling.

Having acquired and written up one set of stamps, get another from some other country—any country. But get it complete, and write it up. Preferably one should select the more striking sets, as it is an irrefutable mathematical certainty that these are the ones which will increase in value most rapidly. Probably not in every case, but on the average, undoubtedly. And the reason for the whole set is that every set invariably contains something which turns out to be the "good one," or perhaps several of them. In recent years the "good ones" have more often than not been the highest values in the B. C. sets, and as these sets are the most expensive to buy, we need mention no others.

There is a sound psychological reason for purchasing stamps in complete sets: it eliminates worry and looking around for missing numbers and the attendant dissipation of energy and waste of time.

In order to make a general collection consisting of complete sets only, one should bear in mind that one set or two sets from a country should be enough. These will represent the spirit and traditions of the land from which they come, and as such will hold the interest and attention of a non-collecting friend when a hit-and-run layout of one here and another one there, spread all over the pages of an album with a lot of barren desert space between would merely bore him. Therefore, purchase the most striking or picturesque series of stamps which you can afford and preferably unused. We hear a lot of argument about "postally used being the only real postage stamps" and similar bally-hoo, but when you park a postmark on a stamp whose face value is $5, you fracture $5 into so many fragments that Humpty Dumpty would look like a hard-boiled door-knob instead of an omelet. Furthermore, when stamps are unused they show all parts of the design perfectly, and we have to admit that the design is what makes the stamp. It may cost more, and again it may cost less to get unused stamps, but in any case they always have their face value, and they have their pristine beauty unmarred by disfiguring obliterations, and a large ink smudge never looks well on the nose of a handsome stenographer, anyhow. So buy 'em unused if you can possibly afford it: the stamps, we mean.

If the writer were to make a collection of this kind (and he has made several of them for other people) he'd commence with a couple of pages of U. S. commemoratives. For instance, the Louisiana Purchase, Pan - American, Jamestown, Alaska, Hudson, Panama (one perfora-

ALL-AMERICA AIRCRAFT

In connection with the All-America Aircraft Display at Bolling Field, Washington, the Post Office Department provided a rectangular special cachet inscribed "ALL AMERICA AIRCRAFT DISPLAY, BOLLING FIELD P O SUB STATION, WASHINGTON, D. C." This was applied to all first class mail during the five day period, May 2-5.

This is not a first flight cancellation as there was no air mail flight from Bolling Field, but covers bearing it will have special interest because of their connection with the "All-America" exhibition, and because of their official status.

SPECIAL OFFER.—I will supply a Sesqui envelope, mailed at Bolling Field and stamped with the "All-America" cancellation, FREE with a year's subscription to my monthly circular, "Washington Stamp News," at 50c. I have a few air mail covers, with the special cancellation, mailed at Bolling Field and flown from New York to Dallas, which I offer at 50c each. Send a dollar and get both covers and the circular for a year.

(12), and the five recent centenary issues. None of these stamps catalog for a dollar, but they certainly represent the best work of our engravers and printers and recall the most important events in our history, so that they amply repay our ideals and abilities in stamps. Furthermore, it is certain that most people who are non-philatelists will be surprised to see them, for most of these issues are quite unknown to the general public.

Countries like Aitutaki, Niue, and Fathyn should be represented by the recent pictorial sets, all of which have been written up in this journal. Alaouiti (or better Alawiya) should be shown in the pictorial sets, which present a vast wealth of historical and archaeological subjects, as do the similar sets of Lebanon and Syria.

The Albanian pictorial set of 1922 is rather a gallery of history, art, and architecture, and it does not require any quality as a prophet to know that this set is going up and higher. The 1925 air stamps would make a fine second set for an Albanian display.

Argentina might be shown with Nos. 9 and 11, 141, 176, 247, 280 to 282, 283 to 289 and 357. All are low in price and high in interest, and avoid entirely the vast desert area of recent watermarks.

The quaint crudities of Armenia and Azerbaijan would make a couple of interesting pages and require a lot of delivery for information. A complete set of the issues of Ascension would just about fill a page and the first issue may still be had at a fair price, but is rising rapidly.

There are many beautiful sets of Austria which are to be had at low prices, among them some of the most beautiful and most interesting of stamps. They appeal to musicians, architects, artists, soldiers, archaeologists, philologists — certainly a collector can find one or two sets that will strike his fancy.

Try Bosnia for the picture complex. Who is there who can resist the beauties of the 1906 and 1910 issues? Not even the man who raves about the classics and who buys pictorials "for my little boy." The wonderful Bosnia views sell themselves to everyone.

Among these minor varieties are:

This is a mere suggestion in sets, a trifling abrasion of the surface of a vast reservoir of wonderful issues. Any man can find them for himself and make a collection after his own desires and specifications, but he must keep firmly to the idea of completing each piece of work as he takes it up—one set at a time, all of it, and no less. The day has gone by when a general collection in the old sense can make any appeal even to its owner unless he is supplied with vast quantities of both time and money. And it is nuggets to nuts that the old-line general collector, with no matter how much time and money, would give up his aimless shooting if he ever saw a real, modern, general collection, consisting of perfect mint complete sets, written up, and properly arranged in a modern blank album.

A collection such as this does not depend on extremely valuable stamps to produce extreme interest. It compels and holds interest because of its inherent possibilities in an educational and recreational way, and its pecuniary value is a secondary consideration, though absolutely sure of enhancement. It is safe to say that no other form of collecting is so economical and satisfying. No other will provide such large returns in information and pleasure, and eventually in value.

"POSTZEGELS en ALBUMS"

Here we have a little work in Dutch, by J. C. auf Der Heide, Hilversum, Holland, on postage stamps in albums that has a practical value inasmuch as it treats of the important consideration of how to present stamps to advantage. It is useless to deny that the question of albums is a problem that puzzles many collectors and that any advice on it is heard with attention. In this pamphlet a sort of review is made of the stamp albums of the well-known publishers and the critical commentary given is of benefit to the one who knows enough Dutch to understand the text. However, there are numerous illustrations that speak a universal language, so to say, and a study of them may give ideas that could be given an individual application. Published by: J. C. auf Der Heide, Hilversum, Amsterdam, Holland.

PHILIPPINES COMMEMORATIVES

By N. C. COMFORT.

We noted in your chronicle of the legislative building commemorative of the Philippines that the quantities given, although reported to you perhaps in good faith, should be as per copy of certificate, which I am sending you herewith. The original certificate was sold at the Post Office for a consideration, so I have just copied the same for your information.

It might be stated that these stamps were placed on sale at practically every post office in the Philippine Islands, but all the remainders were returned to the central bureau at Manila at the end of February, in accordance with the circular of the Director of Posts. The two-centavo and the one-peso values were sold out before the close of January; the other values are still on sale at the Manila office, although I have learned that the quantity on hand is extremely limited. The following figures are official:—

"To commemorate the completion of the new building for the Philippine Legislature, the Bureau of Posts has issued a new set of postage stamps of the denominations and quantities as follows:

| Denomination | Quantity | (Surcharged "OFFICIAL") | Denomination | Quantity |
|--------------|----------|-------------------------|--------------|----------|
| 2 centavos | 502,550 | | 2 centavos | 90,500 |
| 4 " | 304,400 | | 4 " | 90,450 |
| 16 " | 203,750 | | 16 " | 70,000 |
| 18 " | 103,950 | | 18 " | 70,250 |
| 20 " | 103,450 | | | |
| 24 " | 103,350 | | | |
| 1 peso | 11,050 | | | |

The stamps were placed on sale in the Manila Post Office and in all principal post offices in the Philippine Islands, beginning December 20, 1926. Soon after the stamps were placed on sale, the original drawings, pattern zinc plates for originals, and copper plates line etchings for the background and center of the stamps together with all the defective printed and perforated stamps and all press proofs, after carefully checked, were destroyed by Mr. Alejandro Garay, Superintendent of Work, Bureau of Printing, in the presence of Mr. J. Esquillo, Bureau of Audits; Mr. Ricardo R. Montezon, Post Office Inspector; and Mr. Charles S. Banks, President, Philippine Philatelic Association."

A FINE OPPORTUNITY occurs to obtain choice early BRITISH COLONIAL STAMPS in superb condition. They can be selected from at under 1/2 catalogue. Also EDWARDIAN AND GEORGIAN issues, either mint or superb used, mostly at 1/2 catalogue. Approval, references.

COLONIAL NOTES

By "CALABAR."

Used Colonials.—An article in the WEEKLY some little time ago on modern used British Colonials was of much interest, the more so as contributions of a similar nature are surprisingly few. The relative values of used and mint stamps, in the case of the majority of Colonies, are well worked out by the writer and represent fairly accurately present market values. With several Colonies, however, the scarcity of used copies is, I think, rather underestimated, notably Ascension, Gambia, etc. Both issues of the former Colony are exceedingly scarce used, by far the greater number of letters passing through the local P. O. being sent in from abroad and postmarked "by request of addressee." And the number of letters so handled, since September, 1924—the date of issue of the current series,—is exceedingly small in comparison to the quantities of mint stamps held at present by dealers and collectors. As time goes by, more used copies will, of course, make their appearance on the market, but—and here is the significant point—the increase in the numbers of mint stamps will surely be at least as great, if not greater. This is true of the current issues of all of the out-of-the-way Colonies, e.g., Tonga, St. Helena, Falkland Ids., etc., etc. Dealers are continually re-stocking with fresh supplies, which tends to offset the growing quantities of used copies.

With reference to Gambia. The writer observes that there is little variation between used and mint, with one or two exceptions (presumably the 4s small type script and the two scarce 5s Georges). This is a rather surprising observation, used copies (of the King's Head issues) being generally placed in the "hard to get" class, on a par with, say, the Solomon Ids., the Gilberts, etc.). By reason of this, Gambia has long held a distinctive position amongst the West African Colonies, the majority of whose issues are quite common used. The lower values, perhaps, are worth about the same mint or used, but taking the duties over 3d, one may safely say that modern Gambia stamps are much more desirable in used condition.

Any attempt at evaluating used Colonials must, of course, take into consideration a somewhat neglected though not unimportant factor, viz., the postmark. Most of the "covers" offered are postmarked with the G. P. O. cancellation (e.g., Roadtown, Virgin Ids.) and hence are less desirable than covers which have passed through a minor Office (e.g., Virgin Gorda). Thus, the Port Stanley pmk. (Falkland Ids.) is much commoner than either the Fox Bay or So. Georgia obliterations,—the latter being very rarely met with. Likewise, the Georgetown (Grand Cayman) pmk. is more frequently encountered than are the pmks. of the other two Offices, viz., Little Cayman and Cayman Brac. In connexion with the West Indian Colonies, it is interesting to note that at one time three different sets of stamps were available for postal use in the tiny Colony of Barbuda. Between June, 1922 and 1924 (approximately) the provisionals, as well as various current Antigua and Leeward Ids. stamps, were employed on letters passing through the local P. O.

The existence of a Federation makes two sets of stamps available (most of the time) in each of the West Indian Colonies (Antigua, Dominica, Montserrat, St. Kitts, and the Virgin Ids.). A specialized collection of one of these Colonies would thus include copies of the Leeward series used that particular Colony. The Leeward Id. Colonies, judging by the various articles on the stamps of these islands, previous issues, of the WEEKLY, most interesting group for the postal specialist.

Dominica.—At the time of writing (late March) the scarce 3s, with the CA wmk., is changing hands for around $2.50; and considering the popularity of the West Indian Colonies, both here and abroad, a further rise may be looked for shortly. As far as I know, numbers sued are still unknown (i.e., no figures have yet appeared in print), but judging by the usual indications, I should place the figure somewhere in the neighborhood of 8,000 or 9,000.

The 5s old CA (same series) is obsolete, and whilst being advertised as "scarce," "rare," etc., no very extraordinary rise seems likely.

The foreign postage rate, by the way, is down once more to 2 1/2d, so that change in the colors of this and the duty will probably be made within the near future.

CANADA TO PRINT CUBAN STAMPS

(Clipping from E. H. Peterson.)

The Canadian Banknote Company, Ottawa, have been awarded, by the Postalmaster-General of Cuba, the contract for printing 3,000,000 special stamps for the Cuban Government. The stamps are a special issue for the celebration to be held in the island on May 20, 21 and 22 this year, commemorating the 25th anniversary of Cuban independence. The stamps, which will be of 25-cents denomination, will be printed in several colors having the Cuban coat-of-arms in the centre in natural colors.

The "Henry Schinzel" Collection OF 19th Century Stamps

This fine collection is being entirely re-arranged in my new approval books and re-priced at rates that will effect quick sales.

The following books are now ready, and can be sent to serious collectors who wish to purchase choice stamps at reasonable rates. In order to give some indication of the class of stamps in each book, I add the value.

In many of the British Colonies there are good and medium 20th Century stamps. As I do not hold these as an investment for my funds, I have priced them all at half Scott's catalogue and less to clear them out.

CHARLES J. PHILLIPS

SPECIALIST IN POSTAL ISSUES BEFORE 1880.

10 WEST 86TH STREET

he non-collector learns that a special sale is usually on sale but a short time later that the stamps are bound to go up in value. So he takes the first plunge and is caught for the rest of his life. Even a Government failure has been known to have far reaching results in making converts to the cult. The withdrawal of a series criticized as being inferior in design, as unsatisfactory in color, or badly printed, or with any other fault, results inevitably in a rapid appreciation in the value of the surviving specimens and a rush for them on the part of new as well as old enthusiasts. Or in the last resort the great virtue of scarcity, so far as the stamp collector is concerned. Rarity, thou wondrous thing, what art thou, which, being nothing, art everything?—N. Y. Sun.

The guest of honor was Charles J. Phillips of New York who entertained with reminiscences of his collecting and dealing activities. Pres. William A. Johnson was toastmaster and read a number of real and "phony" messages of regrets.

THE LEADING AUCTION HOUSE OF THE ENTIRE WEST
C. S. WATSON CO., INC., 610 So. Broadway, Los Angeles, Cal.

FIVE YEAR HONOR CLUB

Holcomb York, Cummington, Mass.
J. W. Coffin, Cristobal, Canal Zone.

We are very pleased to enter as a member of our Honor Club, Holcomb York, manager of the Berkshire Exchange, Cummington, Mass. Mr. York has been the prime mover in producing the American Catalog of Airmail and First Day Covers. We can say with pleasure that this catalog is a very fine production and a credit to the publisher. Any collector interested in airmail first day covers will find it profitable to send for this book, the price of which is $1.00.

Mr. Coffin sends his $5 for enrollment so as to receive a personal copy for the coming five years, remarking he has "been reading it at my club." Substantive evidence of his interest in our paper.

THE MANAGING EDITOR.

MELANGE:—

R. HUSSEY has sent us a copy of the Easter number of the S. P. A. "hatterbox," issued by the Sales Department of that organization. It is a substantial looking publication, carries a goodly lot of advertising, and a sample copy can no doubt be obtained by writing to 3457 Dury Av., Cincinnati, O.

POSTCARD greetings are at hand from Mr. and Mrs. Rud. Dinnebier who under date of April 14, wrote us from Niems, Czecho-Slovakia. Mr. Dinnebier sends Easter well wishes from his "old home town" and writes that new mail stamps will soon be issued.

OUR attention has been called to the fact that John J. Wentzel, R. 2, Emholde, Pa., is a worthy shut-in and a lover of stamps is suggested. It is necessary for him to lie flat on his back and he has the use of only his hands and feet. We hope that a goodly number of our subscribers will favor Mr. Wentzel with some stamps for his collection.

A STAMP club has been formed by employees of the Chase National Bank, New York City. This is indeed a novel institution and we hope to hear of any more of this kind. We are indebted to George Stotz Jr., for this information and in the letter he enclosed two new annual subscriptions to the WEEKLY.

READING, PA., has a new stamp club in St. Andrew's Reformed Church. William Bauer is the president and Robert Buck, secretary and treasurer. The club is under the personal supervision of Rev. Charles E. Roth, under whose guidance they are planning a number of programs.

WE have received from M. P. Ganey a clipping from the Montgomery News of Hillsboro, Ill., which gives an interesting story of the philatelic activities of Rev. Charles Oppenheim, pastor of St. Raymond's Catholic Church at Alton, Ill. It is a nice bit of publicity.

In our last issue we made reference to a fine article which appeared in a St. Louis paper dealing with Henry A. Diamond and his collection. Various subscribers have sent in the same clipping, the latest being Fred Slack.

OUR readers have no doubt noticed the advertising of Th. Berg from Brooklyn, N. Y. Mr. Berg has now moved to High View, N. Y., and his advertisements will be found regularly in the WEEKLY in the future. He has taken over the entire stock of British Colonials of the J. M. Bartels Co., and the quality of his offerings will be apparent in his subsequent announcements. Mr. Berg is a member of the A. P. S., the Collectors Club, etc., and comes to be highly recommended.

FRANCIS J. GROSS informs us that the 2½d orange Antigua has been withdrawn from sale and the stock destroyed April 8, 1927. The postmaster at St. John, Antigua, is the source of the information.

THE Southern New England Stamp Clubs meet at Hartford, June 4, at 1 P. M. at the Center Church Parish House, opposite Heublein Hotel. Plenty of parking space nearby. There will be a course for trading and sale of stamps, but present plans do not include any auction sale. The original idea of this meeting was to "get acquainted" and our program is made up with that idea foremost. A contest for the 50 handsomest stamps in the World will be held, and awards given. Bidding will be for beauty, mounting arrangement, and condition. The highest charge will be $2 per plate and tickets may be had by sending to the club treasurer Theo. M. Lincoln, 579 Prospect Ave., Hartford, Conn. Applications should be in by May 25.

NOT off the bat. As broadcast by WEAF by Billy Jones, Ernie Hare: "The U. S. Chronicle Column: 'The Government has decided to issue all Air Mail Stamps on Fly Paper. Guess they will go further now.'—FRED KLINGENSIN.

ANNOUNCEMENT!

I am in the fortunate position to announce that I have taken over the large and extremely fine stock of the special British Colonial Department of J. M. Bartels Co., N. Y. City.

During the past I have personally been in charge of this branch of their business. Collectors may therefore feel assured of the same expeditious service as hitherto, and in dealing with me—they will have the pick of one of the finest and most valuable stocks of British Colonials in existence. Choice 19th and 20th Century selections will be sent to old customers on request, and I am also anxious to deal with new parties who furnish the usual references. Enquiries of all sorts relating to British Colonials are welcomed, and I will gladly quote on—or submit stamps given in want lists.

NINETEENTH CENTURY

This is a stock of picked copies—practically every stamp being in the finest possible condition. Many great rarities, medium priced and commoner stamps, too, of course. Here is an opportunity to find many of those "hard-to-get" stamps that—tho' not priced so high by the cataloguers—are actually more difficult to obtain than many a recognized rarity. You probably know the kind I refer to—if not, let me show you! I am able to offer the advanced collector choice things in pairs, blocks and covers.

During the past we have been supplying a great many of the leading collectors of this country—may I not have the pleasure of showing you some of these fine stamps?

These are all well centered—slightly inferior centering of many at reduced prices. The above stamps are in extremely keen demand, and a few placed aside at these attractive prices should prove an excellent investment. I believe in passing a liberal share of the investment possibilities on to my customers—but it is not my desire to become sold-out on these stamps. Quantity therefore being limited, prompt orders should be sent. Stamps priced below $3.75 obtainable in blocks four at pro rata prices—but the reserved supply will not last long. Other blocks command a slight premium.

TWENTIETH CENTURY RARITIES

I carry a large stock of high values (20sh, 20R, etc., and up) and other outstanding rarities. Apply for quotations or approvals.

MINT BLOCKS

I am able to offer a wonderful assortment of blocks—both Edwards & Georges. Blocks of even the great rarities are constantly passing through my stock. Remember, the interest in modern B. C. blocks is increasing rapidly,—I know because I have made the sales.

Many collectors already take everything in blocks—while others pick certain stamps for their beauty or investment possibilities. The stamps of a great many Colonies have in public sales shown that they command a large premium in this shape. Don't forget that others are bound to follow.

HIGH VIEW, N. Y.

DELVING INTO AIR POST HISTORY

By H. D. BUCKLAND

Sweden.—An airmail service between Porjus, the Swedish electrical power station, and Suorvajaure, 60 miles northwest of Porjus, in Lapland, was established in the late summer of 1920.

Denmark.—The first aeroplane to carry mail and passengers to London from Copenhagen left the latter city at 10 a.m. on Sept. 15, 1920. The mail included bags that had been conveyed the same morning from Malmo, while it is reported that Prince Axel placed the first bag on board the machine.

Rhodesia.—Experimental mail-carrying flights were made between Bulawayo and Salisbury, and Bulawayo and Livingstone, with an amount of success in the middle of the year 1920.

Argentina.—A Bill was passed in 1920 granting an aviation company the right to operate mail and passenger services between the Province of Buenos Aires and Patagonia, as far as the Magallanes. Can any reader tell us whether services were inaugurated?

Great Britain.—Apart from the temporary airmail services during the 1919 railway strike, the regular service between London and Birmingham which was to have opened in the summer of 1920 and was eventually very short-lived, did not commence till Dec. 22nd of that year. The machine left Cricklewood Aerodrome just after noon and arrived at Castle Bromwich at 2.30 p.m. To commemorate the event, the pilot presented a pilot's watch to Alderman Cadbury, the Lord Mayor of Birmingham.

Mexico.—Between July and September, 1917, regular mail flights operated between the capital and Pachuca, a distance of 110 miles, the service being undertaken by machines each capable of carrying 500 lbs. Temporary services were also run between Mexico City and Vera Cruz and Querataro.

Italy.—A trial flight, when messages were carried by two military machines, was made for an airmail service between Naples and Rome on Dec. 10th, 1918.—Aero Field.

TREASURY DECISION 3976

By R. M. ESTES, Deputy Commissioner
Treasury Department

Receipt is acknowledged of your letter of April 26, 1927, in regard to Treasury Decision 3976 amending Article 80 of Regulation 71 concerning the distribution and sale of stock transfer and future delivery stamps.

This Treasury Decision provides that no person other than a collector of internal revenue or duly authorized deputy collector of internal revenue, or designated United States depository shall sell or expose for sale, give away, traffic in, trade, barter, lend, borrow, or exchange any stock transfer or future delivery stamps issued pursuant to these regulations; provided, that any person or corporation, which has been duly appointed and constituted and is acting agent of any State for the sale of stock transfer stamps of such State may, upon approval by the Commissioner and upon giving bond satisfactory to the Collector, sell United States stamps issued pursuant to these regulations.

The Treasury Decision further provides that no person shall buy, receive, or have in his possession, or under his control, any stock transfer or future delivery stamps issued pursuant to these regulations, unless such stamps have been purchased directly from the collector of internal revenue, or duly authorized deputy collector of internal revenue, United States designated depository, or a designated agent for the sale of State stock transfer stamps, authorized by the Commissioner, in the district in which the stamps are to be used.

Treasury Decision 3976, however, does not apply to legally canceled stock transfer or future delivery stamps which have been procured in a legal manner, such as the purchase of canceled stamps which have been detached from documents, the retention of which is no longer required, and are to be destroyed. The regulations do not prohibit the purchase of such stock transfer and future delivery stamps by or from stamp collectors.

You are advised that it will be permissible for stamp dealers to advertise in your magazine provided the stamps referred to are properly canceled stamps, which have served the purpose for which they were originally intended.

WHETHER YOU WANT
STAMPS of the SOUTHSEAS or U. S. or BR. COL.
you will find that our stock contains many fine and unusual items. Specialists will find it worth while to send in their Want Lists or to ask for Approvals.—References, please! [H

EDITORIAL

If we are to have favorable action, even on a small proportion of the number of petitions for special, commemorative or celebratory issue, we trust that the authorities at Washington will exercise that intelligence and discrimination that it is expected they will show in selecting worthy subjects for stamp distinction. This hope is expressed merely to make conversation as a consequence of having heard from a reader that a large organization is thinking about asking the postmaster general to get out a stamp for its benefit at the time of its convention. Inasmuch as the society in question is the American Philatelic Society, we want to place ourselves on record of not being an accessory before the fact; and speaking in this legal wise, the Toledo Blade cracks this one: "Ac-

As a result of a few remarks on the campaign in the American Philatelic Society and the coming convention of the organization that have been made in the WEEKLY, a number of letters have been received in which criticism of different kinds is voiced. While the interest that these members show in their organization is commendable, it is asked that correspondents who feel impelled to speak their minds, direct their words to the officers of the A. P. S., or the journal of the society, the American Philatelist. This request is made in all friendliness as it must be granted that the proper setting for statements concerning the working of the society is provided by the official journal of the body.

Recently, we read in the "Australian Stamp Journal" that Miss E. West, managing director of J. H. Smyth, Limited, Sydney, Australia, was leaving on an extended visit to the United States. It is learned from Miss West that she will combine business with pleasure here and make New York City her objective, where her stay will be somewhat protracted. It will be remembered that Mr. Smyth, who founded the firm, died some years ago and since that time, Miss West has capably conducted the business. A welcome is extended to Miss West and it will be the general wish that she will find her tour of inspection an interesting one.

The last Forbin-L'Hoste catalogue of the fiscal stamps of the world was published in France in 1908, if recollection may be trusted. Our office copy disappeared years ago. A reader is desirous of obtaining the catalogue; and at any rate, he wants Mr. Forbin's last address.

Under date of April 27, 1927, the post office department at Washington sent out the information that at the All-America Aircraft Display, scheduled at Bolling Field, Washington, D. In the summary of attractions illustrating the activities of the Post Office Department, the promise was made that a special cancellation stamp for the benefit of philatelists was to be applied to the stamps on letters mailed at the field.

erpool, England. Mr. William R. Ricketts, the compiler, follows the example of the Lord Crawford index in the use of "Purely" because the Monthly Intelligence, which was the first stamp journal by three months, and published by W. Macmillan, Birmingham, was not devoted exclusively to philately. While the story of Mr. Kitts' Monthly Advertiser the first number of which was dated December 15, 1862, has been told before, yet, as Mr. Ricketts shows by citing the tale has not become hackneyed; indeed, it is not likely to become so because with the advent of new collectors the disposition to attend to the small beginnings of stamp collecting will be encouraged. The second volume of numbers was edited by the renowned Edward L. Pemberton, whose understanding of the subject and appreciation of its possibilities soon made him, even at its early date, a commanding figure in the stamp world. In looking over the index, as compiled by Mr. Ricketts, one is impressed by the many articles descriptive of stamp forgeries and made aware that the counterfeit was a more graver menace to the welfare of collecting than it is to-day. Even though the shadow of the counterfeit was for darkening the joy of the collector, his faith in stamps survived his torments until to-day, he has easy sailing. In the young '60's, even, the Wells, Fargo & Company Pony Express stamps were forged and fictitious stamps were proposed artfully on the collector; and the famous Mormon stamps of Utah were introduced and warned against in the first volume. While the Monthly Advertiser never exceeded sixteen pages in size, it was conducted with enterprise. Subscription contests were staged, stamp prizes; and the presentation of unused stamp "with each and every number" was used as an advertising stimulant. This Number One was superior to hundreds of first numbers that have followed in the wake of the years, "never ending, still beginning."

it was said that it is time that someone should attend to this duty whose duty of fulfillment becomes more propounded as the years slip by. Evidently, it did not cause any general prick-up of philatelic ears as the only result noticed was a letter from a correspondent who prefers to remain anonymous. He suggested that his idea of completing the end would be to proceed chronologically with the history and that he might be induced to care for the decade, 1870 and 1880, because he remembers much of the philatelic history of that period when he was a boy collector. That would leave the '60's to be covered by some pioneer collector who has a good memory and is in a position to consult the philatelic literature of that period. Some volunteer could be found to cover the decade, 1880 to 1890, no doubt; in the later years could be reviewed with comparative facility. This proposal is a natural one and probably would allow of more balanced treatise than the plan to cover the philatelic history of the stamp centers was broached in the hope that advantage could be taken of the positive interest that stamp societies of the present would have in the stamp history of the respective cities. It may be said that the years, 1870 to 1880, that have been named by the correspondent are such as to test the mettle of the historian, because they witnessed the growing pains of collecting and it was during this time that a note of pessimism could be heard at times as to the future growth of the pursuit, even by its faithful pioneers.

through the kindness of a reader we have received a bundle of odd numbers of stamp papers, price-lists dated in the '60's and early '70's that allow one to sense the philatelic atmosphere of those days; Doctor Petrie was sentenced to pay a fine for vending fraudulent stamps;
N. F. Seebeck was issuing his price-lists; Trifet and Scott were bandying curt words between themselves; S.
A. Taylor was manufacturing local papers for the personal journalism of that age and often as bitter as aloes, but it is to be admitted that certain of the old editors were in class A in cleverness.

THE OTHER SIDE
In the New York Evening Telegram of April 30, 1927, the following reference appeared concerning the failure of the Postmaster General to award New York a stamp. "Was Refused a Stamp. Editor of the New York Telegram:— The flag of our nation is entitled to its 150th anniversary at Rome, N. Y. The President, our State, our Governor, the American Legion and the Boy Scouts have asked Postmaster General New for this national recognition in the shape of a stamp issue. He has declined. Do you know of any public servant who can decline a recognition for our flag, when it is correctly and courteously asked for? W. Pierpont White, President Oneida Historical Society. Utica, N. Y., April 27th."

The foregoing notice caught the eye of Mr. L. B. Gatchell, who, by-the-way, is advertising manager of the Galena-Signal Oil Company and resides in New York, and he sent the following interesting communication to the editor of the Telegram, under date of May 2nd. We are pleased to have the privilege of presenting Mr. Gatchell's brief sustaining the refusal of the postmaster general on the lack of definite assurance that any one of four localities is entitled to the honor at the expense of the other claimants, as Mr. Gatchell sees it. Here is the letter:

Dear Sir:
In your issue of Saturday, April 30, you printed a short note from W. Pierpont White of Utica, New York, President of the Oneida Historical Society, under the caption "Was Refused a Stamp." In this letter Mr. White criticized the Postmaster General of the United States, Hon. Harry S. New, for his failure to approve a special postage stamp issue to commemorate the 150th anniversary of the birth of our flag, such recognition to take place at Rome, New York.
While brevity has its decided virtues, I do not believe it should recommend itself to people in high places as a means to criticizing public officials, which criticism would not hold water if the entire facts of the case were stated. In the interest of establishing the facts in the case and in justice to Post Office officials who are too often unjustly criticized by people who find it hard to grind their own particular axes, I believe they should be stated in your columns.

There are four separate and distinct localities which claim the honor of being the first ground upon which the flag of our nation was unfurled. Several, if not all of them, have put in similar petitions for a commemorative postage stamp to be issued at their city and to be inscribed with the name of their particular locality. Historians cannot agree upon the facts in the case and as a result, the claims and counter-claims go floating around as numerous as the ocean breezes. It is obvious that the Post Office Department cannot issue a commemorative stamp for all of these localities, nor can they of course issue a postage stamp every time an Historical Society, or a Chamber of Commerce asks for one, whose interest, by the way, is often more actuated by the advertising value to the locality, arising out of the specially inscribed stamp, than by the particular bit of history to be observed. The Postmaster General has had, in this case, and in every case, great political pressure brought to bear, and has made a thorough and impartial investigation and study of such facts as were placed before him. After consideration it was announced that Bennington, Vermont, had established the best claim to the special stamp, and such a stamp will be issued in August of this year.

Answering Mr. White's original question, it would seem that when there seems to be insufficient or unsatisfactory justification for a stamp even "correctly and courteously asked for" it should be correctly and courteously declined. In any event the columns of any newspaper should not be used to present an incomplete and distorted picture of any situation—civic pride notwithstanding.
(Signed) L. B. GATCHELL.

1857, 30c, BLOCK OF 56

By PHILIP H. WARD, JR.

I have recently had the pleasure of inspecting a portion of the wonderful collection of United States postage stamps gotten together by Hon. E. R. Ackerman, member of Congress from New Jersey. Mr. Ackerman has been collecting for many years and owns one of the finest collections of United States now in existence.

One piece of outstanding merit, which has been known for some time, but which has never been mentioned in the press before, to my knowledge, is a large block of the 1857, 30c orange. This block consists of fifty-six stamps, that is, five horizontal rows of ten with an additional row of six at the bottom. It is used on part cover with a pair of the 10c of the same issue. It is lightly cancelled in black with the San Francisco town cancellation, and the stamps are in unusually fine condition.

Mr. Ackerman obtained this wonderful piece a number of years back, through a well known New England stamp company and paid at that time what was considered to be quite a large price, namely

Hope Rudely Shattered

We have received from Hans F. Schmidtman, a copy of "The Xtra," a thumb-nail sheet issued from Winnipeg, Can., Sept. 1, 1909. It is a Vol. 1, No. 1, and we do not recall whether further numbers were issued. Small as the paper is, with its four pages, it is exceedingly lively, and contains an account of the Atlantic City convention of the A. P. S., a half-tone of Henry H. Mudge and new A. P. S. president, who was called "the right man in the right place." We quote a little article which will be read with interest. We cannot vouch for its truthfulness, but are willing to admit that it may have happened. The scene New York City.

It was a hot, listless day. Business for the poor stamp dealers was dead. Mr. Burger sat in his office, looking into the throbbing street. He was discouraged, despondent, disheartened. Rent due and the cash register empty. Just then an automobile came chugging up the street and stopped before the door. A liveried footman sprang down and opened the door for a be-gowned lady. The outfit showed every evidence of wealth. The lady entered the building and in a few moments opened Mr. Burger's door. Mr. Burger jumped up.

"Pardon me. Do you sell stamps?" Mr. Burger reached for his stock book of Capes and Bettleboros. Visions of a huge sale boomed before his excited mind.

"Yes, Ma'am. What kind, please?" Mr. Burger allowed his imagination full swing. He would make the sale of his life. A smile crossed his lips as he waited her answer.

"What country did you say, madam?" "Oh, I only want a 2c stamp for this letter."

Mr. Burger was found prostrate across the desk.

Re-Engraved Plates

When plates are made from a die and any re-engraving takes place it is the die that is re-engraved so that on the new plates the stamps are all alike though, of course, different from those on the original plate. When, however, the plates were originally engraved by hand such as the early Mauritius, the "Sydney Views" of New South Wales, etc., then the plate itself has to be re-engraved. The work of renovation may be confined to only certain stamps on the plate or to the whole of them. As a rule these hand engraved plates were made of some soft metal like copper which wore very quickly; consequently after a certain number of impressions had been printed it was necessary to re-engrave the plates before they were in a fit state to be used again. The plate for the 2d Sydney View was entirely re-engraved on three separate occasions and each time radical alterations were made to the design so that not only can the different states of the plate be distin-

The plate entirely re-engraved on several occasions and in between these re-engraving certain stamps were re-touched (some the alterations or additions made trivial in the extreme) so that it is one of the most difficult studies a specialist can attempt.

NEW EUROPE ARE COMING BACK

"New Europe", as European issues since the war were nicknamed, have had their ups and downs. Sold at first at high prices, the fall in European currencies sent them down to wastepaper prices.

Now, however, all surplus stocks have been absorbed and a steady upward movement has set in, which is likely to be continuous.

We can submit good approval selections in this group, or will give the most careful attention to difficult want lists.

THE UBIQUITOUS STAMP

By GRACE P. SMITH.

For those who are looking for references to stamps outside of advertising columns and Scott's Catalogue, it may be interesting to call attention to a book, "My Class in Composition," by Julien Bezaud, professor in the Lycée Hoche, Versailles, translated and adapted from the French original by Phyllis Robbins and published in 1923 by the Harvard University Press.

As the author himself explains, the book is but a class diary of a teacher of composition. His aim is, however, far more inclusive than to teach essentials of composition alone. M. Bezaud's method is conspicuous for the wide range of subjects in which he endeavors to interest his students, trying, in every way, to impress their minds with new ideas and to stimulate their mental processes by leading them into the by-ways of literature, art, and other fields of interest—yea, even unto the ubiquitous stamp!

"My Stamp Collection" is one of the topics for themes assigned by this resourceful teacher. When finished, the compositions are brought to the master and there follows what M. Bezaud terms "collective correction." The procedure is recounted on pages 61 to 78 of the Numerous mistakes were made, the commonest being the inclusion of Maria, Chile, 110. This is wrong because it is only part of the surname. The gentleman's name is Santa Maria. Another was the inclusion of Volta from Italy. These promised commemoratives have not yet made their appearance, so the name was cancelled from the lists on which it came. The spelling of foreign proper names is subject to much variation when translated into English, so considerable tolerance was allowed in this respect.

If the readers of the Junior Page are sufficiently interested, I shall be glad to prepare another contest along different lines, but with an aim which is the same as that of this contest: to make collectors study their stamps.

WHY NOT JOIN?

Why not join the enthusiastic group of Live-Wire Collectors who subscribe to my Weekly Bargain Lists?

The Subscription Price is 50c for 50 consecutive numbers—less than the cost of posting them to you.

I have NERVE to charge for my trade circular, haven't I?

But any Collector who is a really active buyer and "knows his onions" will save that subscription price many times over and gladly pays it—and that's the only kind of subscribers I want anyway!

In renewing their subscriptions, many customers take time to tell me that they wouldn't miss a number for the world—they're afraid of missing something extra good!

These Weekly Lists offer all new issues and, in addition, many obsolete items in 20th Century stamps and many special bargains.

They also "tip" you off the stamps with a future and advise the purchase of special items.

Subscribers who took my advice and bought Cyprus No. 88 at $6.40, Malta No. 65 at $16.00, etc., will testify that my "tips" are 95% right.

Recently I offered a scarce pair of S. W. Africa stamps, for which a prominent London dealer asks $27.00, for $1.50.

A copy of the List detailing this offer will be sent you on request and the offer holds good for all new subscribers during May and June.

The demand from subscribers for items offered in my lists is so great that I seldom am able to duplicate the offers in my public advertisements.

The Moral is, of course, Send 50c for 50 numbers, or if you're from Missouri, ask for a few sample lists.

Remember—the S. W. Africa offer referred to holds good for list subscribers only.

You had better join the Happy Throng NOW!

Throughout the theme conference there is evidenced an eager interest not only in stamps as the topic of the compositions under review, but in stamps as stamps.

A look into the book is worth while both for the teacher, the pupil, and the stamp lover. Aside from the interest of the text itself, six-page plates illustrate stamps of interest.

U. S. DEPARTMENTS COVERS—CANCELLATIONS

I have just purchased what I believe to be the finest collection of Departmental covers ever gotten together, in addition to a superb lot of singles, pairs, strips and blocks in used condition off cover. Cancellations galore in blue, purple, red, black, orange, green, brown and magenta in most of the issues. We find the Kicking Mule, as well as the Skull and Cross Bones. There are Fort cancellations, Stars, Crosses, as well as other interesting designs. Town cancellations in colors are noted here and there.

The owner possibly spent thirty to forty years in getting this collection together. It contains such things as all of the Executive on cover, the 24c Justice in pair and single in similar condition, the $2 State on cover in combination with seventeen 30c and a 10c—in other words, unique pieces.  This very unusual lot will be held intact for a reasonable time, as it should go to one collector. 1857 Cancellations

Mr. P. M. Wolsieffer has just shown me a copy of the 1c 1857, type V, which has been in his possession possibly thirty years. The stamp is cancelled in black in two lines, "Old Stamps Not Recognized." On first glance it looks as if the cancellation was typeset and printed, but Dr. Carroll Chase in examining it advises that he believes it to be hand stamped. The first two words of the cancellation are in capitals with larger first letters, whereas the second two words are in italics. Dr. Chase states that he has seen three or four different types of cancellations reading, "Old Stamps Not Recognized," but that this one is new to him.

At the outbreak of the Civil War, when the earlier stamps were demonetized, this method of indicating that the stamps were not good for postage was used by several offices.

Early Cancellation

I have just had submitted for my inspection the earliest printed and dated United States cancellation that I remember offhand seeing. If any of our readers have covers bearing cancellations previous to this date, I would like to be advised. The postmark is in black and reads horizontally 2 1/4" in length, "RICHMOND, SEPT. 15, 1797." Above and below the inscription we find two parallel lines spaced about 1/32" apart. The upper parallel lines are spaced just one-quarter of an inch above the lower set of lines. I have seen earlier manuscript postmarks, but the one in question was applied by hand stamp.

The cover is addressed to John Barry, Esq., Philadelphia, in the handwriting of Benjamin Harrison, a governor of Virginia and one of the signers of the Declaration of Independence. In addition, the cover is stamped, "PAID," and a manuscript notation indicates that the amount of postage was 20c.

A late postmark that has just come to my attention for the first time is one found within a rectangle, printed in magenta on a communication passing through the Philadelphia post office. On the back of the cover, we find in five lines, "PHILADELPHIA, PA., FOUND IN SUPPOSEDLY EMPTY EQUIPMENT, ACTION TAKEN TO PREVENT REOCCURRENCE." There is also rubber stamped near the postmark describing the date, "APRIL 25, 1927." The letter no doubt was allowed to remain in the mail bag through error and was later discovered.

Air Mail Notes

The Postal Bulletin for April 29th, contained a notice by the Postmaster General stating that a substation of the Washington, D. C., Post Office would be established at Bolling Field during the all-American aircraft display from May 2nd to May 6, 1927, both dates inclusive. The notice which carries date of April 27th, states that all first-class mail posted at the substation during that period will bear the imprint of a special cancellation stamp with the following wording: "All-American Aircraft Display, Bolling Field, May 2-6, 1927, P. O. Sub Station, Washington, D. C."

Covers received from Washington show the special cancellation, which is in magenta, rectangular in shape, being about 2" long and an inch high. The lettering is in five lines and across the center we find the double winged air mail insignia. The stamps are tied to the cover by the regular Washington hand stamp. The special postmark on the covers that have come to my attention is found in the lower left corner of the envelope.

The Second Assistant Postmaster General announced under date of April 27th, that effective June 1st next, the air mail fees applicable to letters from foreign countries for transmission by the United States Air Mail Service, regardless of distance or character of the air mail route, or routes over which said letters are carried, will be 10c for each half-ounce, or fraction thereof, in addition to the regular postage.

This modifies the previous notice dated Feb. 4, 1927, and printed on page seven of the Postal Guide for March, 1927.

AUSTRALIAN COMMONWEALTH.—Mr. R. Roberts advises of the 1/2p orange, on new watermark paper multiple A and crown close together. This stamp is printed in sheets of 120 and has the inscription "A. J. Mullett, Australian Note and Stamp printer" in the margin at foot between the two panes.

BRITISH NEW GUINEA.—We have received from Mr. R. Roberts a copy of the 6p bistre, in the current design. Mr. Roberts adds that early samples of this stamp were put into London auctions by some enterprising dealer as an error of color and made quite a big price without any justification whatever.

BERMUDA.—Stamp Collecting reports that the 2sh purple and blue on blue will shortly be on issue with Script CA watermark, together with a new printing of the 1 pound purple and black on red, with old multiple watermark. New printings are also on order of the 1/2p green and 2p grey, both of course, Script.

CZECHOSLOVAKIA.—The Economist Stamp Co. have shown us a copy of the 30h olive-green, in a design bearing the inscription "Pernstyn."

ESTONIA.—We are informed that the idea of calling the new currency "Esta" and "Sayak" has been abandoned, and that the Estonian Ministry of Finance has proposed to call it "Taler" and "Grosche," but that no final decision has yet been taken. When this change does eventuate it naturally follows that new JAPAN.—The Yuraku for January states that it is unlikely that the fifty anniversary of Japan's entry into the Universal Postal Union will be commemorated by a special issue of stamps, as was at first intended, owing to the national mourning. The date was 20, 1877, and if on that date this year suggested stamps do not appear, our temporary states that we shall have to wait until Autumn, next year, when Emperor will celebrate his coronation and it is likely that special stamps will be issued.

From the same source we learn that it is rumored that a new general issue is likely to appear.—Philatelic Magazine

PORTUGAL.—We have received from Whitfield King & Co. copies of the 40c, 54c, 75c, 4E 50c and 10E values of the 1890 Commemorative Issue bearing surcharge "Cruz Vermelha Porto 1927." The overprints are all in red lines and in black except that the 4E 50c which is in red.

SOUTH WEST AFRICA.—Mr. R. Roberts reports that the new 1p pictorial stamp of the Union of South Africa has been reprinted "Suidwes Afrika" and the South West Africa reversed, surcharge reading upwards. The Afrikaans overprint falls upon the English and the English overprint on the Afrikaans stamp.

NEW ISSUE NOTES

(These notes are taken from Whitfield King's "Bulletin" for April. The firm will publish this publication for an entire year for £1. Address, Ipswich, England.)

ARMANIA.—Amongst our importation of the new Post stamps overprinted "Rep. Motare" we have found one sheet of the 1 franc with inverted overprint and which will be found offered on May 7.

AUSTRALIA.—A new watermark has been introduced for the current stamps consisting of very small multiple Crown A's put together. We have received only one denomination, 1d, 1½d, and 3d, which are being distributed through our Issue Service in due course; other denominations will no doubt be issued when the existing stocks of the old watermarks are used up.

BERBADOES.—The new 1d Tercentenary stamp was issued on February 17th. It is a very handsome production, printed by Messrs. Bradbury, Wilkinson & Co., and shows portraits of King George V and King George VI. Incorporated in the design are the dates "1627" and "1927."

CANADA.—In some of the philatelic journals it has been mentioned that a further printing of the 2c on 3c stamps is likely, but we are able to contradict this, as we have received an official letter from the Post Office Department at Ottawa informing us that it is not the intention of the Department to attempt to surcharge any further 3c stamps, as the work was considered unsatisfactory.

HEJAS-NEJD.—Three more denominations of the new issue have appeared, ½ piastre yellow, ¼ piastre green, 1 piastre mauve. We have fortunately been able to obtain sufficient of these to distribute to all our new issue subscribers, but in sending our supply of these stamps our agent informs us that the die from which this new issue was printed has been destroyed at Mecca, and in consequence of the difficulty in securing the stamps in any quantity they are likely to become very scarce.

INDIA.—The 2 annas stamp inscribed "Postage" only and printed on the paper watermarked multiple star has had only a very short life, and these stamps are to be found only in booklets containing 16 stamps in each booklet. Our agent has been to some considerable trouble in obtaining a supply of these stamps for us, but unfortunately the stamps have imperfect edges. The supply received is sufficient to make a full distribution through the New Issue Service, but we shall be glad if subscribers will please note that it will be quite useless to return the imperf. edges to be exchanged for stamps perforated all round.

LITHUANIA.—A set of four mourning stamps has been issued in memory of Basanovitsh, a famous Lithuanian statesman, whose death occurred recently. The stamps are dated "1851-1927" and show his portrait, the denominations and colours being 15 centu, claret, 25 centu, blue, 50 centu, green, and 60 centu, violet, and each stamp is surrounded by a black border.

ROMANIA.—A new set of stamps was issued on March 15th to commemorate the Foundation of the Roumanian Geographical Society, the denominations being as follows:—1 + 9 lei, 2 + 8 lei, 3 + 7 lei, 4 + 6 lei, 5 + 5 lei, the additional surcharge on each stamp goes towards the Geographical Society's funds. We understand that 70,000 sets have been issued.

SOUTH AFRICA.—We have seen copies of the current South African stamps printed in Pretoria, the difference from the London printing being so slight that it will be practically impossible to distinguish one printing from the other. The paper has been sent out to the Colony from London and is exactly the same as that used for the London printed stamps and bears the watermark multiple Springbok's head. We shall not distribute them through the New Issue Service. These stamps have been overprinted for use in South West Africa, but in this case we shall distribute the stamps, as the printing is of quite a new variety. In the previous issue overprinted on the London printed stamps the Dutch overprint was applied to the stamps with the Dutch inscriptions and the English overprint to those with the English inscriptions, whereas in this new printing the order is reversed so that the Dutch overprint is on the stamps with the English inscriptions and the English overprint on the stamps with the Dutch inscriptions, thus providing each stamp with the dual language.

THE STAMPS OF GEORGIA

By F. P. BRENNAM-WARD.

Georgia did not come into philatelic prominence until after the late war, as, up to then, it formed part of the Russian Empire, and therefore ordinary Russian stamps were in use. In fact, it would be no exaggeration to say that nine out of ten philatelists were not even aware of the existence of this state, so it would be as well, perhaps, to give a few notes on the country generally, before dealing with its stamps.

Georgia is a mountainous country, about the size of Ireland, jammed in between the Caucasus Mountains, the Black Sea, and Armenia.

The territory includes many splendid forests and rich mineral regions, while the capital, Tiflis, is an important commercial centre, exporting silk, carpets, cotton, petroleum, tobacco, and silver ornaments; while stock raising and agriculture are carried on extensively.

Georgia had a long and interesting history before being annexed to Russia in 1801. On the setting up of Soviet rule in Russia, she, together with Armenia and Azerbaidjan, formed the Transcaucasian Republic, but in 1918, Georgia declared independence, and a year later issued its first stamps. These are very interesting, both from the ordinary and the philatelic point of view, as they bear a picture of St. George, their patron saint, as well as ours. The set consists of six values: 10, 40, 50, 60, 70 kopecs and 1 rouble, and was printed on wove paper of various thicknesses, with no watermark. It was issued both imperf. and perforated roughly 11½, and it is to be noted that the one rouble value is of a slightly different and larger type than the kopek values.

In 1920, a further set of a different type was issued. It consists of three values: 2, 3 and 5 roubles, and was also issued both imperforate and perforated 11½, on watermarked wove paper.

The design shows an allegorical Georgia sitting on a shield with a spear in her hand, and is strikingly like the well-known picture of Britannia. Varieties of the foregoing stamps are known tebeche.

Early in 1921 the Soviet troops entered Tiflis and overthrew the existing government. The first stamps of the new regime appeared late in the same year, and consisted of five values: 500, 1,000, 2,000, 3,000 and 5,000 roubles, in three different types.

In 1922 there was a famine in certain provinces of Russia, so a special charity set was issued to aid them. This consisted of various low values of the preceding set, which had not been issued (owing to increases in the postal rates which made them useless), overprinted with Georgian characters meaning "FOR THE HUNGRY," and surcharged with new values.

Following this there was a ceaseless flood of surcharges, owing to the steady depreciation of the rouble. These continued until October, 1923, when a general issue was again made for the whole of Transcaucasia, and since the beginning of 1924, ordinary Russian stamps have been in use in these States, as they now form part of the U.S.S.R.—Junior Stamp Magazine.

MALTA STAMPS OF 1922

By CAPTAIN H. W. JESSOP.

The two types of the Melita issue designed by Maltese artists, and, though not in themselves displeasing, do not meet with a very enthusiastic reception either from the general public or collectors. The former, to judge from the local Press, based their criticism on the printing, which falls short of the work of Messrs. De La Rue, and as to the colours, the central designs of 1d, 4d and 5sh being especially indistinct. Collectors, while complaining, like the Maltese public, about the poor colour of some of the values, found additional cause for complaint in the absence of all the values of the Sovereign's head.

The design of the low values also represents the figures of Malta (Melita), that of the shilling values Britannia and Melita in sisterly embrace, emblematic of the new spirit of friendship between the two nations after the grant of local self-government to Malta by the Imperial Parliament.

The set were not all issued on the same day. I cannot give the exact date of issue of all values, but I have written me as I write a letter from a friend who visited the G.P.O. on August 28, 1922, and found these stamps on sale. The overprinted "SELF-GOVERNMENT," 2d, 2s6d, 5sh, 10sh; (2) "Melita" set of ½d, 1d, 6d, 1sh, 2sh. I believe the "Melita" 10sh was issued later than the 2d, and by the 1st of September the set was completed by the issue of 2d, 3d, 4d, 5sh and 1l values.

Of the original thirteen values of the set, the most interesting are the 2d and 1l. Taking the 2d first, this value had a long life, but a small number of Plate 2 were sold surcharged just before the "Post" overprinting. Both turquoise and brown are of a deeper shade in Plate 2, and whether or not the colour difference is sufficient to warrant catalogue there can be no doubt that the 2d, 2, unsurcharged is a real rarity. Corner-blocks with controls will be found.

My special interest in the 4d is the fact that it narrowly escaped a short life and consequent rarity, due to our against its poor colour being insisted that it was within a few days issue actually for a short time without sale. It was, however, sold again without any change of colour and the story goes that the author had by this time discovered that the leader of the hostile critics had motives besides artistic ones, and in fact, bought a large stock of stamps in anticipation of their possible withdrawal!

The 1l stamp was first printed with watermark sideways, and later with upright. There were four printings of this value, all quite easily distinguished by specialists. I have not got copies of all these printings by me, so shall attempt to describe their differences.

In the ¼d, ½d, 3d and 6d the varieties to a certain extent.

In October, 1923, the 1½d brown appeared, to be followed in April, 1924, by the 1d in violet, still printed on Plate 1.

When at the end of 1925 the former rate was reduced to 2½d, the 2½d stamps were not ready; and provisional issues were issued in the shape of a 3d blue—the 2½d on 3d, cobalt, and a 2 (S.G. 139,) on December 3rd, and the 2½d on 3d, ultramarine, Plate 2 (S.G. 140), on December 24th. Plate 2 has the surcharge lower on the stamp, and is the scarcer of the two while their main interest to specialists lies in the position of the letters of the surcharge in relation to each other. For example, in some stamps the "e" of "halfpenny" comes directly under the "p" of "pence," whereas in most it falls considerably farther to the right. In February, 1926, the new supply of 2½d, blue, and 3d, black on yellow, came to hand.

A change in the system of accounting in the island was responsible for the next change in the stamps. As the change involved having separate stamps

GERMAN COLONIALS

Beautiful Mint Sets—Attractively Priced

German Colonial stamps have become, during the past few years, increasingly scarce. Nowadays they can seldom be supplied by the average dealer. This condition of the market will undoubtedly be reflected very soon in upward revisions of catalogue values. The "ship" stamps, obsolete many years, are strikingly beautiful and very desirable. Note our special quotations for blocks of four; a good, sound investment for discerning collectors.

535 Commonwealth Avenue

Boston, Mass.

Postal and Fiscal purposes, and the authorities were loth to waste the large quantities of some values of the old set by destroying all the remainders, it became necessary to overprint the remainders in some way in order to distinguish them and make it clear they were no longer available for Revenue purposes.

At first it was proposed to overprint the word "Gozo," and use them up for Postal purposes in that island—but the project was abandoned, and the much simpler method adopted of surcharging them with the word "POSTAGE" and using them throughout the colony as long as stocks of each particular value lasted.

The new system of accounting came into force on April 1, 1926, and with it the issue of the stamps overprinted "POSTAGE." When the G.P.O. opened its morning at 7 a.m., there was a long line of people waiting to buy these stamps—there was a particular scramble to buy the 4d and 2sh, and within three days these two values were sold out. The rush on the 4d might have been foreseen as only one order was given to the printers for this stamp, and, although it was widely used, it was natural that collectors and speculators should guess that stocks would be low. The scarcity of the 2sh was not so easy to foresee, and probably there would not have been any special rush to buy up this stamp if the authorities had not notified the public that no person might buy more than two sheets of this value, though no restriction as to numbers was placed on any other value.

Within a few days all the ¼d, 1sh and 2s6d "POSTAGE" overprinted stamps were sold out: the 6d and 5sh were obsolete by May 5th, and ½d by August, and the 1½d by October 8th.

Among those that have come into my possession, only in two cases does there seem to be more than one shade to any individual value: firstly, the 2d, of which stocks of both Plate 1 and Plate 2 were overprinted; secondly, the 10sh, of which there seem to be two distinct colourings though both come from Plate 1. I cannot say which is the scarcer, but the colours might be described as grey-black and brown, and slate-grey and yellow-brown.

A great deal of acrimonious comment was aroused in the local Press because some persons had got large stocks of the scarcer values in this set while others had got none. Allegations were made that particulars as to numbers had been allowed to leak, and that privileged persons had "cornered" certain values. Be this as it may, these stamps have been in great request, and some of them are undoubtedly rare. While unable to give exact figures as to the numbers overprinted, I feel firmly convinced that, had there been no rush for the 4d and 2sh, those values would have lasted almost as long as the 1sh and 2s6d, and taking the higher face value of the two latter into consideration, I shall not be at all surprised to find that the 1sh eventually turns out a better stamp than the 4d, and the 2s6d at least as good as the 2sh. The 6d and 5sh are also well worth watching.

The new 1926 set is being issued value by value, as the stocks of the old set run out. The pence values are in a new King's Head type, with His Majesty's portrait in the upper right-hand corner and the badge of the colony in lower left-hand corner. In addition to the same values as there were in the previous set, the ½d reappears in the low value type, and 1s6d and 3sh stamps appear in the larger engraved pictorial designs, in which the stamps from 1sh upwards are issued—there is no £1 stamp in this or the "POSTAGE" set.

Of the values so far issued, the ¼d, 4d, ½d, 1sh, 1s6d, 2sh, 2s6d, and 3sh appeared in April, the 6d and 5sh on May 5th, the ½d in August, and the 1½d on October 8th. There still remain to be issued 1d, 2d, 2½d and 3d in the small type. The new 10sh, represents St. Paul after a statue by a Maltese sculptor named Gafà. All collectors will welcome the retention of this subject for the Malta 10sh.—Stanley Gibbons Monthly Journal.

RADIO AS A COLLECTING AID

Some time ago, a reader sent in an interesting clipping from a Pittsburgh newspaper showing how close a harmony was established between station KDKA and philately; and even though collecting is presented in the story in a somewhat humble phase, yet the tale is well told. The account is one surcharged with human interest and the reporter who constructed it knows his P's and Q's. Perhaps he gave it a fanciful touch here and there, but none will say that it is not true to life; and with a slap on the back for the newspaperman, we are glad to make way for flight of imagination combined with fact.

"The stamp collector had taken up radio to help pass the hours when he had no rare philatelic libraries to revel in; when the mail brought no strange postmarks; when the periodicals carried no announcement of new stamp issues.

At first he had handled it gingerly, as a child will a strange toy for the first time. He was jealous of his stamp-collecting hobby; he didn't want to permit any other advocacy to encroach upon his solitary pleasure.

Mixed nights of postage stamp hunting and DX hunting sped by; the winter was well advanced. He liked the radio immensely, but could not rid himself of the obsession that it was stealing away his love for odd, curious stamps. But often in the long evenings he would sit quietly before the loud speaker listening to an orchestral fantasy played by far-away musicians, and he would sit for hours lost in dreams of strange lands which rose up about his beloved stamps. At times like that, radio and stamps blended perfectly.

In such a reverie one evening he did not notice when the music ended, failed to perceive the short pause which followed its dying tones.

A clear voice spoke from the cone, awakening him to instant mental activity: "We have just received a letter from the steamship Cathlamet, a United States shipping board vessel, telling us that our program was received clearly off Gold Coast last week. The letter was mailed from Acora, Gold Coast. This is Station KDKA, Pittsburgh."

Gold Coast—Gold Coast! Why, he had no stamp from Gold Coast; in fact, he had never heard of it. The atlas was consulted; yes, there it was—a coast colony of the British empire, along the Gulf of Guinea, in northwestern Africa.

Now, how could he get that stamp? Would the management of KDKA let him have it, he wondered.

The next day he was the first caller at the KDKA studio. He explained to G. Dare Fleck, program director of the station, what he wanted, told of his lifelong love for stamps, of the conflict which had been going on in his interests, between stamp-collecting and the radio.

Fleck opened the drawer, lifted out a handful of odd envelopes of all shapes and sizes. Some of them were neatly addressed in English, most of these were from English-speaking countries; others were written in angular Teutonic, with straight lines and few curves; some were badly printed in vivid inks, from the many nations of the globe.

The Gold Coast stamp was on top, a three-pence postage and revenue stamp, in grey-blue with relief printing along the sides, and blue letters on white background at top and bottom.

The stamp collector sighed, but it was a sigh of happiness. Sincerely he thanked the director. With him he proudly bore the grey-blue Gold Coast beauty homeward."

RECOVERY

For six weeks, Mr. C. D. Reimers, Fort Worth, Texas, has been taking hospital treatment in Denver, in order that a general overhauling of his physical condition could be made under proper influences. Recently, he passed through Chicago on his way to Texas, and it is evident that his rehabilitation has been a satisfactory one. While away from his home base, the business of Mr. Reimers has been in the charge of an assistant. After a stay at home until the middle of June, Mr. Reimers intends to go to Europe, where he expects to remain about three months. During his absence his office will be closed, but when he gets back, he will resume business at the old stand. Mr. Reimers is an old-time philatelist who some years ago entered the dealers' ranks in earnest and it is comforting to know that his physical impairment has been overcome. No doubt his European trip will provide the tonic that will give him a surplus of health.

WHITE PLAINS PRECANCELS

By A. F. GAMBER.

The White Plains precancels had hardly begun to appear when the editor assumed charge of this periodical, so we were too early to pay our respects to some of those that subsequently appeared. That being water over the dam, let's treat it as much. But, let us also be fully prepared for the next Commemorative before it appears. Not that we know definitely of any projected issue at present, but since we are celebrating the 150th anniversary of some Revolutionary event almost every day now, and will be doing so until 1933, we may anticipate almost anything from our Post Office Department, which in recent years has become almost as prolific in its output as some of the Latin American countries. Likewise, some other racial group is likely to rise and demand (and get) a special stamp or stamps almost any day. The Huguenots, Swedes and Norwegians having had theirs, why not some others? The correct answer to that question is, why not? All right, then, as we said above, we're all set now for any Commemorative that may appear in the future, and in the columns of this magazine we're going to give a very close scrutiny to the precancelled Commemoratives emanating from certain offices. We all know that there are offices which, since the balmy days of the Victory, Aeros, Pilgrims and Harding, have developed the habit of breaking out with a rash of precancels every time a Commemorative appears, in fact that is their main output. We old timers know enough to let such junk alone, but for the guidance and protection of the beginner and for the honor and clean name of the hobby we propose in future to demand a straightforward bill of health from the emissions of those offices with such a marked tendency toward the miscellaneous precancelling of all Commemoratives. The editor has had so many commendatory letters from his Gossip note on those Tulsa White Plains, which so narrowly escaped being first days, that he feels that any other course would not be fair to the hobby. In addition he has the backing of every officer of the Society, who feel exactly as he does—that this precancelling habit at certain offices has gone far enough with the Society in a passive attitude. We all know what action the Society took at New York in this matter, and our policy as to future Commemoratives is simply in line with that action. Any other policy would be nothing short of treason to the Society's action.

No doubt some toes will be trodden upon, but in our opinion it's high time they were. It is hard to express our amazement and disgust at the brazenness of certain people who have the unadulterated nerve to take a collector's money for their junk. Once isn't enough, but every time a new Commemorative appears they rush into the advertising columns with solemn prophecies as to how desirable this item will prove to be, how short lived the issue, how low their prices are, and—oh well, you all know their line, it's been worn threadbare. They've handed it out on the appearance of every single Commemorative so far. And unless we do step down hard on their corns, they're going to keep it up and get by with it.

The editor makes the following statement and challenges any and all readers to disprove it: All future precancelled Commemoratives from the following offices should be viewed with suspicion. in view of the past performances of those offices: Arkansas, Ft. Smith, and Van Buren. California, Chico, Clovis, Delano, Fresno, Pasadena, San Bernardino, Santa Cruz, Florida, Stuart, Illinois, Batavia, DeKalb, Granite City, Maywood, Mendota, Techny. FIRST ISSUES OF GREAT BRITAIN

By C. A. Howes, F.R.P.S.

As most collectors are aware, without any great amount of research, the first adhesive postage stamp was brought into use in Great Britain on May 6, 1840, in the form of the "Penny Black." A companion "Twopenny Blue" was announced and presumably issued at the same time, but it does not seem to be an actually established fact that this was so. The Mulready envelopes and covers accompanied the adhesive stamps as well and it seems that Sir Rowland Hill, who sponsored the new scheme of "Penny Postage," thought the latter would be the most popular innovation and so had a great stock of them prepared. To his astonishment the public favored the adhesive labels to such an extent that production could hardly keep pace with the demand and the Mulready productions went begging in consequence. The issue of the new stamps and stationery to the public began on May 1st, but as stated above, the use of the new system and rates did not begin until May 6th.

The "Penny Postage Act" that caused the preparation of the stamps was passed August 17, 1839, and provided that the Lords of the Treasury should "direct that letters written on stamped paper or enclosed in stamped covers or having a stamp affixed thereto . . . shall pass by the post free of postage." It is this somewhat ambiguous statement that caused writers in the early days to speak of stamps as "freeing a letter to its destination" or some similar phrase which seems peculiar to the present day collector. Of course the letter did not pass "free" of postage, but the stamp indicated that the postage had been prepaid and was therefore not to be collected from the recipient, as was the general custom under the superseded methods. The idea was that the prepayment stamp caused the letter to be "free" from further demands for payment such as had previously been the case. This idea is carried out in the name given the "postage stamp" by the German and Scandinavian countries, e.g., in German freimarke, that is a "free mark" or stamp. Sometimes it is postfreimarke or "post free stamp," which is only a little less ambiguous. Bremen labeled two of her stamps franco marke or "frank stamp," which conforms to the expression used considerably by early writers to the effect that the stamps "franked" the letter or "freed" it from further collection of postage, as before stated. Nowadays the word "frank" is confined to a device or stamp which actually does carry the letter "free," without payment of postage of any kind as on official mail.

In preparation for the new scheme the Lords of the Treasury invited suggestions for suitable devices in open competition. Very many were received, but none was deemed suitable. A water-color drawing in the general form of the adhesive stamp as actually issued was finally submitted by Rowland Hill himself and the preparation of a design for

LINES TO THE PENNY BLACK

All hail to thee, thou herald of a dawn
Of more than peace—of civilizing pow'r
That broke the bonds which for so long restrained
Communication's spread; bearer of light,
Though dressed in sombre hue; progenitor,
With thy companion garbed in blue, of them
That troop in thousands since thy day.

A piece of paper—graven steel—some ink,
And lo! the "Penny Label" had its birth!
A little thing, yet with what latent pow'r
To carry good or ill, o'er sea and land,
To forge the bonds of friendship or of trade,
To scatter broadcast news and knowledge deep.

What mission that, concealed in form so small!
Three score and ten, the years allotted man,
Have seen the progress that thy advent wrought;

While out from Britain's bounds, where first thou dwelt,
Has gone the Penny Postage, born with thee,
Until the confines of the Realm are reached;
Nor will it stop until all nations come Within the influence of thy tiny sun!

C. A. HOWES in "Stamp Lover".

H. A. ROBINETTE, 509 7th Street, N. W., Washington, D. C.

the stamped envelopes and covers was entrusted to William Mulready, R. A. The manufacture of the adhesive stamps was contracted for with the firm of Perkins, Bacon & Petch, who had patented a process of engraving on steel and then reproducing facsimiles of the engraving indefinitely. As the possible counterfeiting of the proposed stamps was necessarily important to guard against, such a process allowed a very fine engraving to be made as a "master" engraving, so to speak, from which exact reproductions could be obtained easily and comparatively cheaply for printing the stamps. In selecting the design for the stamps another consideration was borne in mind by Rowland Hill as a guard against imitation when he chose a portrait as its main feature. Mr. Fred J. Melville has a most interesting letter bearing his signature, in which this is set forth as follows:—

"I am not sure if you are aware why the human countenance was taken for the stamp—it was for this reason—viz. That the eye is accustomed to distinguish minute differences between one human face and another. Now the multiplication of faces in the genuine stamp is by a mechanical process, from a single original die and all are therefore identical. The background of the label is of so close a texture that a transfer cannot be made by the lithographic or any similar process. A forgery must therefore be original and the most skilful artist could scarcely avoid some difference of expression which to the practised eyes of the Post Office people would cause immediate detection."

The head of Her Majesty selected for engraving upon the original die for the first two adhesive postage stamps ever issued was taken from a medal. This medal was struck on the occasion of the young Queen's first entry into the city of London after her accession, for the celebration of Lord Mayor's Day on November 9, 1837. The medal with its beautiful profile was engraved by William Wyon, the leading seal engraver of his time and chief engraver to the mint. A drawing of this head was made by Henry Corbould, an artist of repute, for Messrs. Perkins, Bacon & Petch. The engraving upon steel from this drawing was entrusted to Charles Heath, a former engraver to the King, with whom was associated his son Frederick; and it seems to be a moot question as to which one actually did the work, though it has usually been attributed to Charles. The fine network which forms the background was engraved by means of a mechanical device called the "Rose engine," whence the name "engine-turned work." The addition of the labels with their lettering completed the design, which was then transferred by the usual methods, which need not be detailed here, to the printing plate.

The printing plate was a flat sheet of steel upon which the design was transferred 240 times, thus making a full sheet the equivalent of one pound in value, or double this amount for the twopence stamp. This made for easy accounting by printed sheets. For further facility in reckoning, the sheet was arranged in twenty horizontal rows of twelve impressions each, thus each horizontal row represented a value of one shilling (or two shillings for the twopence). When the plate had received the stamp impressions, however, it was not yet quite complete, as the little squares in the lower corners were all blank. These were left for "check letters," which were inserted by hand by means of steel punches in the following manner: the left hand corner bore the letters of the alphabet in proper sequence down the vertical columns; the right hand corner had the same along the horizontal row. The left corner thus bore letters from A to T and the right corner from A to L, thus giving each of the 240 stamps a different combination. This scheme was a further preventive against counterfeiting, for it was deemed that a forger would probably make but one die and the reproduction would therefore bear but one combination of the "check letters"; if a great many copies of this combination were observed, therefore, it would make detection much quicker.

As a final protection against forgery, the printing was required to be upon watermarked paper. This was at first a small crown in outline, repeated 240 times and spaced so that one should appear in each printed stamp. In addition, the margins of the sheets had the word POSTAGE watermarked six times and joined up by five parallel lines. The paper was hand made by Mr. Stacey Wise, of Rush Mills, Northampton. Great care was taken to account for all sheets of this watermarked paper furnished to the printers by the Treasury, and a forfeit was exacted of the full face value of the stamps for which the sheets were intended, in case of loss.

It may be interesting to those who have not seen it to reproduce the marginal inscription on the plate, which appeared at top, bottom and each side of the printed sheet:

"Price 1d Per Label. 1sh Per Row of 12. £1 Per Sheet. Place the Labels ABOVE the address and towards the RIGHT HAND SIDE of the Letter. In wetting the Back be careful not to remove the Cement."

This "cement" or gum was of the same composition that is still used largely for applying to stamps, viz., dextrine, which is made from potato starch by "toasting" the latter. To this gum has been attributed a share in the "blueing" of the paper upon which so many of the early stamps were printed; but its neutral character seems to place it outside the cause which is now usually attributed to chemical reaction between ingredients of the printing ink and impurities in the paper, the action being furthered by the damping of the paper in the printing process and by the application of the gum as well.

Cramer, Tippicanoe City, Ohio

One of the new stamps, was a cancellation die in the form of a Maltese cross which was to be supplied with red ink made up by the postmaster from a formula included in the circular. It was found, however, that this red ink could not be cleaned from the black stamp by means of chemicals and the stamp was again. The obliterating ink was before changed to black, but this did not prove much more effective as a light cancellation in black on the black stamp did not readily pass unnoticed. The only solution seemed to be a change in the design of the stamp itself, which accordingly was printed in the familiar brownish and issued officially on February 18, 1841, although cancelled copies are still in use which were used in January, the printings of the new color having taken place in December, 1840.

An interesting plate error occurred on a numbered 77 of the one penny, in which stamp number 13 had no letter in the lower corner.

Of the above details concerning the manufacture of the stamps apply to the one penny as well as the one penny. In regard to the cancellation ink, however, difficulty was to be expected with its application upon the twopence, but as a precaution the blue ink was changed to a more fugitive character, to hinder possible attempts to remove the cancellation. To distinguish the stamps printed with this new ink, which otherwise could hardly be identified, a white line was added to the design beneath the word POSTAGE at the top and above the words TWO PENCE at the bottom.

The appeared about March, 1841, having been notified to postmasters just after the circular announcing the change in the color of the one penny.

From the beginning the only method of separating the stamps from each other was by cutting them apart with knife or shears, or tearing them apart against a metal "straight edge" such as used to be found on every desk. Suggestions had been sought for a better method of separation, but not until 1847, when Henry Archer tried a machine for making short cuts in the paper between the stamps, was anything accomplished. This machine was practically what we call "lettering," but the machine was not a success as the knives soon became dull. Some of the stamps experimented on were sent into the hands of the public and were used, and these are much valued by specialists under the name of "Archer cutouts." The next year Archer produced a machine which punched a series of circular holes out of the paper between the stamps, thus making the first "operating" device. After some trials and changes the machine was "found to answer in every respect." During the

UNITED STATES CANCELLATIONS, 1870-1900
By Dr. Wm. Evans, 313 E. Freemason St., Norfolk, Va.

Who can tell us anything about the second illustration? Mr. T. F. Keith reports having found several examples on 1c 1890 in a recent overhauling of an unpicked lot. 1890 was pretty late for that kind of a cancellation and possibly some one may remember having seen it, for it might have been in use until 1894 or 1895, as the 1c 1890 was used until those years.

The next four were contributed by Mr. H. V. Swallow and are on 3c green stamps. Who has a name for the third one?

Mr. W. A. McCoy sent the seventh. What is it? And the same question applies to the next one, which Mr. H. M. Konwiser submitted.

And who can tell anything about the last one? Where, when, why, was it used? It is on a 1c re-engraved and was sent by Mr. Swallow.

Referring to the first illustration in the issue of March 28, two correspondents offer a solution to the problem.

Mr. John C. Hunt and Mr. Edgar C. Green each describe a cover with this design in blue in the upper right corner postmarked on the left, Huntsville, Ala., in the same color. Mr. Hunt's letter is dated April 13, 1846, and Mr. Green's November 18, 1847.

Mr. Maurice Jeter sends the information that he has a cover showing a figure five of the same design postmarked "Big Lick, Va." And Big Lick is now the city of Roanoke. Mr. Green says it would be interesting to find it on a 10c 1847! I should say so!

From this evidence the conclusion is that the design is simply an elaborately decorated numeral indicating the amount of postage. It is interesting to know that it was used in two places, widely separated.

Mr. E. S. Knapp has sent a cover on which is a 3c National, mailed at Elyria, O., addressed to Winchester, Ind. The Winchester postmaster has made it attractive by placing upon it his postmark with its canceller attached, in blue ink. The canceller is reproduced above No.

1. Very kind of that postmaster.

Mr. W. R. Parker has shown two new kicking mule items. These are in the form of registration receipt cards sent by the Postmistress at Forbestown, Butte Co., Cal., as her receipt for mail despatched to other Post Offices. One is dated at Forbestown, Feb. 12, 1892, in the lower left corner and the mule is slightly to the right of the postmark. And in the upper right corner is the postmark of the receiving office, Clipper Mills, Cal., Feb. 13, 1892, in blue.

The second one has the Forbestown postmarks and the mule in the same position as the other. In this case the receiving postmark is Hurlston, Butte Co., Cal., in red. Both postmarks have the same date Feb. 8, 1892.

Mr. Parker sends a little map showing the location of these three little towns. Oroville was the nearest railroad town. Hurlston was 13 miles away, Forbestown 8 miles further, and Clipper Mills, 9 miles beyond that. Stages carried the mails from Oroville. Registered mail going to Clipper Mills from Forbestown was very infrequent, and there are very few of these cards in the find. Besides these cards Mr. Parker sends some other interesting things.

A 3c Continental on a large piece of cover postmarked S. U. V. R. P. O.

A 2c brown grided with the sheet margin attached, showing about half of the imprint of the National Bank Note Co., postmarked squarely on the stamp in blue, Durand, Wis., April 2, 1873. M. O. B.

A 3c green re-engraved tied by a target, postmarked Thomaston, Ga., J. G. Williams, P. M. There is also the mark Due 3 in a circle and a 3c Postage Due stamp.

A 2c 1883. The postmark is Washington, D. C., Jan. 14, 1884. The letter was sent to a Washington address and has a Congressman's frank in the upper right corner. The stamp is cancelled by a large oval grid with a 2 in the center. It is also stamped "Returned to Writer" in a circle and again postmarked Washington, D. C., Feb. 5, 4 P. M., 1884 5. On the back are two Carrier postmarks, both dated Jan. 15, and a mark which reads, Box Department, Jan. 15, 1 A. M. 1. All the backstamps are in magenta.

A 3c National is tied by a postmark, which is placed squarely upon it, and has another at its left. This is Merced, Cal., Aug. 2, 1871, in purple. Fine.

A 3c re-engraved cancelled by a large six in a circle shows a shift in all the letters and other parts of the stamp.

A postal card from Melrose, Iowa, has the postmark and a solid five-point star in a circle in purple, and looks very brilliant.

A long strip of a cover shows a strip of three, a pair and a single 3c green, a 1c blue, and a 2c vermilion, each cancelled by a purple star in a circle.

A cover with a magenta Mendicino, Cal., octagonal postmarked, shows a pair of 10c, a pair of 3c and a 1c American stamps.

A large cover with a strip of three and two singles of the 3c green Continental shows the large blue triangle of the Dead Letter Office used 1876, Aug. 4.

A cover with three 3c and a 10c Cent. all cancelled in purple at Florence, Mass., and a cover with a pair of 10c, a pair of 1c and a single 3c pencancelled with the postmark of Moscow, N. Y., and a star in a circle at the left of the stamps, give us some idea of rates on registered letters in those days.

A 2c 1883 comes from Lovelock, Butte Co., Cal., a 2c 1893 Col. stamped envelope is from Alleghany, Sierra Co., Cal., a 3c American from Cookeville, Putnam Co., Tenn., and two 3c re-engraved cancelled by red targets are from Rock Falls, Dunn Co., Wis., and the postmark is also red.

Turn back to Sept. 6 and mark No. 4, "Shoo fly," as having come from Evansville, Ind. Mr. J. W. Fox sends it on 3c 1864 stamped envelope, and reports having it on 3c 1869 adhesive. Fine work.

Mr. George R. Cooley has sent a 3c 1864 stamped envelope with a very unusual shade of red used to postmark it, from Franklin, N. Y. Franklin, N. Y., also used red during the '70's, but this is the usual shade. Mr. Cooley also reports that South Worcester, N. Y., used red for cancelling purposes in 1871.

KNOWING THE PHILATELISTS' DESIRES

By HARRY M. KONWISER.

Mr. E. K. Kilburn, vice president and general sales manager for the Westinghouse Electric & Manufacturing Company, in advising salesmen, said:

"To know your customer's business does not imply that you should tell him his business."

If Mr. Kilburn is a stamp collector he will look at the efforts of so many of the tradesmen in the fold with a bit of a smile, for he will notice that the men who pretend to salesmanship ability, do that very thing—in too many instances.

In almost every business the salesmen are continuously urged to know that business, for the analysts in the commercial life have sensed the fact that the potential buyer does enjoy talking to a man who knows the business he is engaged in. As a matter of fact most stamp salesmen do know their business; that is, they do know the stamp collecting hobby and it is for that reason that so many of the high-spot salesmen in the fold are met with open arms by the mere collector, who has neither the time or the patience to make a study of his hobby—nor any desire to make of stamp collecting anything more than a pleasant pastime.

The highest form of salesmanship is that which consists of the capacity to think in the term of the customer. It is not sufficient that the stamp salesman should sell a minor variety, shall we say, from the viewpoint of attractiveness for the album page but he should be able to point out the fact that some of the leading collections in the world are without this particular stamp, and why—even beyond its almost unique standing—it bears a part to the particular collection the collector is forming.

While the viewpoint of future financial enhancement is not to be cast lightly aside, what about the particular reason it is being offered to the particular buyer? There must be a reason for every sale, beyond the probabilities of a rise in the catalog.

Every stamp collector wants certain things. The "why" is of no moment to any one except the collector and the dealer who aims to sell stamps. If he knows the "why" he sells much easier

Purchase of the FRANK H. ALEXANDER COLLECTION OF British North Americans

I have to announce the purchase of this large collection formed during many years by Mr. F. H. Alexander of Winnipeg, Canada.

In Canada the collection contains stamps down to about 1900, in Newfoundland to 1911 and in British Columbia, New Brunswick, Nova Scotia and Prince Edward Island, up to Federation.

This collection is a very large one, specially strong in all old issues in great quantities, in unused, used, and fine old stamps on covers. Selections of any issue or country can be sent on approval. Please state just what you want to see and I am sure I can please you with quality and price. [tf] than by merely offering "catalog value" at prices assumed to be favorable.

Stamp sellers should be students of selling, as well as students of stamps and from my personal observation—one exception—the outstanding salesmen in the field are really men possessing more than ordinary knowledge of stamps. The cleverer of the salesmen manage to present their wares in a manner that makes for the establishment of good relations between the seller and buyer. There can be no such thing as "the one-timer" in stamp selling.

is not altogether a proposition where one has the will to sell the rest is a simple matter. The failures in stamp selling line have had that thought.

Stamp collectors need advice, as do other class of men do. The average stamp collector simply does not know too much above the ordinary things to make a pleasant time as a stamp collector. And so the collectors, not interested in studying for themselves, learn to rely on the sellers who not only know the stamp business, but have an understanding of the particular aims of each collector. And who will say that the form of collecting is not specialized?

Dealers who have the interests of their customers in mind are the sort of dealers who have the interests of the hobby in mind; they are stamp counsellors, always seeking the immediate sale, realizing that it pays to establish confidence.

In general merchandising the salesmen has to create a value for himself as well as his wares. In stamp selling the value comes after the confidence has been established. Stamp sellers, who aim to be successful, are hardly likely to be over-takers.

Know the customer's wants, then what will pay in the long run.

AT the annual meeting of the Franklin Stamp Club of Philadelphia, Pa., on Wednesday, May 4, William Hess,
Jr. was unanimously re-elected president.
Much activity and real enthusiasm has been shown by this club during the past

Smith; Vice President, C. E. W. Wel-

A FINE price list has just been issued by Milton T. Mauck, Baltimore, Md. It lists and prices a superb line of Air Mail and First Day Covers. In red, white and blue, it makes a fine appearance.

THE stamp collectors of Mill Valley, California, were given a rare treat on May 2, when Dr. Ferdinand Fischer entertained at his picturesque mountainside home (Mill Valley being a suburban city, 12 miles north of San Francisco and at the foot of Mt. Tamalpais and at the entrance to Muir Woods National Park. Dr. Fischer displayed his wonderful collection of U. S. cut square envelopes, which he has spent much time and labor as well as money in accumulating over a period of years. His collection is highly specialized and comprises about 2,200 varieties and is practically a complete collection of all U. S. envelopes, the value being about $2,500.00. Of the 1903 re-engraved issue, numbering some 143 dies, he has almost complete.—WILL FALLEY.

Written for MEKEEL'S.
COLONIAL NOTES
By "CALABAR."

Malta.—The 10s "Postage," I presume, is now obsolete, the 10s Pictorial having been issued early in February.
During the currency of the former stamp
the London market value was considerably lower than the New York figure—a fact worth noting in passing. Whilst copies were quoted, in at least one instance, at 11s6d, they rarely sold here for less than $4. Prices will now, of course, show an upward trend, but I think the difference—though less noticeable—will continue.

Following are the dates of issue of the various values of the current King's head and Pictorial series, which is now complete.

1/4d, 4d, 4 1/2d, 1s, 1s6d, 2s, 2s6d, 3s
(6th April, 1926).
6d, 5s (5th May).
1/2d (3d August).
1 1/2d (7th October).
10s (9th February, 1927).
1d, 2d, 2 1/2d, 3d, (1st April).

St. Helena.—Judging by the usual indications, the current type 1s6d, 2s6d and 5s MCA are well worth seizing on at once. Already, the 5s is fetching twice face, and—what is perhaps more significant—all three values are amongst the stamps being advertised by dealers.
In this connexion, it should be noted that practically all of the now-scarce Colonials, issued during the past few years—
such as the 10s Caymans, the 3s and 5s Dominica, the 2s Turks, etc., etc.—were advertised for by dealers and speculators almost at once after becoming obsolete.

Leeward Ids.—At present prices the 1/2d Leewards seem the best of the various script "yellows" which are just now in the limelight. The total numbers sent out were only 6,000, and even taking into account the extra quantity disposed of by the Crown Agents, its current market quotation (around 50c) is all out of proportion to its scarcity. A block of 4 should be worth laying aside, as this figure is bound to take a big jump shortly.

St. Kitts.—Those lacking the current series of this popular West India Colony should make sure of a set whilst they are still obtainable at the usual current issue rates—a new series (1/2d to £1, and smaller in size than the double medallion stamps) being due to appear shortly.
This welcome news comes as a most unexpected surprise, but there seems little likelihood of any of the remaining duties on the MCA paper showing sudden rises, similar to the 3s and 5s Dominica, etc., as dealers and speculators will have ample time to lay in stocks before the new set appears.

BRUNEI

A few of the higher values still are obtainable on old block CA watermark. As some of these have been in issue since 1908 I should think they will soon be replaced by Script watermark:—

A good speculative opportunity

535 COMMONWEALTH AVE.,

BOSTON, MA

of the numerous collections he had purchased.

I had the free run of the whole of the Ferrary collection and almost every time I visited Paris I used to spend a day there usually with one of the Mahés, but my good friend Philip La Renotière was often there when I went. If he was not he always left instructions that I was to see all I wanted.

After Moens retired from business Ferrary decided to arrange all his countries by the Stanley Gibbons catalogues and he always encouraged me to make full notes of all varieties I found in his collection that were not catalogued, as he wished me to catalogue all varieties that he possessed.

One thing he insisted upon and that was that I never quote his name. I was at liberty to announce that I had seen a new variety, but not to state where.

On several occasions my dear old friend—Mr. M. P. Castle, asked me to search the Ferrary collection for varieties new to the lists about to be published in the monographs of the Royal Philatelic Society. I made many such lists and was also allowed to photograph rare stamps, such as unused Sydney Views, to help make perfect plates of unused stamps where copies could not be obtained in Great Britain.

One day I was sitting at Pierre Mahé's desk and I noticed at the back of it a board with a series of long sharp pointed nails upon it. On each nail was a large bundle of French bank notes, one nail for each denomination up to 1000 Francs. I asked Mahé what these were for and he said that Monsieur Progin (the treasurer) once a week filled up the nails with 50,000 Francs and that amount could be spent in a week, if required. (At current exchange this represented $ a week.)

When Ferrary's mother—the Duchesse de Galliera—died, she was estimated to be worth some two hundred millions of francs. She left large fortunes to the French Royalists, such as Comte de Paris, and she left her magnificent Palais, 57 Rue de Varenne, to the Austrian Government for the Austrian Embassy, with a proviso that during her son Philip's life he should have the use of one wing and live under the Austrian flag.

Ferrary died in Switzerland during the Great War. When his will was proved it was found that he had left a stamp collection to the Postal Museum in Berlin. The French Government confiscated the collection and ordered it to be sold at auction.

Some fourteen sales have been held under the very able management of Monsieur Gilbert and nearly $2,000,000 have been realized.

Ferrary was a great recluse and himself very isolated except to a few people that he was really friendly with among which I am happy to know was one for over twenty years. Whenever he came to England he always spent a Sunday with me at Twickenham, later on at Sevenoaks. He always enjoyed long walks.

He was a kind and liberal philanthropist and on scores of occasions asked to send sums of £100 or £200 to cases of distress that had come to his notice. His name was never given as he asked me to send his donations as "A Paris Student" or "A friend of England" and so on.—Philatelic Collector

REMINISCENCES OF FERRARY

By CHARLES J. PHILLIPS.

Philip La Renotière von Ferrary was, and I think always will be, the greatest stamp collector the world has ever seen.

He was the son of the famous Duchesse de Galliera, who owned a large portion of Genoa, Italy. She married as her second husband an Austrian nobleman—Ritter La Renotière von Ferrary.

From his early days the Duchesse encouraged her son to collect stamps. Mr. Stanley Gibbons told me that he well remembered that in the early seventies, while he was at Plymouth, Ferrary visited him, and was then accompanied by his mother and his tutor.

The Ferrary collection was based on a great number of famous collections that he and his mother purchased in the early days. A few particulars of some of the most famous of these may prove of interest.

When the Franco-German war broke out in 1870, the French Baron Rothschild went to Brussels and while there, to pass the time, went to J. B. Moens and sought his help to make the finest possible collection of stamps that could be got together. The great Moens stock was picked and Rothschild's and Moens' agents throughout the world were written to in order to get sheets and blocks of the older issues.

After the war was over Rothschild returned to Paris and went on collecting for some years, but eventually sold his collection to Ferrary, and this was one of the sources of the many fine blocks and sheets of old issues found in this collection, very many of which are now in the collection of Mr. Arthur Hind.

Sir Daniel Cooper was the Governor of New South Wales over fifty years ago. While there he formed a great collection of Australian stamps and when he went home to England he was, for a time, President of the Philatelic Society, London. Later on he sold his collection to Ferrary for £3000, and from this source came many of those marvellous blocks of unused Australian stamps that we have seen in the Paris sales.

For many years Judge Frederick Philbrick, Q. C., had one of the finest and most complete general collections of stamps in Great Britain. He had almost all the then known rarities. About 1885 he sold his whole collection to Ferrary for £7000.

Mr. W. B. Thornhill of London, specialized in Australian stamps and plated the New South Wales "Sydneys" and "Laureated" also other countries. About 1896 he sold this to Ferrary.

For nearly 50 years Ferrary had the pick of all the purchases of the great dealers of the world, and no one I have ever met knew better the real value of all varieties than he did.

Ferrary kept two secretaries to help him arrange his collections. For the stamps he selected the famous old Paris dealer—Pierre Mahé, and on his death, he was succeeded by his son Edward Mahé.

For his entires (envelopes, postcards, etc.) Schmidt de Wilde was his Secretary. Two rooms in his residence, the famous old French Palais at 57 Rue de Varenne, Boulevard St. Germaine, were set aside for his collections, one for stamps and one for entires.

In the stamp room three sides of the room were lined with cupboards with nests of shelves about 9 inches apart. The stamps were all mounted on strips of stout paper. On there the details of each issue was written across the top, and the stamps were arranged below in two rows. As a rule the unused were on separate sheets from the used.

Ferrary only liked single copies in his collection proper, sometimes pairs of famous stamps were included, such as the British Guiana, 1850, 2c rose, or where two varieties were shown set-tenant.

These loose sheets were wrapped up in two paper covers, the name of the country and the issue written on the outside and then the bundles were arranged in order on the shelves.

On the top shelves all round the stamp room were large bundles, each one labeled with the name of a country. In these large bundles were what Ferrary termed his "duplicates." These were the remains

VISITOR FROM AUSTRALIA

Miss West, managing director of J. H. Smyth, Ltd., Sydney, Australia, has arrived in the United States and according to her itinerary is now in New York; from there she will sail on June 4th for England, where she hopes to attend the Philatelic Congress to be held at Birmingham in June, 1927. After short stays in San Francisco and Los Angeles, respectively, Miss West arrived in Chicago on May 4th, and remained until the 9th. In that city, Miss West's first call was on Mr. S. Newbury whose collecting fame is not confined to his own country of Chicago, and whom Miss West met when Mr. Newbury was in Australia last year. Miss West was introduced into the philatelic circles of the city and attended the meeting of the Chicago Philatelic Society held May 10th, where she read a letter from the Sydney Philatelic Club, which asked her to accept its president for due philatelic recognition for Miss West. Miss West, making her long trip, which will comprise the world, both for business and pleasure and carrying with her, as she is a representation of the stock of J. H. Smyth, Ltd., in Australia and is, she is prepared to meet collectors and dealers in the several cities in which she will stop for a time. She is desirous of coming into contact with those whom she knows in this country only by correspondence, or for that matter are subscribers to the Australian Stamp Journal, and she has been editing since the death of Mr. Smyth. After Miss West's arrival in England, she will proceed home by way of Suez and Colombo, to arrive in Sydney in November. In Chicago Miss West was given due attention and she saw evidences of the philatelic life in that city, where many wished to do her honor. Miss West is a keen philatelist whose perceptions naturally are particularly sharp when Australasian stamps are under scrutiny. She has the collector's regard for stamps and this, combined with an unusual business instinct, makes her the best type of dealer. We should say that she would make a good copy for an article on successful business women in one of the magazines which seeks in channels out of the ordinary for material that has an inspirational suggestion. We hope that Miss West will depart from the United States with the conviction that her presence here was not welcome.

Through the courtesy of Frank Godden, we are very glad to add the name of Sir Nicholas Waterhouse of London to our Honor Club list. Sir Nicholas is well known to our readers through his interest in S. Stamps.
We are also indebted to Edgar C. Stillman of Troy, N. Y., for his application for membership in our Honor Club.
Mr. Stolberg joins the Club quietly, merely saying "Renew for five years," which check speaks eloquently.

UNSATISFACTORY DEALINGS

(The following appears in the current number of the "American Philatelist" in the Secretary's department. It is needless to say that this is a move in the right direction. If the Board of Directors, soon to be elected, will make this cleanup an objective, it will render Philately a service that will be extremely valuable and make the A. P. S. much more effective than it has been in the past. As the Managing Editor left May 11 for an extended trip abroad, we cannot present our specific grievances against two members, but upon his return he will aid the new board of A. P. S. Directors to the fullest extent.—Ed.)

"It is further requested that all complaints of unsatisfactory dealings with members or conduct unbecoming a member of this Society, be reported promptly to the Secretary. The Board of Directors have decided to "clean house" thoroughly, so that the letters "A.P.S." and a number attached will mean something. One philatelic paper has given this society a black eye, in publishing a notice that it will not accept an A.P.S. number as a reference. This condition should not exist and the present Board has decided that it shall not. We want an A.P.S. number to guarantee that the holder does business on the square and does it promptly. If we have members who do not do business in just this way, let's get rid of him and publish the fact to protect others. Complaints are invited to this end. We are going to "clean house" and we are going to do it thoroughly and promptly and we want the co-operation of every prompt square dealing member."

EDITORIAL

Our mail shows that a good many of our readers are not to be silenced by what they are prone to consider lobbying measures to scotch the commemoratives; and they insist upon speaking right out in meeting. We thought that the subject had been viewed from all possible angles, but we find that two correspondents, one of whom writes at length and includes the argument made by the first writer, have brought in a factor that heretofore has not been considered fully. This consists in the statement that stamp collectors have no right to prevail over the wishes of the great public, in making their demands. The non-philatelic public is entitled to its hour of romance as embodied in a new celebratory stamp, irrespective of the opinion of a relatively small body of folks who happen to be stamp collectors. The point is one worth attention, but in discussing the question, it must not be assumed that philatelic opinion on the propriety of the issues is not about evenly divided. Because of this circumstance, it is evident that there is much to be said about the subject, in commendation or condemnation, as you will.

Through the courtesy of Mr. Joseph Goder, Chicago, we are enabled to give a free translation of a philatelic item that appeared in the Sonntagspost, Chicago, recently: "A decision, very interesting to stamp collectors, was reached at a jury trial in Hamburg. A local stamp dealer ordered from an artist in Leipzig, wood cuts of the typical cancellations of Saxony. With these wood cuts, he canceled mint specimens and sold them for canceled stamps at higher prices. Dealers were suspicious for a long time and endeavored to trace the falsifications. Then, the impudence of the dealer to offer the forgeries in public auction at low prices led to the discovery. A number of wood cuts were found in the house. Three months in the penitentiary was the verdict. The court based his decision on the charge of obtaining money under false pretenses and not forgery." Saxony does not offer as inviting a field for "using" uncanceled stamps as some of the other German states, but it is good to hear that the culprit was convicted.

A reader with a memory says that nearly twenty years ago, a statement appeared in a stamp paper that within a quarter of a century it probably would be found that stamp-meter machines had so seriously curtailed the issue of stamps that collectors would rue the day when they first were used. He wants to know how the prophet knew!

A reader says that he thinks that the pen-canceled stamps of the earlier issues of the United States have an interest for him that does not seem to be shared by a majority of collectors. Properly enough, he arrives at his conclusion because of the fact that the prices asked for the stamps in this condition are lower than those quoted for specimens with the regulation obliterations. He asks if there is any objection against the pen-marked stamps that is unknown to him and that if so, he would like to know what it is. While we have no way of guessing just how deeply this correspondent has considered the subject, a few words suggest themselves as applying to this class of stamps. Referring to the U. S. stamps that are canceled with writing-ink, it is admitted that a prejudice against them has been apparent for many years; and it is to be accounted for without much investigation. In the earlier days of collecting, unused stamps were not wanted by some collectors and others who did not reject them, still preferred the used stamps. Demonetized stamps of the 1857-60 issue and later, the partment remainders were scarce and in not a few instances they made into "used" stamps by the process of marking them with crosses or curlycues in ink. A ninety-cent 1857-60, for example, was always postally used, but there was a time it could be bought for less than face a stamp invalid for postage; and demont stamps were known to have distributed as favors after the production had been taken by the clerks in departments of pen-stroking the stamps. Consequently, the position of these stamps was anomalous at least and they feited collecting favor to some extent. So, this distaste had a tendency to on all the pen-canceled stamps of time and the result was that they discriminated against in the mind collectors; and they have not yet placed on a par with the really stamps.

In looking for references to marked stamps of the United States find that in a circular letter sent out of the post office department in 1852, masters were enjoined to take particular care to comply with the following regulation of the Postmaster General: "postage stamps affixed to any letter packet, or parcel of any description, be immediately and effectually canceled in the office in which the letter, packet or parcel may be delivered for delivery transmission." It was not for years later that the department demanded special ink must be used and in 1879, instance, the instructions were that black printing-ink could not be obtained "the operation should be performed making several heavy crosses or parallel lines upon each stamp with a pen dip in good black writing-ink." The that writing-ink cancellations were followed by the authorities, gives the stamp treated with them a clean bill of health and when the unused stamp is placed above that of the used stamp, the stroked stamp would seem to have a better standing than is given it, as a stamp. There is never apt to be any question the genuineness of the stamp, in the of U. S., that the regulation cancellations would aid in settling. All in all, think that our correspondent is on the right track, as in all probability the pen-canceled United States will grow, rather than diminish in collecting favor.

Benzine Cup

A philatelic accessory invented for the detection of watermarks. It exists in various shapes, but the principle is the same in all, i.e., it is a vessel with the bottom portion dead black into which benzine (hence its name) can be poured.

When the stamps are placed in the benzine the watermarks usually show quite clearly. Benzine has the peculiar property of not affecting the color or gum of stamps and it evaporates with great rapidity.

Our Ugly Stamps

Our rulers spend the nation's time In long and tedious debating, But none denounce the hateful crime That is the subject of my rhyme, The dastardly creating Of vile adhesives, that atrocious, To make my peaceful soul ferocious.

A nation with artistic pride Indulges in much more variety, And frequent issues e'er provide A catalogue of all who've tried To benefit society, And every stamp is made artistic With colourful surcharges mystic.

Though years, in vain, I've longed to see This plan adopted in our country, No dainty ochre-coloured tree Nor purple grass has gladdened me, For no-one's had the effort'ry, But what indeed could be much chie'er, Than stamps like those of Costa Rica?

But now let us begin again To pester all the daily papers, Till stamp designs become more sane, And range in an artistic chain From tripe to prosperous drapers, And we can purchase for a shilling, A view of me or Thomas Tilling!

Junior Dictionary

Che Sopra Gli Altri Com' Aquila Vola.—"He who is above others as the eagle flies" an inscription on the 15c Dante stamp issued in 1921 by Italy.

Chita.—This is a city of 30,000 in what is known as the Far Eastern Republic (carved out of Siberia as a result of the World War). In 1919 stamps of Russia were surcharged for local use, Mongolia and part of the district of Amur.

Christmas Island.—A British possession in the Pacific Ocean which has been leased for a long term of years to the Central Pacific Coconut Plantations, Ltd. A local stamp has been issued by the company to be used on the mail despatched to Tahiti, the nearest member of the Universal Postal Union. Supplementary stamps of Tahiti would be required for transmission beyond that point.

C. I. H. S.—The initials of Commission Interalliee Haute Silesie or Inter-Allied Commission for Upper Silesia. An overprint found on the official stamps, Nos. 201 to 220, of Upper Silesia.

Cilicia.—This is the old Turkish province of Adana, north of Cyprus. During the World War in 1919, under French Occupation a great variety of surcharged stamps were issued consisting of Turkish stamps with name of country in French "Cilicie."

Comissao Portuguesa De Prisoneiros De Guerra.—Found on Portugal, Nos. 403 and 404. Means "Portuguese Commission of Prisoners of War," these stamps being used by the members of the military commission in charge of prisoners allocated to Portugal by the Allies.

C. M. T.—(Campana Militare Timbru).—This inscription found on the stamps of Western Ukraina means Military Campaign Stamp. They were used during the Roumanian occupation from June 28 to July 24, 1919.

Catalog Number Markings

By CLARK COOPER (14).

I read in a recent issue of your magazine, that some of the Juniors advocate the placing of the catalog number on the back of each stamp sold by dealers. I am writing you to state my opinion that the idea is impractical for the following reasons:

(1) A dealer having a stock of thousands of varieties would find it impossible to do so.

(2) The value of the stamps so treated would be lessened, especially in the case of unused varieties.

(3) The collector will derive more benefit from his hobby if he learns through study, how to distinguish the various varieties. If the catalog number of the stamp were on the back of each, there would be no need for the collector to use his own head.

The Wrong Cut

In the issue of March 7th, on the Junior Page, Robert Strauss, aged 15, contributed an interesting article on "The World's Rarest Stamp," which was illustrated by a cut of the circular type of the first issue of British Guiana, 1850. It should be known, certainly, that the stamp has been receiving so much acclaim since Mr. Hind bought it at Paris in the Ferrary sale is the one-cent black on red of the 1856 issue. For years the stamp catalogues have contained the information that only one copy of this stamp was known; and, incidentally, it is priced at $32,500 in the Scott catalogue, in used condition. This unique stamp is type A4 in our catalogue; and it is too bad that Robert's article was subjected to this erroneous treatment, in a pictorial sense. It remained for Mr. M. Givewell of London to point out the mistake and we thank him for doing so. This confusion of cuts was not noticed by us and nobody called our attention to it; as evidently the error was considered an obvious one.

B. C. A.

The first stamps used in British Central Africa—from 1891 to 1895—consisted of the stamps of the British South Africa Company overprinted with the letters "B. C. A." These stamps were used in Northern Rhodesia and Nyasaland, but when special stamps were issued their use was confined to the latter territory which was renamed the British Central Africa Protectorate.

Brazil War Stamps

A curious looking label that has puzzled numbers of collectors and which turns up fairly frequently in old collections consists of a rectangular frame containing four lines of inscription as follows:—"Exercito—Em Operacoes—contra—o Paraguay." The natural inference would be to class it as a curiosity from Paraguay unless one had some slight knowledge of the Spanish language. Scott ignores these labels but Gibbons lists them on blue, green, orange yellow and rose papers. From this source we learn that these stamps were used by Brazilian soldiers in the war with Paraguay. The stamps were printed by a stationer in Rio de Janeiro

GONE

The news of the death of two collectors who have been associated with philately for many years comes to us. Mr. L. J. Flerlage writes that Mrs. Alice Matter of Seattle, Washington, has informed him that her husband, Alphonse S. Matter, passed away on April 1, 1927, as a result of heart trouble. Mr. Flerlage says that Mr. Matter formerly lived in Cincinnati and conducted a fine stamp shop in the Arcade for a while, and Mr. Flerlage bought his first stamps from his sheets. Mr. Matter retained his interest in the pursuit of the stamp and was a member of the International Philatelic Association at the time of his death.

John C. Bjerke, Chicago, died recently, after a period of incapacitation, due to an injury inflicted by an automobile that struck him some time ago. Mr. Bjerke had retired from business and devoted some of his leisure to stamps, to which he was much devoted. For a number of years he was a member of the American Philatelic Society and while he was not widely known to collectors in his own city, those with whom he was acquainted appreciated his kindly nature and generous impulses. His several visits to the Chicago office of the WEEKLY NEWS were remembered with a pleasure that is tinged with melancholy, now that this friendly gentleman has left our world.

NOVEL COLLECTIONS

By FRED. J. MELVILLE.

A boy in New Zealand recently gave a display before the members of the Christchurch Philatelic Society in which his own imagination was shown. Among the sections into which he divided his collection were:

- Stamps with stories.
- Native habitations.
- Places of worship.
- Grandeur of the mountains.
- Wonders of the past.
- Past and present rulers of Europe.
- Inelegant designs.
- Heraldry.
- Stamps and religion.
- Miniatures.
- Artists' and engravers' errors.
- Safety devices.

We can quite appreciate that a collection arranged on such lines as this would interest many a non-collector, and prove to him that there is more than a little fascination and charm lurking in the collection of postage stamps.

To select the more novel of the lines indicated by the Christchurch boy, one could form a compact little "Ideal Home Exhibition" out of his "native habitations." The homes would range from native huts in the Congo, Samoa, Brunei, to palatial but perhaps no longer very homely residences like the Winter Palace at Petrograd or the Kremlin. We could even find a few cosy interiors—such as furnished by Mr. Drage—as in the case of Senhor Castello Branco's study (Portugal 1925).

"Inelegant designs" would afford the embryo art critic an opportunity for discussing the merits and demerits of the works of painters and engravers. There is ample scope here for the variety of designs is almost unlimited, and a close observer will often spot inconsistencies or inaccuracies in drawing in minute details of vignette or frame.

"Safety devices" inclines more to the strictly philatelic study of stamps, for these include factors in the manufacture of stamps, not forgetting watermarks, and to some extent perforations, which afford some measure of security against forgery. But I imagine our Christchurch friend was thinking as well of heliographs, under-prints, back-prints, check-letters, control marks, grilles, and a sort of methods adopted by stamp printers in pursuance of the ideal of "Safety First."

Many boys and girls develop through time and other associations special knowledge of particular subjects. Why not see whether such knowledge can be applied to a study of stamp design. A florist's apprentice, for instance, might study the habiliments of the people depicted on stamps from the lightly clad

CAPE AND EGYPT

Africa has been strongly represented in our recent buying. A $5000 collection of CAPE "TRIANGULARS" is now being broken up, and selections can be sent on approval.

A collection of EGYPT, early issues, value about $2500, is also being dispersed, and contains many items of interest to specialists.

Our stocks of RHODESIA and S. W. AFRICA are also strong.

Selections of these, or any other countries or issues, can be promptly sent on approval, on receipt of usual business references.

Kanakas to the gentleman in Oxford bags (on the Uruguay 1 cent 1895), and the overdressed chap in tight trousers (Uruguay 5c 1904). The girls might equally study the garb and the coiffeurs des dames. One of the latest Salvador stamps is said to show a shingled lady (the stamp has not yet come my way) and most of us have had to pay a little attention to chignons and back curls on stamps of Gt. Britain, Gambia, Heligoland, Labuan, Portugal and other countries.

One could go on enumerating other notions for young collectors to take up and write out, but it is far from my present purpose to do more than stimulate some of them to think out some of these or similar ideas for themselves.—The Stamp Lover.

RANDOM REFLECTIONS

By S. K. MORLEY.

"Handle with Care."

The general collector does not get very far along the road of Philately before he discovers great differences in the "tearability" of stamps of various countries.

The middle issues of Holland and Luxemburg and modern Portuguese and United States are amongst the worst in this respect, and the proportion of thinned specimens one comes across amongst "swops" is extraordinary. The rather flimsy paper used by Messrs. Enschel & Sons of Haarlem is easily identifiable in the case of the first two countries, and the beginner who ruthlessly rips the hinges from these stamps is likely to find himself with an alarming number of worthless casualties.

Thank Heaven, they were tough!

And does not the "tearability" and "soilability" of the modern stamp, with its fugitive colours and chalk surface, make one profoundly thankful for the comparative toughness of the classics? As it is, these old stamps are all too scarce. But if the "ancients" had been anything like the "moderns" in texture and fibre, would a quarter of those at present extant have survived? We doubt it.

Those relics passed from hand to hand, both clean and gentle, rude and rough; Life hanging by the slenderest strand—Thank Heaven they were jolly tough!

The "Mood of the Moment."

Someone has suggested that certain countries stand for certain moods in Philately, and with most collectors this sentiment will strike a responsive note.

Who, for example, at the tail-end of an evening's work, feels like sorting and classifying a handful of New South Wales, Victoria or United States specimens with their multifarious perforations and highly elusive watermarks?

When I am tired, or semi-tired, give me a "foolproof" country where everything is plain-sailing. In such a mood the arrangement of a few nice stamps that do credit to my collection in one of the "easy" countries will act as a restorative to my jaded spirits, whereas a period of close application with the magnifying glass and perforation gauge will have an exactly opposite effect.

The time to "settle down" to a "difficult" country like New South Wales or United States, is at the beginning of an evening when the light is good and the senses are alert.

Under such circumstances a task that requires concentration will be full of pleasure, whereas, at a later hour, the self-same job would be unbearably tiresome.

Making "Difficult" Countries "Easy."

The mention of New South Wales suggests a way in which some folk have simplified their philatelic work in this and similarly complicated countries.

Suppose a twopenny blue, Queen's Head, comes along, for example. Instead of running through several pages of the Catalogue and finding the various headings under which this stamp appears, the collector simply turns to a typewritten list under which the whole of the varieties of perforation, watermark and colour are summarised as follows:—

| No. | Perf. | Wmk. | Color. | Paper. |
|------|-------|------------|----------------|-------------|
| 188 | 14 | None. | Pale Blue. | Surfaced. |
| 189 | 13 | Double | | |
| | | lined "2." | Blue. | Unsurfaced. |
| 189a | 12 | " | " | " |
| 189b | 12 | 13 | " | " |
| 194 | 13 | Type 23. | Pale Blue. | " |
| 197 | 13 | None. | " | Thin wove. |
| 199 | 12 | Single | " | " |
| | | lined "2." | " | " |
| 199a | 13 | " | " | " |
| 200 | 13 | " | Cobalt blue. | " |
| 201 | 13 | " | Prussian blue. | " |
| 202 | 13 | Double | Dull blue. | " |
| | | lined "5." | " | " |
| | | etc. etc. | | |

This method saves a good deal of laborious searching, particularly for beginners who are not too familiar with the Catalogue, but who nevertheless want to keep accurate record of the various watermarks and perforations.

Condition comes first.

The wise collector is always on the lookout for brilliant specimens even though they be of quite common varieties.

The psychological effect of row upon row of perfect stamps is such that by some subtle means they throw a radiance over their fellows and raise the "tone" of the entire collection.

on the 2c and "AUROTA, ILL." on the 10c. Genuine errors, without question, but so impossibly misspelled as to cause one to scratch his head in grave wonder. After "Prof" got back to Valley City, he wrote that he took another look to make sure he hadn't been dreaming when in the Twin Cities, and was relieved to find "AUROTA" and "AUROA" still the same, and still on cover.

Liberty, N. Y.—is using a small hand-stamped cancellation of plain caps similar to U-75. Have it on the 4c perf. 10. Elma, N. Y., is another newcomer in rather queer shaped serif caps between lines on the 20c, reading up. Cortland, N. Y., has a new handstamp, consisting of small thick caps between bars.

Conclusion.—This department wishes to be of service to all who are interested in precancels. We will present every reader who sends 4c postage with a sample packet and booklet entitled "The A. B. C. of Precancel Collecting." If you wish to join the Precancel Stamp Society, write the editor for a blank. The only purely precancel publication is the quarterly Precancel Gazette issued only to members of the Precancel Stamp Society. The 1926 Standard Precancel Catalog is all sold out at present. Some new copies of the 1925 edition are available at a cost of one dollar. The 1928 edition will probably not appear until January, 1928. At all times the editor is anxious to examine precancels that readers may think are of interest to others.

U. S. DEPARTMENTS
COVERS—CANCELLATIONS

I have just purchased what I believe to be the finest collection of Departmental covers ever gotten together, in addition to a superb lot of singles, pairs, strips and blocks in used condition off cover. Cancellations galore in blue, purple, red, black, orange, green, brown and magenta in most of the issues. We find the Kicking Mule, as well as the Skull and Cross Bones. There are Fort cancellations, Stars, Crosses, as well as other interesting designs. Town cancellations in colors are noted here and there.

The owner possibly spent thirty to forty years in getting this collection together. It contains such things as all of the Executive on cover, the 24c Justice in pair and single in similar condition, the $2 State on cover in combination with seventeen 30c and a 10c—in other words, unique pieces.

Some of the outstanding items are as follows:

EXECUTIVE

Cover 1c, 2c from Washington to New York, cancelled in purple, 2c and 3c used to England, black Washington and red London postmarks.

3c—Two copies on cover to London, black Washington and red English postmark, 6c pair, similarly used.

3c—Eight covers with single stamps with Washington cancellation in black, purple and blue, also one from Long Branch, 10c—Strip of five on part cover, magenta Star cancellation, numerous used copies off cover.

STATE

Cover addressed to American Public Library, Stuttgart, Germany, with $2, seventeen 30c and single 10c, all in fine condition with black town cancellation, dated Oct. 25, 1882.

2c on cover: 3c—three covers.

6c and 7c on different covers.

10c—Two singles and pair on three covers, one from Legation at St. Petersburg.

12c and 15c on individual covers.

12c and 30c on same cover.

Five single 30c on cover.

Part cover with 1c, 3c, 24c, 30c pair.

90c—Seventeen copies on part cover.

Numerous used blocks off cover such as—

90c—Block of twelve, block of six, block of four.

30c—Block of forty, block of twenty-five.

Unusual lot of covers including pair of 24c used to Japan, showing black Washington and red Yokohama postmarks.

Similar cover to Japan with 6c and 30c.

12c on cover from Fort Leavenworth.

INTERIOR

Numerous covers, some with purple cancellations.

A copy of 6c cancelled, "USED UP".

A large number of single copies with unusual cancellations.

15c—Five copies on part cover.

This very unusual lot will be held intact for a reasonable time, as it should go to one collector. Should a collection of this kind be broken up, it is a question whether one could ever be gotten together again.

As the gentleman who formed this lot collected at a time when others paid little attention to these very unusual and rare items.

Correspondence solicited with interested parties.

New Stamp Plates

Through the courtesy of Mr. A. W. Hall, Director of the Bureau of Engraving and Printing, I am enabled to bring our list of plate numbers up to and including those issued to May 5, 1927.

It will be noticed that in this list we have our first 10c Special Delivery rotary press plates bearing numbers 18919-920. The Department has not as yet announced when these stamps will be ready to issue. One odd plate of the 13c is included, which possibly replaces a damaged plate in one of the previous sets.

Flood Mail

Through the courtesy of Mr. C. C. Bacon, we are able to report further details relative to the carrying of mails via aeroplane through the flood sections.

Under date of May 4th, the postmaster at Memphis states that for a period of five days, April 19th to 23rd, they had two planes coming in with mail from Little Rock for Memphis and Memphis distribution and dispatched two planes each day with the exception of the last day, Saturday, when three planes came through. At that time they were able to dispatch three or four packages of antitoxin for the hospitals in Little Rock, as well as for wholesale drug firms.

The postmaster states that the flights were made in two hours' time and the service was excellent. They did not dispatch any air mail from Memphis to New Orleans, as they can still reach the latter point over the Illinois Central Railroad.

The postmaster at Little Rock states that during the interruption of train service due to high water, that mail was carried from his office not only to Memphis, but from April 18th-23rd to Batesville, Lelodoro and Clarksville, Ark. No special postmark was used, nor were air mail stamps required. The first-class mail which had accumulated prior to the inauguration of the service went forward in this manner at the regular 2c rate.

The covers submitted for inspection by Mr. Bacon bear the regular normal postmarks on the front without back stamps.

Air Mail Notes

Under date of May 4th, the Postmaster General cancelled the contract of the Kaess Aircraft Engineering Corporation of Amityville, L. I., to carry mail by air from Cleveland, Ohio, to Louisville, Ky. The contract was awarded on November 8, 1926, but service has not as yet been inaugurated.

Relative to the Cleveland-Pittsburg contract air mail covers, Mr. Percival K. Stone calls attention to the fact that the Cleveland office used two stamps for postmarking, one showing distinct capital letters sharply cut, whereas the other showed slight serifs on the smaller lettering. At first glance, they appear to be identical.

In my chronicle for April 25th, statement was made that the Postmaster General had selected Spartanburg, S. C., as a stopping point for the air mail route from New York to Chicago. Anyone familiar with our map would realize that this was an error and should have read between New York-Atlanta.

year 1850 sheets which had been perforated were supplied at the House of Commons for the use of Members of Parliament, and subsequently Archer experimented upon some five thousand sheets of the one penny stamps, part of which he distributed, the rest being sent to country post offices. These stamps must of course be on the original covers to show the postmarked date prior to the adoption of perforation by the authorities and the official issue of perforated stamps. Archer did not consider the price offered by the Treasury for his machine and patent rights was sufficient, so negotiations dragged on until he finally was paid the sum of £4,000 in May, 1853. The machine was not brought into immediate use for the postage stamps, but others were specially constructed for the work, which was begun on January 28, 1854. The issue of the stamps with this innovation doubtless awaited the ordering of supplies by postmasters, and the earliest date recorded for the one penny is February 20, 1854, and for the twopenny April 7, 1854.

The perforating was done at Somerset House by the Treasury and not by the manufacturers. The machines were what is now known as the "comb" type, perforating a whole horizontal line and as many short vertical lines as were necessary to separate the stamps in a horizontal row. Thus at one operation twelve stamps were perforated at the top and sides only, the bottom being perforated when the sheet was moved into position for the next row to be operated on. The pins were at first arranged to make 16 holes in the space of two centimeters, but it was found that this resulted in the stamps tearing apart too readily when handled and the "gauge" was changed to 14 holes in the same space. The change took place early in 1855, the earliest date of use known for the one penny being January 6th, and for the twopenny March 4th; but the 16 gauge was still used to some extent, as stamps prepared as late as 1857 are found with it.

Toward the end of 1854 it was noticed that some of the newer plates gave fainter impressions and did not last as long as the earlier plates from the original die. The earlier, up to about 1852, would give around 100,000 good impressions, but during the next two years the number ran down to about a quarter of that amount. The finely engraved original die had been used to prepare about 50,000 impressions on steel up to that time, and as deterioration was apparent a duplicate copy was made and given to Mr. W. Humphrys, a skilled engraver in the employ of Messrs. Perkins, Bacon & Co., who deepened many of the lines in order to make a stronger delineation of the main features of the design, so that it would last longer. The result was shown in the fact that two plates from this re-engraved or "retouched" die, as it should properly be called, gave over a million impressions and one nearly a million. The stamps from the retouched die can be distinguished from the original one by the shading about the eye being more clearly defined, the nostril being more curved, the band behind the ear more distinct and the shading on the neck heavier. The stamps from the new die made their appearance in February, 1855, and like their predecessors occur with both perforations, 16 and 14.

THE GEORGIAN ISSUES OF JAMAICA

To the loyal island of Jamaica belongs the distinction of having issued the first postage stamp printed from the Georgian key-plates in the form of a 3d denomination in the so-called "Nyasaland" type, which made its debut on March 6, 1912, in accordance with the subjoined official notification:—

"STAMP OFFICE
2nd March, 1912.

The following is a description of a threepenny Postage Stamp which will be put in circulation on the 6th March, 1912. The design of the stamp is denoted by the profile of King George the Fifth, to the left, in an oval frame surmounted by a Crown, on either side of which is threepence in numerals, and to the left and right of the frame respectively are the words 'Postage' and 'Revenue,' and underneath 'Jamaica.' The colour of the stamp is brown (sic) on yellow paper.

GEO. S. THOMPSON,
Deputy Stamp Commissioner."

Six other values, from 1d to 1sh, appeared in the same type during the course of the same year, and in due course supplementary denominations of 1½d, 2sh and 5sh were also included in the Georgian issue of Jamaican Postage and Revenue stamps.

Except for the 1d stamp, which comes in large sheets of 240, all were printed in two panes of 60, side by side, with plate number "1" four times on the margins.

The 1d, originally issued in booklet form on December 5, 1912, was not sold in Post Office sheets until a month later.

Jamaica was likewise the first Crown Colony to be supplied with stamps printed upon the emergency surface-tinted coloured papers ("white back") in 1913. The number of 3d stamps printed on the "white-back" paper must have been considerable as they lasted until 1915 and still left a residue, which was converted into War Tax stamps in the following year. Both the 4d and 1sh stamps were also issued in this form, the former in 1914 and the latter in 1915, but neither is scarce in this variety.

Subsequent printings of the 3d and 4d values were made upon the lemon-yellow paper (1916) and on "experimental" yellow paper (1919), whilst the 1sh appeared in 1919 upon blue-green paper with "olive" back.

A posthumous printing of the 6d was requisitioned in October, 1921, in connection with a pictorial stamp of that denomination depicting the "Abolition of Slavery" should not be put in circulation, and was printed upon Script CA watermarked paper.

Two Jamaica postage stamps of the Georgian series were adapted for the collection of a postal tax imposed under a War Tax Ordinance enacted by the local Legislature in March, 1916. The first of these to be taken into use was the 3d, a small supply of which, on a face-tinted paper, was released on August 1st of that year with the addition of the words "War Stamp" in the form of an overprint applied at the Government Printing Office, Kingston. The type is set up to cover an entire sheet of 10 stamps at one impression, and the prominent variety to be noted in the printing is a raised "space" between the two words, causing the inscription to read "WARISTAMP." This is found on the 55th stamp in the second pane.

About the end of May, 1916, a second printing of the 3d "War Stamp" appeared, this time upon lemon-yellow paper, coloured throughout, the variety "WARISTAMP" recurring.

With a view to combining postage and war tax in a single adhesive, a supply of the newly-issued 1½d stamp, overprinted "War Tax" from a new setting of type, in two lines, made its debut on September 1, 1916, being followed on October 2nd by a further printing of the 3d value from the same type.

A number of prominent varieties occurred in this (two-line) setting, as follows:—

No stop after "STAMP" (Nos. 48 in first pane, 24 and 58 second pane, No. 1 in third pane, and Nos. 48 and 54 in fourth pane; also No. 17 second pane, No. 36 in second pane).

"S" inserted by hand (ditto).

"S" spaced, thus "S TAMP." (No. 3 in second pane).

Raised space, thus "WARISTAMP."

Raised space, thus "IWAR STAMP."

A scarce error of the 3d is known with inverted overprint. Fresh printings took place at monthly intervals about the time and comprised (normally) 1,000 sheets of 1½d and 250 sheets of 1d stamps. The initial printing of the 1½d consisted, however, of 1,500 sheets, containing the six "no stop" errors, which were afterwards rectified. A later printing of the 3d was upon orange-yellow, instead of lemon-yellow paper, and included the varieties "TAMP" and "S" inserted.

New type of a somewhat larger font was used for printings subsequent to March, 1917, when the War Tax Ordinance was re-enacted. "No stop" varieties occurred in the first printing, as No. 45 in the first pane and in the second as No. 11 in the second pane. The same variety recurred in May, 1919, on No. 48, and eventually Nos. 36 and 42 also; all in the second pane. Varieties with broken "R," reading "WAP" and inverted "V" for "A" are also found in this setting.

The 1 1/2d is known with double overprint and both it and the 3d with overprint inverted. The latter also exists with sideways overprint, in which state it is exceedingly scarce.

On October 4, 1919, some 80,000 copies of the 3d stamp were placed on sale with the inscription "WAR STAMP" in red sans-serif capitals, struck in London. The 55th stamp in the second pane of the London printing had the overprint in slightly smaller letters, measuring 2 x 12 1/2 mm. instead of 2 1/2 x 13 mm. This stamp is found on both "experimental" and pale yellow paper.

The Jamaica War Tax Ordinance lapsed after March 31, 1920.

Although they belong, strictly speaking, to the pictorial rather than the Georgian series, there are two other stamps of Jamaica that have the likeness of King George V incorporated in their designs, and must therefore be accounted "Georgians." They are the 1 1/2d stamp originally issued on July 4, 1919, with its vignette of a Jamaican contingent embarking for the Great War, and the 10sh of May 6, 1920, unfamilarly inscribed "George V of Jamaica Supreme Lord."

Both of these stamps are recess-printed in large format and exist on both Multiple and Script CA watermarked paper.

NEW YORK PRECANCEL CLUB

By N. R. HOOVER.

The New York Precancel Club held its monthly meeting at the Hoovers' stamp rooms, 35 West 33rd Street, New York, Friday evening, May 6. Four new members were nominated and elected. Two directors, A. R. Brown and Otto Arco, were elected to take the places of M. P. Rodermond and A. R. Berolzheimer, resigned.

It was at this meeting that the first word that Dr. Mitchell would allow his name to be put up for the nomination for office of President of the P. S. S. was received, the doctor's letter being read to the Club and received with much satisfaction by the members.

Following the business meeting, No. 2 lot of the Mitchell collection was auctioned, commission proceeds to go to the Club's treasury. Some sensational prices were realized; for instance, the following went over catalog, Florence, Kas., No. 1; Montclair, N. J., Nos. 1, 2, 3; Paterson, N. J., No. 2; Canada, Montreal, No. 1b.

The surprises of the sale were the big prices blocks of bureau prints from large cities brought. Plate number singles did well. Among the classics the bargains were some split type Savannah, Ga., parcel posts. Glastonbury, Ct., No. 1, the Big "G" went for $6.25, cat. $20.00; No. 2 went for $4.30, cat. $7.50.

A STRONG EDUCATIONAL FACTOR

By ROSCOE T. FOUST.

The time has gone by when it is necessary to prove that stamp collecting is a good thing. The fact that there are thousands of men, women and children who find the greatest pleasure in gathering and preserving these interesting bits of paper in itself seems to show that stamp collecting has a value. It is a question, however, of just what the value is. The answer will give the reason for the interest taken on the part of old and young, and the steady increase in the number of collectors. It is not with the money value of stamps that we are particularly concerned. That they have this is shown by sales of stamps held every year, a single stamp sometimes bringing as high as thousands of dollars. One of the best things about stamps is that so many of them, having great value for other reasons and in other ways, can be obtained at small cost. Many very fine collections are the property of boys or girls in moderate circumstances. This small cost, combined with the great value of stamps as a means of giving profitable and wholesome pleasure, accounts for the growing popularity of stamp collecting in the world.

The craving for knowledge is one of our strongest and most worthy desires. Stamp collecting ministers directly to this; its educational value is great already, and is constantly increasing. The knowledge of historical events in a concise and definite form is one of the possessions of the thoughtful stamp collector. There is scarcely a stamp-issuing country which does not exhibit on its stamps the changes of government since it began their issue. Fathers and mothers who have lived through changes of government, but who may have forgotten the dates, will appreciate the means which their children have in stamps for preserving the knowledge in a definite and suggestive form.

Think of having the portraits of all of the emperors of Rome, from Augustus to the fall of the empire, upon a series of stamps like our own United States issues engraved by ancient workmen as skilful as our modern engravers! The simple and worn designs on ancient coins would have small value as historical relics in comparison with such stamps. Had the invention of printing and the use of steam been events of two thousand years ago, we might have had such priceless relics. Now it is reserved for future generations of stamp collectors to glory in the rare and beautiful issues of the great American Republic, besides which Rome in her palmist days was as the pygmy to the giant.

Stamps as teachers of history will be more appreciated in the future than they can be in the present. The stamp issuing nations, moreover, are now providing great commemorative issues upon the anniversaries of great events. This adds greatly to the value of stamps as teachers of important historical truth. No knowledge gained in school is away in later life so easily as the facts of geography; in fact, no learning will remain in all its fullness unless it is occasionally recalled anew. Stamp collecting brings the situation of an important nation of the earth again before the mind of the collector. The lessons that are given by the stamp collector by his stamps are being constantly increased in number and broadened in scope by the new issues made by the nations. Stamp collecting has greatly advanced and is much more valuable than it was twenty years ago. The advance of the future will undoubtedly increase in a remarkable degree the valuable character of the pursuit from the educational standpoint.

Let a boy become thoroughly interested in stamp collecting, and let him receive the help and encouragement in it from his parents which he does in other pursuits, and we prophesy for him a successful future. He will be more likely to use his spending-money more wisely and the interest in stamps will leave him.

FIRST ISSUES OF GREAT BRITAIN

A change in the watermark took place about the middle of 1855, the new one being a much larger and more ornate crown than the first. Both gauges of perforation are found on both values with the new watermark, but the 16 is much the scarcer. The re-engraved die of the one penny is the only one found on the new watermark.

The bluish discoloration of the paper already spoken of was finally overcome early in 1857 by the use of a new ink of a rose-carmine color in place of the previous red-brown ink used for the one penny. The new color comes in both perforations though the 16 is much the scarcer.

In May, 1857, a new plate of the twopence came into use, on which the white lines at top and bottom were made noticeably thinner than before. This stamp also comes with both perforations, the 16 gauge being much the scarcer.

In July, 1858, a Post Office circular was sent out with the following announcement: "In order to prevent frauds, which have sometimes been attempted upon the Revenue, by the use of Postage Stamps formed by joining together clean portions cut from Labels, which have previously passed through the post, the Letters which now appear at the lower corners of the Postage Labels, will, in future, be repeated at the upper corners; transposed, however, so as to afford still greater security."

On the right and left-hand side of each Label, the number of the Plate from which it is printed will appear in small figures." It so happens that the twopence was the first stamp issued with the letters in all four corners. A new die was made for it from Humphrys' re-touched die of the one penny. The white lines at top and bottom are again as thick as when they first appeared on the "stars in upper corners" stamp; the corner letters are now in "Egyptian" or sans-serif capitals instead of Roman, in consequence of a wish expressed by the Post Office authorities that the lettering should be as bold and conspicuous as possible; and the plate number, denoted by minute colorless numerals, is inserted in the perpendicular network border at each side of every stamp. The earliest copy known is dated in July, 1858.

Some two and a half years after the plate with letters in all four corners was made for the twopence (in April, 1858), new plates for the one penny began to be prepared with like alterations; but the number of previous plates still on hand and in good condition was too large to consider discarding them, because of their cost, so they were employed until worn out before the new plates were put to press. Thus the appearance of the one penny with letters in all four corners was delayed until April 1, 1864, according to official records, though the earliest known date of use is recorded as May 15th.

The final alteration in the engraved twopence of the original design took place about April, 1869, when the white lines at top and bottom were again made noticeably thinner.

In 1873 a small number of sheets of the one penny were sent in an imperforate state to the Post Office at Cardiff in Wales. This variety is therefore known as the "Cardiff Penny," and is from plate 116 only.

Having traced the first two stamps issued through their various vicissitudes to the time they were superseded (in 1880) by others of a new type, we will return to the early days once more to consider the higher values in contemporary use, but produced by an entirely different process. The utility of the postage stamp had been abundantly proved in the seven years during which the one penny and twopence Queen's Heads had been the only exemplars. But the increase of correspondence with certain of the Colonies and with the United States, to which the single letter rate was one shilling, showed the need of a stamp of this value, which was also the inland registration fee. Accordingly preparations were made in 1847 to supply a stamp of this value. While watermarked paper had been used as a safeguard in the manufacture of the first two stamps, the production of the comparatively high value of one shilling seemed to call for extra precaution against possible imitation. In consequence, the use of "Dickinson paper," which had been employed for the Mulready envelopes and covers, was decided upon. This was a patent paper which had fine threads of various colors and patterns imbedded in it during the process of manufacture. The stamp was produced by the embossing process at Somerset House. The original, from which the stamp was ultimately produced, consisted of a steel die on which was engraved in deep recess a copy of the head of Queen Victoria from the City Medal of 1837, which had already served as a model for the profile on the "Penny Black." In fact, the engraver was none other than William Wyon, who had produced the original medal and whose initials will be found on the base of the embossed bust. The head on this original had a plain coil of hair at the back, the pendant curls being added subsequently.

This original was turned over to Somerset House, where the framework containing the reticulated pattern and curls was added on a subsidiary die by Thomas Moss. The inscription was cut on a matrix produced from the subsidiary die and then the matrix used for producing the working dies. These various "transfers" were accomplished by

J. O. MOORE, INC.,

Hammondsport, N. Y., U. S. A.

The one shilling stamp was issued on September 11, 1847, and was made up in sheets of twenty for ease in accounting, as had been the case with the penny stamps, the value of a sheet thus being one pound. The stamps were disposed in five horizontal rows of four. There are said to have been 5,655,420 issued which, printed one at a time, must have entailed considerable labor, to say the least, and it is small wonder that the stamp was superseded in November, 1856, by another in the then recently adopted typographic form.

The tenpence stamp was apparently intended to be issued along with the one shilling, but for some reason was delayed over a year, making its appearance finally on November 6, 1848. It was intended for the rate to France and many of the Colonies, including British North America, the West Indies and the East Indies. It was produced like the one shilling, but in sheets of twenty-four, six horizontal rows of four, to total one pound in value, as before. Further changes in rates reduced the demand for this value, so that it was not printed after 1854, but the stock on hand was used until exhausted in 1863. The number issued was 2,805,960.

The third and last of the embossed stamps was the sixpence, due to a reduction in rate to Belgium and other countries, as well as the registration fee, which had been lowered to this figure. This was a little more elaborate in form, but was produced in the same manner as before. The paper used, however, was different, being a cream toned paper watermarked with large letters "VR," the pair so disposed as to occur once on each stamp. The sheets were of forty impressions, totaling one pound in value, in two panes of twenty each, five rows of four, placed one above the other. The stamp was issued March 1, 1854, and was superseded by the typographed stamp October 21, 1856. The total number issued during this time was 3,718,280.—New England Stamp Monthly.

SOUTHERN NEW ENGLAND MEETING

The stamp clubs in Holyoke, Springfield, Waterbury, New Britain, Bridgeport and Rockville have been invited to make a philatelic day of it by the Stamp Collectors Club of Hartford on June 4, 1927. On that day, Hartford will open wide the doors to welcome those who are enterprising enough to improve this opportunity to meet for the purpose of trading stamps and attending the banquet to follow the social session. Any one will be welcome and latent stamp interest will be aroused by this philatelic contact, no doubt. Mr. Olin C. Clark of the Committee on Arrangements gives the following outlines of the activities of the day and evening:

"Meet will be held at the Center Church Parish House, opposite Heublein Hotel, in center of city, quiet and easily reached. Doors will be opened at 1 P.M. Plenty of parking space nearby.

There will be a Bourse for trading and sale of stamps, so bring along anything you want to sell, exchange or show. No cost.

Present plans do not include any auction sale as we believe such will detract from the social side of the meet. The original idea of this meet was to "get acquainted" and our program is made up with that idea foremost.

Some fine collections will be on exhibition for those who wish to see them.

A contest for the 50 handsomest stamps in the World (according to your idea of course) will be held, and awards given. Judging will be for beauty, mounting and arrangement, and condition. Plain paper must be used for mounting and no marking except plain ruling around stamps. Size limit of sheets 18x22 inches.

The banquet charge will be $2. per plate and tickets may be had by sending to the club treasurer, Theo. M. Lincoln, 579 Prospect Ave., Hartford, Conn. Applications should be in not later than 10 days before June 4th."

PHILATELIC CONGRESSES OF GREAT BRITAIN

Bulletin of the Permanent Executive Committee

The final details are now being completed with regard to the 14th Philatelic Congress of Great Britain to be held under the auspices of the Nottinghamshire Philatelic Society from June 21st to the 24th, and it is hoped to issue the details of the program in the course of a few days.

Meanwhile, delegates and intending visitors are advised to write, without delay, to the local Hon. Secretary, Mr. C. B. Frettingham at 48, Addison Street, Nottingham, booking their rooms at the Victoria Station Hotel, Nottingham.

The Executive Committee has decided that the Roll of Distinguished Philatelists shall be on view each day in the Congress Room, and further, that any affiliated Society may have the right to borrow it for exhibition at any special function. A circular letter to this effect will be shortly sent out to all Societies who have paid their affiliation fee for the current year.

Certain important decisions have been reached with regard to the future of the Annual Report. At the moment, it is not possible to publish details, but it is hoped that they may be available at Nottingham. The proposals are of a somewhat novel character and it is hoped will meet with the favour of all philatelists.

BI-LINGUAL STAMPS FOR CANADA

By EDWARD E. GOODCHILD.

The Confederation Celebration Committee have gone on record as favouring "bi-lingual stamps" and the Hon. P. J. Veniot, Postmaster General, has issued instructions for their printing.

An active propaganda by use of stickers on letters emanating from Quebec, the capital of the French Province of Canada, has been going on for quite a while and the opinion at Ottawa is that with a French Canadian Postmaster General and a French Canadian Deputy Postmaster General and Post Office staff which is being rapidly filled with French Canadians the Postage Stamps of Canada will henceforth be printed in dual language.

Prior to 1867, the various provinces which now constitute the Dominion issued their own postage stamps all in English. Since Confederation, the Dominion issues have with the exception of the Quebec tercentenary all been in English.

INDIAN AIR-WAYS

"Indian Air-Ways" has come this time, as Part II and we are glad to welcome it, as it may be remembered the first part of Indian Air-Ways reviewed with much favor some time in this paper. The author of Part I a pamphlet of about seventy pages Stephen H. Smith, who in the first presented his subject in an interesting way. The present work is liberal illustrated by maps of routes; maps in flight and aerial covers. Begun with a tabulated list of flights in 1918 to 1926, as a ground-work, each them is given special attention with result that a most readable record is offered on the flights, some of which in the class of epics. The postal philatelic side of the trips is emphasized and the collector of air mail covers find much for his eye; and all in the historical value of the book is evident. The indications are that regular lines will be established in India that contract Air Mails will be undertaken. Thus the field of the collection there will be greatly amplified; and the pioneers who are now studying Indian air covers as a foundation, substantial additions will be added to the air mail structure. Part III will follow in due course from Mr. Smith. Indian Air-Ways, Part II, by Stephen H. Smith. Price 3 shillings sixpence, from Francis J. Field, Sutton Coldfield, Warwicks, England

OBITUARY

The death of the Reverend Thatcher R. Kimball, Dorchester, Mass., will be keenly felt by a host of collectors. He passed away suddenly; and soon after his return from the Hawaiian Islands. Each year, he escaped the rigors of the New England winters by a trip abroad to some distant shore. From a newspaper clipping, we learn that the Reverend Thatcher R. Kimball had been rector of the Church of the Epiphany, Dorchester, since 1907, he having been ordained to the Episcopal priesthood in 1899. He was born in 1872 and was graduated from Harvard in 1895. It is known that as a philatelist, he was a strong admirer of air mail stamps and his correspondence with collectors of similar inclinations was a large one. We shall allow Mr. Joseph A. Steinmetz to pay the following tribute to Mr. Kimball: "Dr. Kimball is known to the stamp world as one of the greatest collectors of air mails in America. He was a medal winner, as you know, at the great Stamp Exhibition in New York last October; and his loss will be felt by all of us, as he was an inspiration and leader in our growing group of Aero Philatelists. The Aero Philatelic Society of America wishes to publicly express its great loss in the death of our associate and member, Dr. Thatcher R. Kimball." We met Dr. Kimball in New York at the time of the Exhibition and thus we feel that his death is a personal loss; and to his wife and sister, we extend heartfelt sympathy.

On May 11th, Charles Beebe Turrill, San Francisco, died at the age of 73; and due to his fame as a student and chronicler of California history, his death was in the nature of a civic loss. The San Francisco Examiner gives an extended account of his activities which embraced a wide range of objects from photographs to stamps; and he was known as the "man of a million hobbies." The old printed records of California cities had an especial fascination for him and his home was the meeting-place of students of local history, particularly where he presided in an atmosphere of hospitality. Naturally, philately made a strong appeal to him and he was one of the fathers of the San Francisco Stamp Society, serving as librarian and one of the directors for years. His covers were of wonderful interest and included California cancellations, Wells, Fargo & Company franks and others and "world war" envelopes. While he specialized in everything that smacked of California, he was still a general collector, in a sense. His death is deplored as it removes a familiar and friendly gentleman from our ranks.

ARRESTED AT HONOLULU

We have received the Honolulu Star-Bulletin for May 3, 1927, from Mr. W. F. Slusser in which prominence is given to a charge against Louis C. Gulley, once in Little Rock, Arkansas, and whose name may be remembered by some of the old collectors. The explanation given to account for the alleged lapses by Mr. Gulley certainly is ingenious and in order that our readers may hear the whole story, the tale is told in the words of the Honolulu newspaper:

"Charged with using cancelled stamps, Louis C. Gulley, superintendent of the substation, Honolulu postoffice, Schofield Barracks, was arrested late Monday afternoon by federal authorities, it was announced today by F. E. Smith, postal inspector, and J. Franklin Woolley, postmaster at Honolulu.

Gulley was arraigned before E. J. Botts, United States commissioner, and was later released on $1,000 bail. Inspector Smith said this morning that Gulley had been arrested following the receipt of "specially marked packages" at Schofield Barracks. These packages, Smith said, had been marked in Honolulu with the view to discovering the identity of the person who, it is alleged, has been defrauding the United States government out of hundreds of dollars over a period of several years.

Gulley, in a statement to The Star-Bulletin, said that hobby for collecting stamps was the primary cause for his arrest on charges of using cancelled stamps. Gulley said that he made a mistake by picking up some used stamps instead of unused stamps and affixing the seals to mail being sent into Honolulu. And the confusion was caused, he declared, by the fact that, being a stamp collector and also selling to other collectors, he had the used stamps lying near some which had not been used.

Gulley added that the stamps which brought on him the attention of Inspector Smith and Postmaster Woolley are of the dollar denomination used to mail packages of currency from a Honolulu bank to the Schofield bank. "These dollar stamps are in demand by stamp collectors," said Gulley, "and I had arranged with the bank at Schofield to let me soak them off the packages and keep them. Then I would sell them to stamp collectors here in Honolulu."

"I got some of the used stamps mixed up with new stamps and by mistake affixed the used stamps to packages coming to Honolulu. It is a very simple mistake and I am sure the trouble will be quickly cleared up."

Gulley also added that the used stamps noticed by the Honolulu postoffice on a previous occasion, when the same mistake was made, and then the stamps put on packages of currency were pin pricked so that they could be later identified. When the packages came back to Honolulu with pin pricked stamps the inspector began to trace the matter and the arrest of Gulley followed.

Gulley is well known to stamp collectors of the islands and also to coin collectors. He took an active part some years ago in the formation of a numismatic or coin collecting society.

Postmaster Woolley said that Gulley had been suspended following the outcome of the charges. Any person convicted of using cancelled stamps is subject to a $500 fine or three years in jail.

Gulley has been engaged in postal service since 1901 and he now is about 56 years old. He came to Hawaii in 1920 from Little Rock, Ark. During the war he was in the overseas postal service. He took charge of the Schofield Barracks postoffice September 14, 1920."

EDITORIAL

Just too late for mention in the preceding number, a Washington correspondent to whom we have been indebted for early information about commemoratives, at different times in the past, notified us that the news of a forthcoming stamp to celebrate the 150th anniversary of the defense of Fort Stanwix on whose site the city of Rome, New York, now stands, was ready for release by the department. The action in 1777 at this fort was memorable for several reasons, one of which has gained wide currency because it is based on the historical statement that it was during this engagement that the American Flag was first flown and received its baptism of fire. Fort Stanwix, named after a British general, was called Fort Schuyler during the Revolution; and it was invested by Colonel St. Leger, on August 3, 1777,

IMPORTANT ANNOUNCEMENT

A New Department

IN

SCOTT'S MONTHLY JOURNAL

ON

SPECIALIZED U. S.

In order to meet the growing need for accurate information regarding United States postage, we have instituted a new Department in Scott's Monthly Journal, devoted exclusively to Specialized U. S.

This will be a regular feature of the Journal, in addition to our many other features and noteworthy articles. Mr. Herman Toaspehn has agreed to take over this Department, and all additions and corrections affecting the Specialized Catalogue of United States Stamps will appear monthly. The importance of this to collectors of U. S. is readily apparent. All basic designs from which cancellation listings are made, will be illustrated. In cases of varieties, etc., same will be illustrated as far as possible and accurately described.

The April issue carries the first of these articles. Subscription to Scott's Monthly Journal is $1.00 a year, and we urge immediate subscription in order not to miss any of this new series. Be sure to have your subscription start with the April issue. [t]

"with 800 English, Germans, Canadians and American loyalists, followed by a number of savages." The fort was defended by Colonels Gansavort and Willet with 700 men. At this critical time, General Herkimer assembled a body of militia and sought to relieve the defenders, but on the march to the fort, he fell into an ambush six miles from the fort and was killed with many of his men. When the ambushing detachment was absent from its camp, General Willet lead an incursion into the enemy's quarters "and after killing a great number and driving the rest into the woods, he carried off many spoils and raised a trophy under the American flag, floating over the wooden fort." Here we have a definite reference to the American flag. General Schuyler had sent General Benedict Arnold to the aid of the beleaguered fort and such was the charm or potency of Arnold's name that the Indian mercenaries were dismayed; and some decamped and others threatened to abandon St. Leger if he did not raise the siege. On August 22nd, the enemy retreated, whereupon the Americans made a sudden sally from the fort and attacked the rear of the departing troops and captured artillery and stores. The Indians with St. Leger turned on him and wrought havoc among their former confederates. Two days later, Arnold arrived at the fort and was hailed as its deliverer. Thus, the historical background for the stamps is inspiring and spirited and the issue will make a fitting companion for the Bennington stamp which will be issued in August also, probably on the 16th of that month.

An interesting letter that was in the issue of two weeks ago was a consequence of the alleged refusal of the Postmaster General to authorize the Rome issue as a "flag" stamp, but because of the attention that collectors are giving to the subject of commemoratives, the matter was not "killed." The philatelic correspondent who wrote to the newspaper told of the uncertainty that clouded the question of what city deserved recognition as the cradle of the Stars and Stripes and arrayed himself on the side of the postmaster general who was supposed to have dismissed the claims of Rome on that score. The assumption was that the authorities may have been in a quandary as to what city was entitled to preferment and were impelled to vote nay in view of this debatable quantity; and our correspondent seems to have rested his case not on any philatelic premise, but on the possibility of historical inaccuracy. All these preliminary examinations have their part in the history of a postage stamp.

* * *

We know that many collectors take a decided stand on all matters affecting the development of collecting and that they feel strongly on what some of us may call the abstract conditions of philately. That they do enter actively into the unfolding of events is a tribute to their deep regard for their pursuit and nobody has any wish to restrain their outspoken opinions. Remarks that have been made in this column were a consequence of a deadlock that had been reached by the opposing consultants and the dearth of new arguments pro and con that would give the advantage to the adherents of either side. It is said by some of those who do not favor future movements that will result in new stamps that they are fearful of what may come when the department will be a pawn in the hands of those ambitious for none too altruistic reasons for stamps as publicity agents. For instance, the New York Times of May 15th, says in the course of a readable article on the "New Stamp for Martial Event" that "the postmaster general has received many other requests from various parts of the country for memorial stamps in honor of martial deeds during the Revolution, but thus far these two issues have been the only ones approved." The second stamp is that for Bennington.

* * *

While all this may sound more ominous than it really is, we have the assurance from one who is in a position to talk that the department is not to be stampeded into issuing stamps without "due warrant." This statement is not definite, of course, but shows that the authorities are not unaware of the possibilities that may have to be combatted. We may as well face the situation as it confronts us and if the public demand for celebratory stamps is a decided one, the objections of philatelists will not be given sufficient weight to change the trend of popular acclaim. The position of the opponents of these stamps is not an inviting one as the patriotic sugges-

In the hope that his example will

He has published a little tract, "A

Always Scarce

Some stamps have never been common and in this division falls the 14 cents, green and lilac, of Danish West Indies that was issued in 1873. The stamp is a striking one in its unusual color combination and has that elusive suggestion of rarity that is characteristic of some common enough stamps, by the way. However, the young collector might aspire to the 7 cents of this set, even though the 14-cents is out of his reach! A well-centered copy is hard to find and catalogue price or over thirty dollars is wanted for one, we suppose. There is a reason for the scarcity of the 14-cents as soon after it was issued a change in the postal rates made this value superfluous; and then, in 1877, remainders to the number of nearly 90,000 were destroyed. As the price for a used copy is somewhat more than for an unused one, it follows that of the 10,000 stamps unaccounted for, over 5,000 never saw the mails.

These continued in use until they were superseded by the general issue for the United States on August 5, 1847. In 1851, a semi-official postal service was established for the delivery of letters from the post-offices to addressees and in connection with this special 1c stamps were issued.

C. Ben. R.

A control overprint found upon 1899-1901 stamps of Ecuador used in the province of Guayas in 1902. In that year a fire destroyed the greater part of the town of Guayaquil, a large quantity of stamps in the Government stores were burnt or stolen. The authorities were uncertain as to what had become of them, instructions were given to the governors of the various provinces to mark their stocks in some distinctive device or other means to refuse to recognise unsurcharged stamps as valid for postage. A stamp showing the letters "C. Ben. R." (an abbreviated form of his signature "Carlos Benjamin Rosales") was the device chosen for use by the government of the province of Guayas.

LOS ANGELES COLLECTORS ORGANIZE

Eighteen prominent stamp collectors of Los Angeles and vicinity met at dinner the City Club on April 4th, to formally organize the Philatelic Club, a new club giving different lines from any now existing in the West.

Realizing that the success of their club depended upon proper financing, each of the members pledged sufficient funds to insure the rental and equipment of a permanent club room. A room was secured in the City Club Building, and handsomely furnished with every convenience of a cosy social and philatelic club.

Mr. Oscar F. Braecklein, who sponsored the idea for the new club, was elected Chairman for the first period.
Others present at the organization meeting were Messrs. H. Sandberg, Harry Hoyt, J. V. Gierding, J. L. Dartt, R.
Cate, E. J. Oakley, S. A. Kaasen, I.
C. Cloyey, Charles Beamish, Morris
McLaughlin, C. G. Weisbrod, William
Ornbeck, F. C. Plate, Burt C. Wear,
B. R. Briggs, and John J. Russell.

Meetings of the club are held every Monday evening at the Club Room, 204
S. A. City Club, 833 South Spring Street.
Dinner is served at 6.30 in the City Club dining room for those who like to gather around the festive board before the meeting. All collectors and their friends are cordially invited to attend any of the meetings or dinners. Stamp talks, exhibitions, and motion picture travelogues are features of the entertainment at every meeting.

AS Auction Manager of the Society of Philatelic Americans, M. Ohlman will again have charge of the annual public auction sale to be held in connection with the 1927 convention at Philadelphia. This sale will be held on Tuesday, August 9, and a limited amount of first class material may be entered if received in time.

AN error occurred in the copy of the advertisement of J. O. Moore Inc.,

May 9. The line "Either Colonial or National printing at each $1.60" applies to the 7c Stanton and not to the 24c make refunds on all orders received.

HELPING THINGS ALONG

By JOHN DIX RICH.

One of the most earnest workers in the field of stamp collecting who ever lived was Arche H. Pike, once of Buffalo, but later of Binghamton, N. Y., at the time of his death about two years ago. He was always anxious to encourage interest in philately through organization and in speaking of starting the ball a-rolling in cities, towns and villages, he wrote me as follows; and I think that his words and ideas will be worth reading and acting upon both by juniors and others who want to help along our pursuit. This is what Mr.
Pike said:

Every worthy project needs a leader,
a man who is not afraid. Philately should have a leader in every town, a man who knows its pleasures and who can preach and teach it. An all around good fellow, a good mixer, a good friend and companion. National publicity for philately is a good thing, but first let's take care of those that are already converted. Personal contact and fellowship with other hobby men will go a long way to prevent the many converts who are back-sliding.

I am not the only one who would like to see this local leadership idea worked out for it will benefit philately in general as well as all collectors individually. If you are the only stamp collector in your town consider yourself appointed as a committee of one. In towns where there is more than one, get together at the first opportunity and talk it over. Where there is a local club, take it up at the

WHY NOT JOIN?

Why not join the enthusiastic group of Live-Wire Collectors who subscribe to my Weekly Bargain Lists?

The Subscription Price is 50c for 50 consecutive numbers—less than the cost of posting them to you.

I have NERVE to charge for my trade circular, haven't I?

But any Collector who is a really active buyer and "knows his onions" will save that subscription price many times over and gladly pays it—and that's the only kind of subscribers I want anyway!

In renewing their subscriptions, many customers take time to tell me that they wouldn't miss a number for the world—they're afraid of missing something extra good!

These Weekly Lists offer all new issues and, in addition, many obsolete items in 20th Century stamps and many special bargains.

They also "tip" you off the stamps with a future and advise the purchase of special items.

Subscribers who took my advice and bought Cyprus No. 88 at $6.40, Malta No. 65 at $10.00, etc., will testify that my "tips" are 95% right.

Recently I offered a scarce pair of S. W.
Africa stamps, for which a prominent London dealer asks $27.00, for $1.50.

A copy of the List detailing this offer will be sent you on request and the offer holds good for all new subscribers during May and June.

The demand from subscribers for items offered in my lists is so great that I seldom am able to duplicate the offers in my public advertisements.

The Moral is, of course, Send 50c for 50 numbers, or if you're from Missouri, ask for a few sample lists.

Remember—the S. W. Africa offer referred to holds good for list subscribers only.

You had better join the Happy Throng
NOW!

INVERTED CENTERS

At the present time I am especially interested in purchasing fine copies of the scarcer United States and foreign postage stamps, as well as United States revenue stamps with inverted center—only copies in fine condition are desired.

Whether you have one or a dozen varieties, kindly submit on approval with net prices, as I prefer not to make offers.

U. S. MINT BLOCKS

I also desire to purchase anything fine in the way of early mint U. S. blocks, as well as the higher denominations from 50c up of the later issues. Can use any of the 1894-95 from 10c up, any of the perf. 10 50c and $1 and especially desire the 1919 blue paper blocks, 4c, 5c and 8c.

U. S. COVERS

What have you to offer in the way of fine early covers—the rarer the better? My market has reached such proportions that I can use practically anything in the way of United States issues (other than envelopes) of importance.

Also offer to the collector a wonderful stock to pick from—correspondence from serious collectors solicited.

Due stamps ("MULTA") of the 1924 type. The new set consists of the 2, 4, 8, 10 and 20c only, and the blue is lighter than that of the first issue. In the first issue the perforations allowed very little margin to the design, but in the new printing there is ample space allowed.

A new air mail service is to be inaugurated between Valparaiso and Santiago. Stamps of an unissued "Centenary Maipu" series of the values of 48c, 1.20p, 1.60p, and 2p will be overprinted "CORREO AEREO" for use in connection with this service.—Stanley Gibbons Monthly Journal.

CUBA.—Stamp Collecting is informed that a 25c stamp with the coat of arms of the country with symbolic female supporters inscribed "1902-1927" will be issued to commemorate the 25th anniversary of the Cuban Republic. The stamps will be engraved and printed by the Canadian Bank Note Co. of Ottawa.

ECUADOR.—The Economist Stamp Co. advise of the appearance of the 1c olive-green, 2c green and 20c brown, type of the 1920-21 issue Scott's A106, with the surcharge "POSTAL" in black. The overprint is 16½mm in length.

GIBRALTAR.—The Economist Stamp Co.

have shown us the ½p green, on script watermarked paper.

GRAND LIBAN.—On a recent package received from Beyrout, we noticed a new 25 piastres stamp which was the ordinary pictorial issue, No. 70 in our catalogue, overprinted at the top of the stamp with the letters "D.P." and underneath these letters "25 P.S." and the equivalent in Arabic. We wrote to our agent enquiring whether this was a new issue and what the letters "D.P." represented, and in his reply he states that this stamp is a fiscal, having been affixed to our letter by mistake. [We are informed that some hundreds of these stamps have been sold over the counter at Beyrout as ordinary postage stamps, and they passed through the Post Office without being noticed. The Postal Administration had their attention drawn to this fact, and strict instructions were given to clerks that no more of these stamp overprinted "D.P." are to be sold. We understand that this special overprint signifying "Dette Publique," postally used specimens of these stamps will no doubt be very scarce.—Whitfield King & Co.'s Bulletin.

MANCHURIA.—The current issue of Chinese stamps has been overprinted horizontally with Chinese characters signifying "To be used in the Kirin and Heilungkiang Provinces only." These stamps were issued after the fall of Shanghai, and our correspondent, who sent us a few of the stamps, informs us that only certain values had been overprinted as the Authorities had no time to overprint all. We have seen specimens of the 1c, 1½c, 2c, 4c, 6c, 7c and 10c denominations, and have no doubt that others will follow in due course. The reason for overprinting is to prevent speculation, as the local dollar is much lower than the Shanghai silver dollar, and it would have been possible to purchase the unsurcharged stamps with local dollars in Northern China and NETHERLANDS.—A new Red Cross stamp is in preparation. The design will show a portrait of Queen Wilhelmina. In the ordinary postage set new values of 2½c and 45c will shortly appear. The 1c and 60c are to be withdrawn.—Stanley Gibbons Monthly Journal.

NEWFOUNDLAND.—Mr. Frank F. Williams of St. John's reports to Stamp Collecting that a 4c purple, with the portrait of the Prince of Wales, is impending. One new denomination with views of historical interest—Heart's Content (landing place of first trans-atlantic cable, 1858). NORWAY.—The 45 öre, Lion type, possibly the same value in the Svalbard (Spitzbergen) type, are to be surcharged 30 öre in black. There will be about 4,000,000 of the former, but the quantity available of the latter is only about 500,000. The 50 öre Air post stamps expected in May.—Stanley Gibbons Monthly Journal.

PALESTINE.—We are informed that the new series of pictorial stamps mentioned in issue No. 1897 have now been despatched to the colony.

PATIALA.—Stamp Collecting in chronicling the new printing of the 3 p. grey, Service, states that 128,000 of the stamps were issued.

RUSSIA.—Bright & Son writing under date of May 3rd send the following:

It may be of interest to your many readers to know that we have received across a few unused copies of the brown-purple stamp of Russia 1908 issue, with chalk diagonal lines, perforated 11½ instead of 14x14½ as usual. No Collector in the World Knows the Thousands of Stories About Stamps Contained in This Book

MILLIONS upon millions of stamps in collectors' albums—and YOU, the collector-owners, do not know the stories that your stamps tell. In no language and no country until now has there ever been a book that tells what all the pictures, portraits, scenes and insignia on postage stamps mean. Every stamp picture has a meaning. F. B. Warren's great new book, "THE PAGEANT OF CIVILIZATION" brings your stamp collection to life. It makes your stamps as dramatic as a motion picture.

DO YOU KNOW—

What country refused to picture its beloved queen as an old woman on its stamps?

What country pictured a patriot in a drunken state on a stamp?

On what stamp there is a picture of a Ford tractor?

What land suppressed stamps containing pictures of churches?

What stamp helped Panama get the Isthmian Canal?

Who was Vishnu? Brahma? What coachman's son is pictured on a stamp? What canal boatman? What country storekeeper?

What land is ruled by women? In what other land are all forms of female life killed or driven out?

Which President used the first bathtub in the White House?

What Roman Catholic was a member of the White House family?

In terms of a vivid, dramatic, colorful story of romance and adventure this amazing book tells you thousands of things you do not know about your own collection. Order it today from your own favorite dealer or from the publishers. The price of this huge volume of 490 pages, with 1200 stamp illustrations, is $6.00. No collector can afford to be without it.

UNION OF SOUTH AFRICA.—The latest values of the pictorial set are very attractive and should prove popular.

The South African Philatelist states that two different centre plates were used for the London printings of the 1d pictorial. In one the horizontal lines of shading extend the full width of the central oval, while in the other the lines are shorter and do not reach the border of the oval. Only the former centre plate has so far been used for the Pretoria printings.

Mr. I. Dekenah tells us that the Pretoria printings of the 1d are distinguishable in sheets as they are perf. through top and bottom margins and also one side margin, while the English printing is only perf. through top margin and one side. There is a constant minor variety in the Pretoria 1d, 10th stamp, 18th row, which shows two large white patches.

Mr. Robertson of the South African Philatelist sends us one of a new series of 24 pictorial post cards, with impressed 1½d pictorial stamp, Ship type, in brown and black, with bi-lingual inscriptions. These cards are sold at 2½d each.—Stanley Gibbons Monthly Journal.

U. S. STAMPS USED ABROAD

Alaska.—Although modern U. S. stamps showing the postmarks of upwards of 125 post offices in the territory of Alaska are comparatively plentiful, those of the earlier period from May, 1867, when the actual transfer took place down to the beginning of the Twentieth Century are by no means common. Current cancellations found upon U. S. A. stamps used in Alaska are of the customary duplex pattern, consisting of a single lined circle containing the name of the office, followed by the word "ALASKA," and employed in conjunction with a heavy ellipse of parallel bars. One of the scarcer varieties is that of Point Barrow, the farthest North post office in the world.

Cuba.—During the Spanish-American War military post offices were established in Cuba to deal with the correspondence of the U. S. forces in the field, and were attached for administrative purposes to the Post Office Department of New York. Military Station No. 1, of the New York Post Office was opened at Santiago de Cuba on June 9, 1898, "for the transaction of money order and registry business, the sale of postal supplies and the despatch of mails." A number of other stations were established in Cuba from time to time, to each of which a serial number was assigned, but with the exception of Military Station No. 11, located at Puerto Principe, the writer has been unable to determine their respective situations. Here, it is possible that some American reader of these notes may be in a position to supply the missing key.

In the first instance the old cancelling stamps of the former Spanish post offices were utilised, containing for the most part the town name and inscription "YSLA DE CUBA," but these gave place very shortly to the regulation U. S. type of duplex postmark with the words "MILITARY STA. NO—" at the top and the name of the town at the foot. For registered correspondence there was an oval cancellation inscribed "MILITARY Sta. No. 1. N. Y." etc., with the single word "CUBA" in the centre.

The spring of 1899 witnessed the transfer of all Cuban post offices from the Military to the Civil administration, when the overprinted stamps of the U. S. A. were brought into use there, and finally in 1901 the U. S. protectorate gave place to the first independent government of the Republic of Cuba and U. S. stamps ceased to be valid for postage.

The United States Post Office still maintains, however, a single postal agency on the Island of Cuba where contemporary postage stamps of the U. S. A. are in daily use. It is located at the town of Bagley, the U. S. naval station on Guantanamo Bay and specimens showing this postmark are by no means commonly met with.

Porto Rico.—The military post offices established on the West Indian Island of Porto Rico during the Spanish-American War were under the immediate control of the P. O. Department at Washington, D. C., their postmarks being so inscribed. At first, as in the case of Cuba, the old Spanish cancelling stamps were employed, but these were soon superseded by special postmarks showing the number and location of the various military postal stations. Of these No. 1, was situated at Puerto Rico and No. 4 at San Juan, but here again it is regretted that no clue to the other military post offices is in the possession of the writer.

Between the Spring of 1899, when the U. S. post offices in Porto Rico were brought under the civil administration and May 1, 1900, when the Island became a Territory of the U. S. A., overprinted stamps were supplied to these offices. Since then, however, despite oft recurring rumours of a special stamp issue, the ordinary current types of the U. S. A. have been employed exclusively by the Porto Rican post offices and postmarked with cancellations similar to those of the U. S. A. itself. As there are something like one hundred post offices in operation in the Island, modern U. S. stamps used in Porto Rico are plentiful.

H. F. COLMAN

509 SEVENTH ST., N. W., H. A. ROBINETTE (Successor) WASHINGTON, D. C.

U. S. Virgin Islands.—Since the early part of 1917, U. S. postage stamps have been current in the Virgin Islands of St. Thomas, St. Croix and St. John, acquired by purchase from Denmark in the previous year, but the present writer is without data concerning the types of postmarks actually in use there.

Mexico (Vera Cruz Agency).—At the time of the U. S. intervention in Mexico, a United States mail agency making use of contemporary postage stamps of the U. S. A. was opened at Vera Cruz on April 27, 1914. The cancellation used was a running machine one, incorporating the design of the American flag. It is understood that this agency remained in operation until the withdrawal of the U. S. forces from the port.

Levant?—Some time about the year 1913 the writer, who was then actively collecting U. S. stamps used abroad secured through the good offices of the late Mr. G. T. Turner, what promised to be an important "find." It was nothing less than two letters franked with early U. S. stamps and emanating from Constantinople! Both bore the impression of the seal of the American Mission in that city, although the postmark was that of New York. Mr. Turner, who was an authority upon the stamps of the Foreign Post Offices in Turkey was particularly intrigued by the discovery, but diligent inquiries revealed, however, that the supposed discovery was a veritable "mare's nest." Letters were, it is true, forwarded by favor at this period in the diplomatic mail bag, but organized postal service there was none so far as the U. S. Consulate was concerned, nor were U. S. stamps on sale there at anytime.

Ship Letters.—Postage stamps of the U. S. A. are not uncommonly met with bearing the postmarks of different ports in the Far East, etc., such as Yokohama, Kobe, Singapore, Hong Kong, as well as that of St. Thomas (Virgin Is.) prior to the U. S. possession. These are from letters posted aboard ship and mailed at the first port of call. They are not genuine "used abroad" and their philatelic interest is small.

Generalia.—On and after June 14, 1900 unsurcharged United States stamps were authorized for use in the U. S. possessions of Guam, Porto Rico, Philippines, Samoa, etc., concurrently with the overprinted types (if any). Only in the Canal Zone are ordinary U. S. stamps invalid for postage. The authorization was amended as regards the Philippines on April 1, 1901, when it was provided that "In the Philippine Archipelago such stamped paper shall not be accepted in prepayment of postage elsewhere than in the Philippine Islands, unless overprinted 'Philippines,' except in the case of the reply half of a 1-cent double post card."

Review.—As stated at the commencement these notes are by no means exhaustive and in many cases they are of necessity incomplete by reason of the wide extent of their subject and the fact that much ground still remains to be broken. The writer's information regarding U. S. stamps used abroad since 1914 is of the slightest, nor has he attempted to deal with the very interesting cancellations of U. S. warships in foreign waters of which a most fascinating collection can be made. It appears probable too, that U. S. stamps may exist with postmarks of offices in Hayti, San Domingo, Nicaragua and other places where American intervention has taken place, but on this point he must defer to those more fully informed than himself. The object of this cursory review of U. S. stamps used abroad will be accomplished if they have provoked any single reader to hunt through his old covers in quest of varieties as yet unrecorded.

THE 10c ORANGE USED IN FRANCE, 1917-19

E. C. ECKEL.

Thanks to the article by Col. Witbeck in your May 16th issue, we can now go somewhat farther in regard to this scarce utilization of an American stamp.

(1) We agree that the ten-cent orange-yellow was used as a Registry stamp in France—and possibly in other A.E.F. areas—to the extent of some thousands. By far the greater number of these were used in sending back letters and souvenirs to America. The number used from an A.E.F. post through a French postoffice will probably not account for very many; and the number of covers now available is, as I said originally, probably "a matter of a few hundred, and perhaps of far less."

(2) Col. Witbeck brings out the point that the one-cent stamp, in groups of ten, was also used for registration within France.

(3) We have both referred to these stamps—the one and the ten—as if they were always of the perforated 10 type, and have classed them Nos. 462 and 472 respectively in consequence. My present impression, after looking over my own and a few other lots, is that on examination we will find more of the perf. 11 type than of the older form; and that therefore we must add numbers 498 and 510 at least to the short list of U. S. stamps used within foreign countries.

(4) As to postmarkings, I might add the following notes, with the idea that others interested in the matter may complete the list of such cancellations.

The earliest dating that I have, or have seen, is July 17, 1918. It is postmarked with the circular "U. S. Army Postal Service No. 2. *Registered"; and in addition bears an oblong block "Registered—No. 525." The second in point of time, dated July 31, 1918, bears similar markings, except that "No. 2" has now been replaced by the later A. E. F. notation 702. In August and September, however, the main postmark is a larger circle enclosing the words "U. S. Military Postal Express Service *Registered" and the A. E. F. post office number (702 in this case) as part of the inscription.

LINDBERGH

On one of the planes which carried the mail on the first flight over the St. Louis-Chicago air mail route, Charles Lindbergh was the pilot. Now that Lindbergh has become so famous by flying from New York to Paris, covers which he carried on this first contract air mail flight are of greatly enhanced value.

You may have one of these covers in your air mail collection. If you will send me a stamped and addressed envelope I will tell you how they may be identified.

The oblong "Registered" block appears also in the envelope, as before.
All of these markings, it may be noted, appear in such inks as rose, green, blue, violet, magenta and purple—so the covers are commonly spectacular enough to suit any hardened specialist.

In conclusion I must thank Col. Wittmer for his added data. I trust that other branches of the Service will contribute information, though by checking the general and Engineer registry numbers at the Paris post-office, I know that the Engineer use of such registry must be accounted for at least one-third of the total use. In saying this I am still reiterating the term "use" to utilization in France; because the use of any American stamp from an American army post to a home office is relatively common.

HAND-STAMPED "NARCOTICS"

These stamps, Scott's Nos. 4301 to 4307, in unquestionably authentic shape, are among the rarest of U. S. revenue stamps. Their period of use was very limited, perhaps less than two months, and we understand they have been extensively faked. From the man who removed them from the original packages we have just one complete set of the dollar values, which we offer at a modest price. The stamps are backed by the signed statement of the finder as to the exact circumstances of their history.

Of the overprinted surcharge "NARCOTIC" we can supply the $1 value, catalogued at $6, as follows: fine copies, $2.00; not so well centered, $1.25; one straight edge, $.50.

We want to buy fine things or unpicked accumulations.

BRITISH HONDURAS, 1925-26

By HARRY E. HUBER.

On October 1, 1925, the foreign post card rate which had been raised from 2c to 3c by Order in Council of October 26, 1921, effective January 1, 1922, was lowered to 2c, in accordance with an Order in Council of Sept. 2, 1925.

No. 512. British Honduras.

No. 2239-25.

ORDER made by the Governor in Council under section 6 of the Post Office Ordinance, Chapter 45 of the Consolidated Laws, 1924.

The following rates of postage to places abroad shall come into operation as from the first day of October, 1925.

Post cards, single, each, 2 cents.
" " reply paid, each, 4 " " " "
Samples, per 2 oz., 1 " " " "
Minimum charge, 2 " " " "

Blind literature, per 2 lbs., 1 " " " "

The Order made by the Governor in Council under section 5 of Chapter 130 of the Consolidated Laws (Revised Edition) on the 26th October, 1921, is hereby rescinded so far as it relates to the foregoing categories of postal correspondence.

Made by the Governor in Council this 2nd day of September, 1925.

Signed, E. A. BABER,

Clerk of the Executive Council.

(Published in Gazette of 12th September, 1925.)

On April 15, 1925, a number of increases took effect in the U. S. domestic postal rates, among them being the raising of the rate on private post cards from 1c to 2c (Government cards remaining unchanged at 1c), and the registration fee from 10c to 15c. On August 28, 1925, the following order was issued by the Post Office Department, increasing the post card rate to foreign countries (excepting those forming the Pan-American Postal Union), from 2c to 3c effective Oct. 1, 1925. This made the post card rate from the U. S. to British Honduras, and to the British Colonies in the Caribbean, 1c higher than the letter rate of 2c.

"Increase in rates on post cards (including private mailing cards) and reduction in rate on reading matter for the blind, addressed for delivery in foreign countries.

Second Assistant Postmaster General,
WASHINGTON, August 28, 1925.

In view of the adoption by the Universal Postal Congress of Stockholm of 3 cents (15 centimes) and 6 cents (30 centimes) as the standard postage rates, respectively, for single and reply post cards (including private mailing cards) in the international mails, said postage rate of 3 cents for single cards and 6 cents for reply cards will be applicable, effective October 1, 1925, to Government post cards and private mailing cards mailed in the United States addressed for delivery in foreign countries generally.

In view of the above increase, the rate applicable to post cards (Government and private) when addressed to those countries participating in the provisions of the Pan-American Postal Convention of Buenos Aires and certain other special postal conventions, is increased from 1 cent for single and 2 cents for reply cards, to 2 cents for single and 4 cents for reply cards. Said countries are Argentine, Bolivia, Brazil, Canada, Chile, Colombia, Costa Rica, Cuba,
Dominican Republic, Ecuador, Guatemala, Republic of Honduras, Mexico, Nicaragua, Panama, Paraguay, Peru, Salvador (El), Spain, and its colonies, and Uruguay.

The rate on packages containing reading matter for the blind is reduced to 1 cent (5 centimes) for each weight unit of 2 pounds, 2 ounces (1,000 grams) or less. * * * *

Signed, W. IRVING GLOVER,
Second Assistant Postmaster General.

Effective December 1, 1925, the registration fee for any registered article (Postal Union or International Parcel Post) mailed in the United States and addressed to a foreign country was raised to 15c (from 10c). No change was made in the limit of indemnity payable.

Under date of January 29, 1926, an order was issued from Washington, correcting the inconsistency in the post card rate, and the 2c charge was made applicable to all countries taking the 2c letter rate.

"Reduction in postage rates on post cards.

Office of the Postmaster General,
WASHINGTON, January 29, 1926.

Nyasaland type, 1922-1926.

Nyasaland type stamps of 1c, 3c and 4c denominations still remained unrequisioned at the end of the year, the old stock being still in large quantity. The 1c and 3c are in the DLR-1912 Postage and Revenue type, the former from plate 3, script CA (issued Nov. 26, 1921), and the latter, from plate 2, Roman CA (issued April 16, 1917). The 4c is in the modified Peace type (issued Jan. 4, 1922), and printed from a line engraved plate, on script CA.

During 1926, fresh supplies of the 5c, 10c, 25c and $2 Postage and Revenue stamps, and 4c Postage Due stamps were dispatched to the Colony. All were printed from plate 1, as before, on script CA watermarked paper. The 2c red (in sheet and booklet form) was also advised in the Crown Agents Bulletin, for the third quarter ending Sept. 30, 1926, as being in printing. This was officially announced for issue on November 1, 1926, but supplies had not yet reached Belize on November 19th. The color change from brown to red for the 2c was made necessary by the reduction in foreign post card rate from 3c to 2c (effective Oct. 1, 1925). Previously it had been printed in brown for the reason that if a fresh printing of the 3c stamp had been made, it would have been in red, the Postal Union color for this rate.

METROPOLITAN STAMP CO., 1482 Broadway, N. Y. CITY

PRECANCELLED 3c COILS

By W. G. BATEMAN.

The earliest three-cent coil to be represented in the Precancel Catalog is the one perforated 8½ vertically issued by the Bureau in 1910. It is Scott's number 394. Back in those days only a few coils were precancelled and the catalog seems to list only 2 stamps of this kind.
These are from Federalburg, Maryland and Rochester, New York, numbers 14 and 238 respectively. They are priced at 40 and 75 cents. Both are decidedly uncommon and I wish I could acquire the Rochester item even at full catalog.

This particular coil appears to have been the third 3-cent coil variety issued by the government but the earlier two were almost certainly never precancelled. The first was an unperforated, endwise variety which is very rare and passed almost unnoticed by philatelists at the time of its issue. Its very existence is doubted or denied by some. The other is the rarest of all 3-cent coils, the sidewise perforated 12. Of this, one coil was used in Orangeburg, New York (not precancelled) and very few were saved for collections. It is Scott's number 389, priced at twenty dollars used. Considering all this it is surprising to find this stamp listed as item number 307 Saint Paul, Minnesota, in the 1926 Precancel Catalog. The type is the handstamp used by the Montgomery Ward Co. and while it is true that almost anything may come to a mail order house and be precan-celled it is almost impossible under the circumstances that this can really be the rarity many coil collectors are seeking.
And priced at 40 cents! Perhaps it is only a misprint for perforated 10. Or perhaps the copy seen was a trimmed stamp originally perforated 12 x 12. All these coils were printed from the flat plates and can be faked from the regular sheet issues.

The next 3-cent coil issued by the Bureau was also made from flat plates
but perforated 10 vertically instead of 12 (Scott's number 445). It looks much like the later varieties made by the rotary press and the Precancel Catalog makes no distinctions among them all.
Yet the flat plate kind is really scarce, especially used. It is really much rarer than the later varieties. Apparently it has never been mentioned in print as being precancelled and the writer has never found a copy of it nor found it named in any checklist. It could only have been precancelled by the earliest users of coils, such as Federalburg, Maryland; Rochester, New York; Cleveland, Ohio. But no 3-cent items at all are listed under

Type IV of Cleveland, while all three centers under Type VIII of Rochester appear to be rotary press emissions. For some time the writer sought diligently for Federalburg number 34 for this might have been the desired variety printed from the flat plate. But rather than finding this he was not able to get a single coil from the Maryland town perforated 10. Indeed in a letter Mr. W.
H. Field tells me that he has never seen this item (3-cent coil, perf. 10 vert.) in Type I. Also, on half a dozen checklists of coils this stamp is absent. Is it not then a candidate for ejection from the catalog? Who has this variety?

The next coil in order was Scott's number 456, printed by the rotary press, perforated 10 vertically and on watermarked paper. The writer has never found this coil precancelled.

Indeed it was not until the Bureau had begun the use of watermarked paper that 3-cent coils were in demand. This came about when the ordinary letter rate was raised to 3 cents during the Great War.
On account of the enormous demand for stamps to comply with the new rate the Bureau found it necessary to make many plates and soon made a new die as well, which is known as Die II. The coils appeared in both dies sidewise, but only in Die I endwise. These are numbers 489 (both I and II) and 493.

Precancelled stamps on Die I perforated vertically are quite uncommon. In my collection they appear only with prints from Indianapolis, Boston, St.
Louis, New York (2 types) and Rochester (2 types) in the U-97 style and from Toledo in U-75. There must be more of them and I should like to garner in a few. It is quite easy to distinguish the two dies from each other at a glance. All the horizontally perforated coils are of Die I. The catalog (1926) has only a few of these listed, none are particularly common and the items from Red Bluff, California, seem especially elusive.

Most of the 3-cent precancelled coils,
then, of the last issue, are found in Die II and perforated vertically. These stamps come in two distinct shades, a pale violet and a dark blue-purple. One would never think the two were meant to be the same color. After the postage rate was reduced to 2 cents the 3-cent coils were of little use so that many of them were precancelled in small towns to get rid of them.

The latest coil of this denomination in the current series bearing Lincoln's portrait is rarely if ever found precancelled, except in the standard U-97 type, but lately to add interest, bureau prints have been appearing from a number of cities.

EDITORIAL

We have received interesting particulars relating to the Bennington-Vermont commemorative stamp from Karl A. Pember, honorary vice-president of the State Commission of the Vermont Sesquicentennial; and he writes from Woodstock, under date of May 19th to say: "It may be of interest to you to get the following description of the stamp that I have from headquarters. I quote from Mr. Spargo's letter: 'The stamp is of standard size, of two-cent denomination, printed in red. The design is quite simple and dignified. A single figure of a Green Mountain Boy ready for action stands against a background suggestive of a pine forest. Above in an arch is the legend, '1777 Vermont Sesquicentennial 1927.' Near the bottom in a scroll is the one word, 'Bennington.' Of course, the stamp bears the required 'U. S. post-

IMPORTANT ANNOUNCEMENT

A New Department

IN

SCOTT'S MONTHLY JOURNAL

ON

SPECIALIZED U. S.

In order to meet the growing need for accurate information regarding United States postage, we have instituted a new Department in Scott's Monthly Journal, devoted exclusively to Specialized U. S.

This will be a regular feature of the Journal, in addition to our many other features and noteworthy articles. Mr. Herman Toaserna has agreed to take over this Department, and all additions and corrections affecting the Specialized Catalogue of United States Stamps will appear monthly. The importance of this to collectors of U. S. is readily apparent. All basic designs from which cancellation listings are made, will be illustrated. In cases of varieties, etc., same will be illustrated as far as possible and accurately described.

The April issue carries the first of these articles. Subscription to Scott's Monthly Journal is $1.00 a year, and we urge immediate subscription in order not to miss any of this new series. Be sure to have your subscription start with the April issue. [tf age, 2 cents.' The stamp is to be placed on sale first around August 6. The first sale will be confined to the Bennington post office and the Philatelic Agency in Washington, the latter being required by law. About three days after it is on sale at Bennington, it will be on sale in all the other post offices, so far as it is possible to supply them, preference being given to the post offices, in Vermont." Mr. Pember adds that the second city in Vermont in which the stamps will be sold is Montpelier and the third, Woodstock. We thank Mr. Pember for his letter and congratulate him upon the position that he holds on this important occasion; as is known he is a philatelist of standing whose preferences are U. S. revenues and cancellations.

Here, we take the opportunity to say that the governor of the proud state of Vermont, the Honorable F. S. Billings, is an ardent stamp collector and it was he who called the attention of the postmaster of Woodstock, James S. Brownell, to a statement made in the issue of May 16th, in an article on precancelled stamps by A. F. Gamber that we reprinted from the Precancel Gazette. If we mistake not, Governor Billings is a member of the American Philatelic Society and is partial to the stamps of France. In his contribution, Mr. Gamber challenged the integrity of "future precancelled commemoratives" that may be issued by certain offices, because of past performances; and in the index expurgatorius are five Vermont cities. The postmaster of Woodstock writes: "Among other towns that Mr. Gamber blacklists, Woodstock, Vermont appears. This office uses precancelled stamps for practically all dispatch of parcel post; and among other precancelled values, the White Plains were used. We use the rubber 1/4 sheet stamp furnished by the Department, usually, and the White Plains stamps were so treated as well as a remainder of perhaps five hundred which were taken to the printer that we had precancelled a short time ago. It is suggested that postmasters generally would be willing to answer a letter of inquiry as to whether certain stamps were precancelled at their office and it is very unfair to the collector, as well as the office concerned, to state that one is a partner and the other a culprit, until the fact has been proven. Mr. Gamber may have taken the pains to have written other offices mentioned before he became hard-boiled, but so far I have never had an inquiry from him and take exceptions to his statement that Woodstock, Vermont, should not be counted among the honorable."

* * *

An interesting statement has come from Professor Lowell J. Ragatz, George Washington University, Washington, D. C., on the subject of one of the rarities issued in recent years. He writes: "The offer of a lone copy of that Bolivian rarity, Scott 94a, 5c on 2c green, with blue surcharge, issued in 1911, in a recent issue of the WEEKLY, calls to mind my having owned some fifteen copies a decade and a half ago. During 1911-12, I purchased from an office employee, the greater part of the foreign covers addressed to the Gisholt Machine Company of Madison, Wisconsin, a firm specializing in supplying the South American market. Hundreds of the Bolivian provisionals then appearing thus came into my possession, were torn from the envelopes, soaked, and sold, for the most part to an East Orange dealer. One morning in bundling a lot which had been dried between blotters the night before, I noticed that a block of twelve, two by six, was surcharged in blue. Either two or three singles from the same correspondence turned up at the same time. One was sent to the Scott Stamp and Coin Company for chronicling and was purchased by them for about a dollar. Although I offered the piece to a number of collectors, no one was interested; hence, I broke it up into eight singles, which were sold in a sales circuit at a dollar each and I reserved a block of four for myself. It was only when I received 2,500 francs from an eager Parisian dealer for this block in 1922 that I realized the true value of this modern business correspondence find." This little recital shows that the winds of chance bring a shower of dollars on the stamp hunter at times when little expected, as well as proving that profitable finds need not always consist of old stamps.

are shown in black on background characteristic of the countries named, i.e.: United States, Canada, Mexico, South America, Europe, Asia, Africa, Australia and "miscellaneous." The reads: "Cut apart the continents, heavy outline and mount on regular envelopes. Keep your stamps in the envelopes until you are ready to paste them in your stamp book." While the method of collecting indicated is of the rudimentary kind, yet the plan for interesting the juniors is ingenious and should be fruitful of results. One advantage of a suggestion of this kind, that the educational appeal of the stamps and incidental drawings must be recognized and on that score is worthy commendation.

If it were not that so many of our readers had called attention to an article that appeared in the Literary Digest for April 30, 1927, it would have been ignored, as its subject matter has been discussed and dissected in the stamp papers at different times in the past. In effect, is based upon a statement made by a doctor that unused postage stamps have not been neglected as nests for the bacteria that beset us on all sides. The germs found on the gummed sides of stamps according to report, "might be classified as possessing the possibility of producing pathogenic (disease-causing) condition." Stamps vehicles for germs is no new subject of inquiries that have been conducted here shown that the postage stamp as collector knows it is about the most offensive specimen as a propagator of disease that could be seized upon as an object lesson. If original gum is a life for the germ, the "organisms" are very discriminating when at every place there are much more inviting sites offered as a field for operation.

A correspondent in sending a list of recent remarks on stamp collecting that he has found in the course of extensive reading of books and articles says that he believes that the introduction of stamps in this wise to the great outside public is one of the most encouraging signs of the growth of our pursuit. He says that he remembers that there was a time when we made much ado over such allusions and he intimates that our part should take much credit for this happy condition, as it exists to-day.

Origin of Countries Names

(Insert in Your Album.)

Australia.—The word is derived from the Latin auster = "the South wind;" it is related to the word aurora = "the dawn," and urere = to burn, from the Sanskrit root ush = "to burn." The word is a late Latin term for Terra Australis = "Southern Land." It is the only continent of which the whole lies in the Southern hemisphere. There was for long a tradition that there was such a land. In 1605 an expedition under De Torres left Spain to find it. An island was found, which, wrongly supposed to be the land sought for, was named "La Australia del Espiritu Santo."

Barbudo is evidently of the same origin as the above.

Bermuda is named after Juan Bermudez, who was shipwrecked there in the sixteenth century.

Barbados.—Opinions differ regarding the meaning of this name. It may mean the "hanging branches of a vine," from the Spanish barbudo = "long-bearded," and "vine." Or it may be from the Portuguese barbadas, meaning "bearded," with reference to a particular fig tree found there. It appears in ancient maps as Bernados, Barbudoso, Barnados, St. Bernardo, showing there was then considerable doubt regarding the origin of the name.—Stamp Collecting.

Stamp News for the Juniors

Is there anything you want to know about stamps or stamp collecting? If so, write the editor. What would you like to see in this department? We have no way of knowing unless you tell us. Mr. Senior Collector, can't you give the boy collector about 50 words of encouragement along practical lines? Address your letter to the Beverly office.

Juniors—Please Note

During the absence of the Managing Editor in Europe, this page will be cared for by Editor Charles E. Severn, 713 Oxford Bldg., Chicago, Ill. He will render our Juniors any assistance that may be desired.

Where Is Nejd-Hejaz?

One of five values—which one?

A Capital Full-Born

We have not had much to say of the magic city that has arisen to be the new capital of the vast Commonwealth of Australia, and the stamp that is to celebrate the occupancy of the city as the seat of government. So, we take the following story from the lively school paper, West High Tatler of Des Moines, Iowa, that makes a specialty of stamp news, we are glad to say:

"On May 9th the capital of the Commonwealth of Australia was changed from Melbourne to Canberra. On that date the newly-constructed Parliament buildings in the latter city were opened. Canberra is a new city. It was built to be the capital of Australia. To commemorate this date and this change, the government of Australia will issue the Canberra stamp. Its value will be 1½d, which in American money is equal to three cents.

In order to obtain a design for this stamp, an extensive contest was carried on. 1,055 designs were submitted by people from all parts of the world. Mr. Ronald Harrison of Melbourne was the artist whose design was chosen as that to be used on the stamp. He will receive the $500 awarded as first prize. Mr. Lyons of South Australia will receive the second prize of $250. This stamp will be of one color, carmine-red. The design will not be known to the public until the stamp is published on May 9th. The Tatler will carry a full description of this stamp as soon as one can be procured."

Newspaper Tax Stamps

Austria, Hungary, and France furnish examples of newspaper tax stamps. In the case of Austria and Hungary these labels had nothing to do with postage but simply represented a fiscal tax, collected by the postal authorities, on newspapers coming from foreign countries. It is, therefore, difficult to understand on what grounds these labels are included in a postage stamp catalogue.

The French stamps issued in December, 1868, and used for a comparatively short period afterwards, represented a combined fiscal and postal charge. There were two values, 2c and 5c. The latter was for use in the Department of the Seine and Oise, and the 2c for all the other Departments. These stamps have a better standing as postage stamps but they are varieties the general collector can very well afford to ignore

Boys' Week

During boy's week in May, many fairs and exhibitions were held to show how boys had been occupying their minds and hands to advantage, and competitive displays were features of these occasions at times. Stamps were not ignored as objects of devotion in some instances and in Chicago, for instance, the young philatelists who showed their wares did themselves proud. The Philadelphia Record gives an enthusiastic account of Raymond Aarons, 3134 Columbia Avenue, who has a collection of stamps and coins worth a fortune, according to the paper. There is a large picture of the boy sitting in his den among his stamps and coins, which were to be exhibited at the Forst Regiment Armory on May 4th, illustrating the article from which we make the following quotations:

"Raymond, a husky boy of 15, is in the first year at Central High School. He is fond of swimming, baseball and riding, but gives a great deal of his spare time to his collections. All of the mounting work and about 75 per cent of the actual collecting have been accomplished by Raymond himself. He started when he was 8 years old.

"I bought a package of 150 stamps for 25 cents in a little shop on South Fifteenth Street. I wish more fellows would be interested in stamp collecting. It's the greatest hobby I know," he said.

Joseph Aarons, the boy's father, encourages him in continuing the collection. Raymond has received, through gifts and inheritance, parts of his collection and money to spend on increasing it. The boy is a member of the American Numismatic Society and can discuss every phase of stamp and coin collecting.

He receives an allowance of $5 every week, and manages to save enough to buy additional stamps and coins. Raymond has sacrificed summers in camp in order to use the money for the trips in securing certain rare stamps for his collection.

Choice sections of the collection will be on exhibit during the Hobby Fair, and Raymond is busy dismantling his room in preparation for decorating his place at the armory.

Att

The value in which most of the stamps of Siam are expressed from their introduction in 1883 until 1909 when the currency of the country was changed. An att was the sixty-fourth part of a tical and had a value of about a third of a cent in United States money.

Correction

In the issue of May 16th, on the Junior Page, under "Origin of Countries' Names," a paragraph read that Hong Kong (Sweet Lakes) "was a pretty name for one of a group of islands to which the Portuguese had given the unsavoury name of ladrones—'thieves' because of the predatory habits of the natives thereof." Then came William Carlos Stone, the dean of Springfield, Mass., and said that according to his gazetteer, the Ladrones are the Marianne Islands. He is right; and it is the Marianne Islands named after the queen of Philip IV of Spain that were called the Ladrones because of the thievish propensities of the inhabitants when discovered by Magellan in 1521.

A Long Wait

Among the virtues necessary for a collector who would import his stamps, that of patience must be mentioned in red. There are many slips between the far-away post office and home and interesting stories have been told of discouragements attending the direct transportation of stamps from certain countries. The explanation that is sometimes given by postmasters who refuse to fill orders is that only a sufficient stock of stamps is on hand for local use. Here is an instance where it is literally true that the stamps had become "out," according to Mr. Charles F. Busch of Rochester, N. Y., who wrote to the General Post Office at Guadeloupe last year, enclosing a five dollar bill and requesting current stamps. Politely enough the postmaster said that he could not send all of the stamps as his supply of them had run out, but that he would send them shortly. Evidently, the check has been forgotten by the postmaster. Mr. Busch has not got the stamps, as he says that he has not, up to the present time.

Junior Dictionary

Danzig.—A former city of Germany and now considered international territory forming Poland's outlet to the Baltic Sea. Stamps were first issued in June, 1920, consisting of German stamps overprinted "Danzig."

Debreczin.—A city in Hungary where, during the World War, the Rumanian forces of Occupation issued certain Hungarian stamps suitably overprinted for their use.

Denikin Issues.—Properly speaking, all the issues of South Russia, Nos. 10 to 79, as all were made at the command of the Denikin-Wrangel administration. The name is generally used for Nos. 61 to 9 only, as this is the first definite issue, preceding emissions being provisions.

Desmit Rubli.—These words, stamped on stamps of Lettonia, mean "Ten roubles."

Doplat.—An inscription on "postage due" stamps of Poland and Czecho-Slovakia meaning "additional" in connection with the word "posta."

Doplatit.—An inscription on "postage due" stamps of Czecho-Slovakia signifying "additional payment."

ROUND ABOUT

We have received the 25c Cuba, celebrating the 25th anniversary of the founding of the republic from Mr. E. M. and in reality the stamp is a beautiful one.

Our old friend, Mr. William Carlos Williams, Springfield, Mass., writes: "I am that Mr. Witbeck says that a list of A. E. F. post offices with numbers, would be of value. I published a list in the American Philatelist in June, 1920; and I think that you repeated the same in the WEEKLY some years ago. I am making a scrap of all articles I can get hold of concerning U. S. cancellations and pass ideas on for what it is worth. Some one will publish a book on the subject." Our Michael Miller of Baltimore, has an article on these markings in their hands and it is not to be gainsaid their day is coming.

Mr. Stone says that the Forbin catalogue of fiscals of the world may be from Yvert & Co., 37 rue des Jacobins, Amiens, France, for 18.60 francs; there has been no edition of the book since 1915. Mr. W. R. Adams of Toronto and another reader furnishes similar information in answer to our request for the latest address of the publishers of the Forbin catalogue.

The Postmark still comes monthly from the bright and breezy postmaster of Springfield, Illinois; and one assertion is made in strict accordance with truth: his patrons know that the air still flies.

Thanks are given to Mrs. I. B. Johnston for two of those fancifully designed local cards with figures made of bits of different postage stamps, chiefly Chinese and Japanese. Mr. Leonard Michael, New York, has favored us with similar cards from Atlantic City.

Mr. C. F. Adams has remembered us with a program of a musicale held on the Adriatic, in which he participated. We notice that he was elected general chairman of the committees appointed for various social entertainments on board.

That postal card, three by two feet, was sent to Postmaster General. Now inviting him to attend the National Federation of Postal Clerks to be held at Indianapolis next September was the latest that may be sent through the mails; and it bore stamps to the value of one dollar.

ADVANCE NOTICE ON BIG ADVT'S.

During the summer months we desire advance notice in connection with advertisements to occupy 1/2 page or more. It is very likely that a large advertisement, arriving Wednesday, without previous notice, may be delayed one week in its appearance in the WEEKLY.

RIDGEWOOD STAMP CLUB ANNIVERSARY

One hundred and fifty persons, including members, friends and specially invited guests of The Ridgewood Stamp Club, participated in the second anniversary celebration which was held Tuesday evening, May 10th, at Jung's Hall, 702 Seneca Avenue, Brooklyn, New York.

Following the splendid address of welcome by President Monroe Rosenblatt of The Ridgewood Stamp Club, who at the same time outlined briefly the big strides made by the organization during the brief period of its existence, the gavel was turned over to Mr. Osborne, President of The Brooklyn Stamp Club, who was designated to act as Toastmaster for the evening.

What was probably an innovation for a stamp club came in the form of an entertainment which was provided by Walter Goodwin, assisted by his "Broadway Boys," Thomas Roll and Joseph Resch. Mr. Goodwin is the composer of the official Mothers' Day song, entitled "That Wonderful Mother of Mine." Mr. Goodwin's compositions were rendered throughout the program, and included ten or twelve of his best song hits, the concluding selection being his latest number, "Pal Of My Heart." For their fine program of entertainment the three radio stars were given a rising vote of thanks by the members of the club.

This was followed by an interesting auction of some fine specimens of United States and British Colonial stamps. The auction was conducted by Mr. Trifine, and good prices were obtained on most of the lots.

A third feature was the excellent display of several volumes of 20th Century British Colonials, complete, which embrace the collection of Gustave Fabian, of the Ridgewood Stamp Club. Such items as Malta Self-Government, and many others, all in perfect, mint condition, and a collection of fine Patriotic covers, occupied the attention of all present for several hours.

The evening was closed by a tasty buffet luncheon, including refreshments, after which every member received as a souvenir a very fine magnifying glass that reposed inside a leather case, inscribed in gold letters, "Ridgewood Stamp Club."

Walter Goodwin and his pals left the clubrooms at midnight, after giving the second half of their entertainment, but the "old guard" remained until the wee hours of the morning, "swapping" stamp stories, trading stamps, etc.

Several representatives of the local press attended, and a number of the large metropolitan daily newspapers carried accounts of the affair, including the New York Evening Journal, Brooklyn Standard Union, Brooklyn Chat, The Long Island Daily Press and the Staats Zeitung und Volkszeitung.

The Ridgewood Stamp Club meets every Tuesday night, and invites all collectors to join or visit the club rooms.—AUGUST C. WEBER, SEC., 1682 Gates Ave., Brooklyn, N. Y.

United StatesLindbergh Stamp Proposed

Under date of May 25th, Hon. Ernest R. Ackerman, Member of Congress from the Fifth New Jersey District, wired Postmaster General New at Washington as follows:

"Because of Charles Lindbergh's postal service connections and as a fitting tribute to his intrepid courage, I respectfully suggest Post Office Department immediately surcharge five hundred millions two cent postage stamps 'HAIL CHARLES LINDBERGH' and sell them to the public for three cents each, the premium of one cent on each stamp to be collected for account Red Cross fund for southern flood sufferers. Five millions of dollars for this worthy cause would thus be secured for those sorely afflicted Southerners while fittingly commemorating epochal flight instanter. Whole world would become purchasers."

As a copy of the telegram was given to the press, it appeared in several papers in the east and was no doubt copied throughout the country.

In talking to Mr. Ackerman over the phone, I learn that the Postmaster General is greatly interested in the subject and that he has conferred with the Third Assistant Postmaster General, Mr. Robert S. Regar. They are looking up the laws applying to the subject and if there is nothing to prevent, there is a possibility of some sort of stamp being issued, but at the time of this writing, no decision has been made.
